LUTHERAN CHURCH OFFICES CHARRED

Seventh Suspicious Blaze In Recent Weeks Leaves Sanctuary Undamaged

A $15,000 fire, believed deliberately set, destroyed the office of Faith Lutheran Church at Los Ranchitos and Northgate Drive, San Rafael, early this morning.

"We were awakened at 1:45 this morning by the secretary who lives across the way and saw the flames and the engines," said the wife of Pastor Bliss W. Bellinger.

Files, books, machines, desks—all were destroyed. The fire was confined to the office wing, destroying the walls and roof of the area separated from the church by a covered breezeway.

"It seems strange that so many fires have begun at the same time and in one area. It makes many of us question whether the fires were set deliberately," said Mrs. Bellinger.

The same suspicion was voiced by San Rafael Fire Chief Vance Trivett, investigating for possible arson.

This is seventh in a recent series of similar fires in the area. Religious establishments burned were Temple Rodef Sholom and Catholic Social Service headquarters. Included in the series was a fire at Terra Linda High School.

Parish members are cleaning up today and services will be held as usual this Sunday.

Marin Marchers Trek Across Gate Bridge

Hundreds of Marinites and others streamed across the Golden Gate Bridge on foot and in a motorcade this morning to join the anti-war Spring Mobilization in San Francisco.

Bridge officials said a 100-car motorcade of protesters crossed and 250 demonstrators marched across after alighting from buses at the north end of the bridge.

Many of the local groups forming the motorcade were members of the Conference of New Politics, a peace-oriented political group that grew out of last fall's congressional campaigns of Philip Drath of San Rafael and Robert Scheer of Berkeley.

People for Peace of Marin chartered a bus, and other groups included Citizens Concerned About Vietnam, Women for Peace and Tiburon Citizens for Peace.

Another focal point was the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, where a student estimated half the student body, 150 students, joined a motorcade to the mobilization. They were augmented by 75 Northern California high school students attending a vocations conference at the seminary, and by an unknown number of protesters quartered at the seminary over the weekend.

The peace commission of the seminary's student council offered sleeping facilities for several hundred marchers, but no count was available of the number housed. The marchers, who had their own sleeping bags, were quartered in dormitories and at least one classroom building.

The march in San Francisco from city hall was to end in Kezar Stadium at 2:30 p.m., where Mrs. Martin Luther King and other anti-war leaders were to speak to an anticipated crowd of 50,000 persons from many parts of the nation.

Shocked residents shaken from slumber did not think the sight looked particularly pretty — at half-past three in the morning.

Draft Card Burning In New York

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thousands demonstrated today in San Francisco and New York City against the war in Vietnam.

Men of the cloth, well-dressed businessmen and housewives mingled with colorfully garbed hippies in parading through San Francisco.

TROUBLE NOTE

The over-all orderly character of the demonstration exploded suddenly when a Harlem contingent of more than 1,000 spun off from the line of march at Seventh Ave. and 59th St., shouting, "Hell no, we won't go," and headed towards Times Square a dozen blocks to the south.

Demonstrators surrounded a car attempting to cross Seventh Avenue. Several jumped on the roof and pounded the auto with their fists.

Police were caught by surprise. The demonstrators became quickly enmeshed in a snarl of autos and pedestrians, and there were jeers and shouts from demonstrators and pedestrians.

But the turnout at noon, when police estimated there were 40,000 to 50,000 persons on Central Park's grassy Sheep Meadow, was far short of the 400,000 predicted for the demonstration by the organizer of the "Spring Mobilization" for peace.

Senior Citizens' Poverty Worries Marin Conclave

By DAVID DIETZ

A Marin County conference on aging was told today that "42 per cent of the nation's older citizens are at, or very close, to economic disaster."

Charles T. Weikel, regional representative of the U.S. Administration on Aging, also said that one third of older Americans live below the poverty level, which is considered to be a 70 cents per day food allowance, and that only one fourth of the older men are in the labor force.

Therefore, despite Social Security and welfare benefits, "the choice of a substantial number of Americans is quite simple: work or starve," he said.

His remarks were made at a conference "The Challenge of the Added Years," sponsored by the Bay Area Social Planning Council at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

Weikel hoped that through the Older Americans Act of 1965 state, federal and local forces could be marshalled to help solve these problems.

He also said citizen participation was needed to cure the problems of the aged.

Lucas Valley Vandal Spree Leaves 7 Autos Damaged

A gang of fire-loving, spiteful teen-agers is believed responsible for an orgy of vandalism to cars in Lucas Valley, sheriff's deputies reported today.

In one night, the gang hit seven autos, stealing property, burning the seating, spraying paint and ransacking glove compartments. It happened Monday night but information was withheld by the sheriff's office until today.

Robert F. Kaufman of 33 Mount Foraker Drive reported an attempt had been made to set his car on fire with a stolen road safety flare, which failed for lack of oxygen in the closed car.

The flares were reported stolen from the car of Nadine Hewitt od 1224 Idylberry Road, who said a cigar lighter had been used to burn the front seat

Ross Neighborhoood Simply Wild About Harry, But Not His Bark

Neighbors on Spring Road, Ross, who have been just wild about Harry, could give a collective sigh of relief yesterday on hearing the news: Harry was in the doghouse for an unlimited vacation.

The trouble with Harry — a basset hound — was that he barked all day and night, the neighbors told a meeting of the Ross Town Council Thursday. Ten of them had signed a petition.

"Not true," said owner Mrs. Michael G. Harrington yesterday shortly after packing Harry —and his basset friend John— off to a kennel for some peace and quiet of their own.

Ross council had declared Harry a public nuisance and ordered action to be taken to abate the nuisance forthwith. But Mrs. Harrison beat them to the punch.

"Harry and John were due to be put in a kennel today anyway," she said, "and it had nothing to do with the council. I didn't even know they were going to debate the dog. I hope in future they will let me know so I can be there to defend him."

Police Chief John F. Harris told councilmen a local resident used earplugs in an effort to get some sleep "but these shut out all noise except the dog." If the council wasn't prepared to do something about it, the chief said, "this man is going to be driven to do something."

Fire Chief A. T. Henrich said that although Harry might be a nuisance to adults, children in a nearby nursery school "loved it and loved to play with it."

Mrs. Harrington denied Harry —or John for that matter — barked any more than was normal for a dog. She, herself, was never awakened at night and had not received any complaints except for one letter through the mail, she said.

"I keep them on the premises while other dogs in Ross run loose," she said. "I think it is a case of mistaken identity. I took the dog for a walk one night and heard a barking dog that sounded similar to Harry."

LBJ Proves His Diplomacy

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson looked forward to a restful Texas weekend today after clearing the final political hurdle of his Latin America trip.

That last hurdle, strange as it might seem, had nothing directly to do with the hemisphere summit he attended at Punta del Este, Uruguay.

Rather than play favorites, Johnson had his plane refueled in Surnam, Dutch territory that does not have OAS membership.

The 67-minute stop was fitting, in a way. The Dutch acquired Surinam from the British in 1667 in exchange for New York City and the surrounding countryside.

Monkey Trial Issue Revived

Scott

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Tennessee's "monkey law," apparently near a quiet death at the hands of the state legislature, sprung to new life yesterday. A teacher was dismissed for teaching the theory of evolution.

Gary Scott, a 24-year-old graduate of the University of Tennessee, taught his final science class yesterday at Jacksboro High School after the Campbell County Board of Education voted to dismiss him.

The "monkey law," which forbids teaching any theory "that denies the story of the divine creation of man as taught in the Bible," has been virtually dormant since the Scopes monkey trial in 1925.

No one has been prosecuted for violating the law since.

The state house of representatives voted 58-27 Wednesday to repeal the monkey statute after a long, emotional debate. A caged monkey was brought into the house chamber to illustrate the evolution theory during arguments.

Scott has denied all charges that led to his dismissal.

He said the board's action will be challenged in the courts.

Tax Freedom Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Edward J. Gurney wants Congress to authorize President Johnson to proclaim May 5 as "Tax Freedom Day."

Last year, the Florida Republican wanted May 1 proclaimed as the day the average American begins to keep all of his pay.

Gurney said in introducing the joint congressional resolution Friday that he had to move up his original date because taxes now consume another four days of earnings.

Bobbitt was knocked down, kicked and beaten. He suffered a fractured cheekbone.

Confused One Chases Those Signal Demons

HONG KONG (AP) — A demon inside the traffic lights kept flashing red lights at him when he wanted to cross the street, explained a Chinese man arrested for smashing signals in his neighborhood.

"I decided to kill all the signal demons so I could get across the street," he told police, who had been staked out four nights trying to solve the traffic light case.

They said they caught the man as he raised a three-foot iron pipe against a newly installed light in the Tsun Wan Chinese district of this British colony.

Back at headqurters, officers ried to explain that the light was amber, not red, and was supposed to blink every three seconds as a warning to look out for cars.

Mrs. Walter Lovinger says she doesn't know how the name of her 9-year-old schnauzer got on the tax rolls, voter registration rolls or telephone listing from which the names of possible jury candidates are taken.

State Water Official Unhappy Over Offer

KELSEYVILLE, Calif. (UPI) —An offer to the federal government by 11 North Coast counties to export Eel River water to the Colorado River Basin has been criticized by the director of the state Department of Water Resources.

Director William R. Gianelli told the Eel River Flood Control and Water Conservation Association yesterday that "independent actions" by individual groups would only undermine the state's water development.

The association's executive committee took independent action late last month when it ent a telegram to Rep. Wayne N. Aspinall, D-Colo., chairman of the House Interior Committee, which soon will begin hearings on controversial Colorado River legislation.

The association urged that the North Coast water be developed as the first phase of a regional water development program sending Pacific Northwest water into the southwest.

Gianelli said his department did not object to including the North Coast as one of the areas for supplying the Colorado river.

"But we do ask that selections of California's north coastal resources as a source of supply for the initial stage of the regional program be based upon a demonstration that it is . . . the best of all possible alternatives . . ."

In Sacramento, Assemblyman Carley V. Porter, chairman of the Assembly Water Committee, in a speech to the California Water Resources Association, declined to criticize the North Coast Association's actions.

"I don't have a single word of criticism for their action," he said. "I don't think any great damage was done by it." However, he remarked, "it would be best if we coordinate our presentation" before Congress.

One Tuition Plan Killed In Senate

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Senate Education Committee has killed a go now, pay later plan for financing college educations in California.

Its sponsors described it as an alternative to outright tuition at the University of California and the state colleges. The measure failed by one vote Friday to receive the backing necessary to get out of committee.

The legislation was presented by Sen. John L. Harmer, R-Glendale, and Assemblyman John L. E. Collier, R-Los Angeles. It would have allowed university and college students to go to school without paying fees by signing an agreement to reimburse the state once they are out of school and earning a living.

If the plan had been in effect this year, Collier said, it would have brought $225 million to the general fund.

Harmer said the plan would have allowed students from lower income families to attend college.

Guard Chief Denies Riot Forecasts

SACRAMENTO (AP)—California's National Guard chief said today he's unaware of any intelligence reports that major California cities may face civil rights disturbances this summer.

Maj. Gen. Glenn C. Ames said the reports sounded like "pure speculation" to him.

At the same time, Ames said he opposes an expected reorganization of the guard by eliminating the California Army National Guard's two divisions and replacing them with three brigades.

Even though the total strength probably wouldn't change materially, Ames said, "I strongly oppose" it. "I would want to retain our divisions."

Reports from Washington said National Guard officers anticipate civil rights outbreaks in five or more states in the summer. Sources said Guard leaders have been told there is a strong likelihood of such outbreaks in Los Angeles, San Francisco and San Diego.

"We have no knowledge of any such reports," Ames told a reporter, "and I do not know that any such reports are in existence."

But he said the 25,000-man California guard is prepared to meet "all contingencies."

Film, Talk Set To Recall Quake

"Disaster at Dawn," KPIX documentary film, will precede the Landmarks Society lecture Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Reed School, Tiburon.

Mrs. Anne de Martini, chairman of the event, announced the addition today to the lecture by Bert Werder, "The Way It Was."

Werder's recollections of the 1906 San Francisco earthquake are being presented on the disaster's anniversary.

The first three rows in the school auditorium will be reserved for "those who were there."

Ky Orders 'Death Strip' Along Northern Borders

SAIGON (UPI) — Premier Nguyen Cao Ky announced today South Vietnamese engineers had begun construction of a Little Maginot Line along a 14-mile stretch of the North-South Vietnam border to halt the flow of Communist troops into South Vietnam.

The death barrier extends inland from the South China Sea to the mountains where infiltration is far more difficult and where U.S. Marines are firmly entrenched with artillery commanding some of the infiltration valleys. Its construction emphasized the danger of direct invasion from the north.

South Vietnam is about 40 miles wide at this point. The coastal area carries the main highways and railroads; inland the mountains rise steeply toward the Laotian border.

The barriers would consist of thousands of land mines, antipersonnel devices and miles of concertina barbed wire backed up by troops and artillery. The French Maginot Line which failed to halt the Nazi invasion of France was a series of steel and concrete underground fortresses which the Germans simply bypassed in an end-around sweep.

At the same time Vietnamese troops with huge bulldozers and other earth moving equipment moved out of the Da Nang area to carve out a huge field of fire below the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) to make detection of invaders easier. Their purpose was to remove all vegetation along a wide swath.

Ky, speaking to newsmen at Bien Hoa airbase, said 20,000 villagers would be evacuated from a strip just below the DMZ and that anything moving in the zone would be subject to allied air and artillery strikes.

The move also could free U.S. Marines for possible action against the DMZ area where from three to four North Vietnamese divisions have been reported active in an invasion threat. The arrival of 3,000 to 5,000 Army reinforcements—with more to come—freed the Marines' offensive power.

In the air war American planes flew 103 missions against North Vietnam yesterday, knocking out eight antiaircraft sites and a surface-to-air (SAM) missile site barely 10 miles west of Haiphong. At the same time U.S. 7th Fleet destroyers dueled with North Vietnamese coastal batteries.

An F105 Thunderchief was shot down, the 505th airacrft reported lost over the north since the raids began. The pilot, Maj. Paul R. Craw of Wichita, Kan., making his 120th mission over the north, was rescued by a helicopter while other pilots held off Communist ground troops.

In another of the tragic mistake bombings of the war two U.S. F100 Supersabre jets dropped their bombs accidentally on a South Vietnamese position 23 miles northwest of the coastal city of Qui Nhon. An American spokesman said 29 government soldiers were killed and 70 others wounded. A spokesman said the planes were under "radar control" and dropped their bombs off target during a pre-planned night mission.

Fiery Talk Concludes Speck Trial

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—A prosecutor today urged a jury in the murder trial of Richard Speck to impose the death penalty "as you would remove a cancer."

Speck heard himself accused in ringing tones of "the most enormous, heinous crime the world has ever known."

A crowd that filled the 70-seat courtroom, including fathers of some of the victims, listened as Murtaugh started a court day that included closing arguments for both sides and instructions to the jury before it retires to deliberate a verdict.

Murtaugh cited testimony by witnesses and said the state has spun "a web of guilt around Richard Speck."

He said the evidence had depicted "the face, the mind, the heart of a murderer."

He pointed at Speck. Speck, a gangling 25-year-old drifter, who was sitting straight up in his chair, moved his jaws in a slight chewing motion and swallowed.

"There he sits," Murtaugh said, "the man responsible for the most enormous, heinous crime this world has ever seen, and I hope to God will never see again."

Both sides rested their cases in the trial Thursday.

Lecture Scheduled

How man's freedom is linked to God will be explored in a Christian Science lecture to be given Saturday, April 22, at 4 p.m. by Thomas A. McClain in Reed School auditorium, 1199 Tiburon Boulevard in Tiburon.

Shaky Truce Reached By Chicago Teamsters

CHICAGO (AP) — Some 20,000 drivers and 5,000 dockmen began limited operations of the trucking industry in Chicago and the Midwest today, ending, at least temporarily a five-day strike with a shaky agreement.

The truce started at 12:01 a.m. It was requested by W. Willard Wirtz, secretary of labor.

Under terms of the agreement, trucking firm operators and union leaders will meet with Wirtz in Washington Tuesday to begin talks aimed at settling wage and benefit demands of the Chicago trucking industry unions.

Industry sources said about 20,000 drivers and 5,000 dockmen would also report for work Sunday to clear piled up freight for delivery. All union members involved in the strike will be at work Monday, union officials said.

Union leaders said that they agreed to the truce during negotiations and if agreement could not be reached on their demands they could resume their strike at a later date.

Coppolino Autopsy Is Argued

NAPLES, Fla. (AP) — The witness who testified that Carmela Coppolino died of a drug overdose said on the stand today that he had helped alter the chemist's report on which he based his opinion.

Dr. Milton Helpern, on whom the prosecution relies to establish a criminal agent in the woman's death, admitted under cross-examination that he had, among other things, added the word "positive."

Helpern said that he and Dr. Charles J. Umberger, a toxicologist, had discussed the language of the report of Umberger's analysis of organs from the exhumed body of Carmela.

Carmela's former husband, Dr. Carl Coppolino, is on trial for first-degree murder, accused of fatally drugging her.

Defense attorney F. Lee Bailey questioned Helpern about editing the report. Helpern, who admitted adding the word "positive" and eliminating the phrase "it is possible" denied that the alteration changed its meaning.

"It was merely a transposition of sentences," Helpern said. "You imply that I changed the words from negative to positive. (The changes) state more clearly what Umberger did."

The case reached a crucial point yesterday when the prosecution attempted to show Carmela did not die of natural causes.

Hysteria Sweeps Grammar School, 60 Pupils Faint

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — "I've read about things like this, but you have to see it to believe it," said a doctor who rushed to the aid of about 60 Ocean View elementary school students who succumbed to fainting spells yesterday.

Dr. George P. Hand, physician on call for the school, joined 15 police cars, six motorcycles, three fire engine companies and four deputy chiefs' cars which converged on the school when the 9-to-13-year-olds began to pass out.

None of the fainting children was seriously affected, but 38 were treated at hospitals.

The four-hour epidemic was thought at first to have been caused by leaking gas, but that possibility later was ruled out.

Hand said he thought the incident was "simple fainting on the part of a few," followed by "hysteria on the part of many."

"WHERE SERVICE IS A MATTER OF PRIDE"

Deputies Say Major Dope Pusher Jailed

Sheriff's officers closed in on an abandoned shed in Sleepy Hollow yesterday and seized a 31-year-old Fairfax man they described as a "big wheel trafficker in heavy drugs."

Oren Reginald Williams Jr., of 5 Bell Avenue, Fairfax, was booked into Marin County Jail charged with possession and sale of marijuana and sale of dangerous drugs. He was held on $55,000 bail.

Williams was seized in the shed off Butterfield Road after an undercover agent said he purchased 2,000 amphetamine or pep pills worth $500 from him and marijuana worth $200.

The unidentified agent reported Williams also sold him 600 of the pills worth $150 and $150 worth of marijuana Tuesday on a yacht in the San Rafael Yacht harbor. The narcotics bureau provided the yacht.

In a sale Wednesday, the agent said he bought marijuana from Williams worth $250. Williams told him he could deliver up to 100 kilos of marijuana and 40,000 pills, said the agent.

The undercover operation and the stake-out of the shed were conducted by State Narcotics Agent Jesse Foster and sheriff's officers.

LBJ Proves His Diplomacy

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson looked forward to a restful Texas weekend today after clearing the final political hurdle of his Latin America trip.

That last hurdle, strange as it might seem, had nothing directly to do with the hemisphere summit he attended at Punta del Este, Uruguay.

Rather than play favorites, Johnson had his plane refueled in Surnam, Dutch territory that does not have OAS membership.

The 67-minute stop was fitting, in a way. The Dutch acquired Surinam from the British in 1667 in exchange for New York City and the surrounding countryside.

Monkey Trial Issue Revived

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Tennessee's "monkey law," apparently near a quiet death at the hands of the state legislature, sprung to new life yesterday. A teacher was dismissed for teaching the theory of evolution.

Scott

Gary Scott, a 24-year-old graduate of the University of Tennessee, taught his final science class yesterday at Jacksboro High School after the Campbell County Board of Education voted to dismiss him.

The "monkey law," which forbids teaching any theory "that denies the story of the divine creation of man as taught in the Bible," has been virtually dormant since the Scopes monkey trial in 1925.

No one has been prosecuted for violating the law since.

The state house of representatives voted 58-27 Wednesday to repeal the monkey statute after a long, emotional debate. A caged monkey was brought into the house chamber to illustrate the evolution theory during arguments.

Scott has denied all charges that led to his dismissal.

He said the board's action will be challenged in the courts.

Tax Freedom Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Edward J. Gurney wants Congress to authorize President Johnson to proclaim May 5 as "Tax Freedom Day."

Last year, the Florida Republican wanted May 1 proclaimed as the day the average American begins to keep all of his pay.

Gurney said in introducing the joint congressional resolution Friday that he had to move up his original date because taxes now consume another four days of earnings.

HONG KONG (AP) — A demon inside the traffic lights kept flashing red lights at him when he wanted to cross the street, explained a Chinese man arrested for smashing signals in his neighborhood.

"I decided to kill all the signal demons so I could get across the street," he told police, who had been staked out four nights trying to solve the traffic light case.

They said they caught the man as he raised a three-foot iron pipe against a newly installed light in the Tsun Wan Chinese district of this British colony.

Speck heard himself accused in ringing tones of "the most enormous, heinous crime the world has ever known."

A crowd that filled the 70-seat courtroom, including fathers of some of the victims, listened as Murtaugh started a court day that included closing arguments for both sides and instructions to the jury before it retires to deliberate a verdict.

Murtaugh cited testimony by witnesses and said the state has spun "a web of guilt around Richard Speck."

He said the evidence had depicted "the face, the mind, the heart of a murderer."

He pointed at Speck. Speck, a gangling 25-year-old drifter, who was sitting straight up in his chair, moved his jaws in a slight chewing motion and swallowed.

"There he sits," Murtaugh said, "the man responsible for the most enormous, heinous crime this world has ever seen, and I hope to God will never see again."

Both sides rested their cases in the trial Thursday.

Hysteria Sweeps Grammar School, 60 Pupils Faint

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — "I've read about things like this, but you have to see it to believe it," said a doctor who rushed to the aid of about 60 Ocean View elementary school students who succumbed to fainting spells yesterday.

Dr. George P. Hand, physician on call for the school, joined 15 police cars, six motorcycles, three fire engine companies and four deputy chiefs' cars which converged on the school when the 9-to-13-year-olds began to pass out.

None of the fainting children was seriously affected, but 38 were treated at hospitals.

The four-hour epidemic was thought at first to have been caused by leaking gas, but that possibility later was ruled out.

Hand said he thought the incident was "simple fainting on the part of a few," followed by "hysteria on the part of many."

Deputies Say Major Dope Pusher Jailed

Sheriff's officers closed in on an abandoned shed in Sleepy Hollow yesterday and seized a 31-year-old Fairfax man they described as a "big wheel trafficker in heavy drugs."

Oren Reginald Williams Jr., of 5 Bell Avenue, Fairfax, was booked into Marin County Jail charged with possession and sale of marijuana and sale of dangerous drugs. He was held on $55,000 bail.

Williams was seized in the shed off Butterfield Road after an undercover agent said he purchased 2,000 amphetamine or pep pills worth $500 from him and marijuana worth $200.

The unidentified agent reported Williams also sold him 600 of the pills worth $150 and $150 worth of marijuana Tuesday on a yacht in the San Rafael Yacht harbor. The narcotics bureau provided the yacht.

In a sale Wednesday, the agent said he bought marijuana from Williams worth $250. Williams told him he could deliver up to 100 kilos of marijuana and 40,000 pills, said the agent.

The undercover operation and the stake-out of the shed were conducted by State Narcotics Agent Jesse Foster and sheriff's officers.

State Adopts Revolutionary English Texts

LOS ANGELES (AP)— The State Board of Education has approved a $7.9 million textbook acquisition program that includes introduction of the "new English," a change described as more revolutionary than the "new math."

The board adopted the program yesterday after it was recommended by the State Curriculum Commission and strongly endorsed by Max Rafferty, state superintendent of public instruction.

The texts are required for use in California's publicly supported schools and purchase of them makes up one-third of next year's $21 million textbook budget.

Officials say the new approach to English will triple grammar instruction in the first eight grades and coordinate study of basic English skills in the elementary and junior high schools.

Other innovations in the new texts will be a dual base of music instruction, allowing for voice changes through grades seven and eight, and reading texts for grades one and two.

Rafferty added, "The texts are particularly strong on patriotic music.

"We have some grand old songs coming back into schools that have not been there for a while — grand rousing texts, such as 'Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean'."

Speaking on problems of caring for the elderly were County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, president of the Legal Aid Society of Marin, and Marin Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner.

Maloney said there was a bill before the State Assembly creating the Mental Health Act of 1967, which would reduce the role of the courts in committing to institutions and naming guardians of the elderly.

The bill would require counties to form emergency service units, which would combine public and private agencies to provide psychiatric counseling for the elderly.

Maloney said, it would eliminate commitments to institutions of people who were merely elderly and had no other call for institutionalization.

The paint was reported stolen from the car of Jacquelyn Foster at 1212 Idylberry Road after the vandals had gone through the glove compartment.

Glove compartments of cars belonging to Shirley Collins of 11 Mount Tioga Drive and William Scheveler of 6 Mount Tioga were also reported ransacked.

Rising Warplane Losses Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The toll of U.S. planes and helicopters claimed by the Vietnam war is increasing, a Defense Department report indicates.

A Pentagon fact sheet released yesterday forecast that 802 planes and helicopters would be lost in the fiscal year ending June 30.

That would be a 44 per cent increase over the 556 aircraft lost by U.S. forces in Vietnam during the previous 12 months.

A man, aged about 45, knocked on the door of a home in Bolinas at 5:30 a.m. today and told the startled resident: "Please call the sheriff's office or somebody. I don't know who I am or what I'm doing here."

He talked to deputies but was unable to tell them anything about himself or how he got to Bolinas at that time in the morning.

Deputies reported they were satisfied the mystery man was not under the influence of drugs but he was taken to Marin General Hospital for examination.

He was described as six feet tall, weighing 180 pounds and having black eyes and black hair. There was scar tissue on his right calf and a small scar on the back of his left hand.

College Students' Parents May Get Tax Break

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate has approved a special $325 tax credit for most parents with a son or daughter in college, but the proposal may become a House dropout.

The Senate voted 53 to 26 yesterday to tack the measure onto the administration's embattled investment tax credit bill.

The proposal would allow taxpayers earning less than $25,000 a year to deduct up to $325 in costs for each child in college. Parents earning up to $57,500 would be allowed to deduct lesser amounts.

The college tax credit amendment became the second major rider in two days to be attached to the main bill, and that is where the trouble lies.

Proposition Defeat A Worry To Chamber

The San Rafael Chamber of Commerce, bitter and disappointed ove r voter rebuff for more city money, faced the unwelcome task yesterday of becoming self-sufficient.

The group's predicament stems from last Monday's defeat at the polls of a charter amendment to lift the $1,000 ceiling on city expenditure for promotion activity. Customarily, this sum has gone to the chamber.

But the group had sought more than $1,000 annually, and even skirted the charter restriction the last two years by contracting with the city to furnish an "economic survey" for $5,000. With the amendment's defeat, however, chances seem slim the city council would approve such an agreement again.

Moreover, the chamber can not look to the county Board of Supervisors for relief, since the board has said it will give funds only up to the amount matched by the city.

This leaves the chamber's 345 members, begrudging donors in the past, as the principal source of revenue.

Frustrated over the blockade of more city revenue, chamber secretary Jack Alvarado said yesterday the group could not hope to print booklets and maps and send out mail to attract industry and drum up tourist business.

He blamed defeat of the proposition eliminating the promotion fund limit on public "short-sightedness" of chamber contributions to the city. "It's simply a lack of community spirit," he added bitterly.

Said Clifford S. Lund, chamber president: "The loss of the proposition is going to make difficult the job of the City Council to promote the city and virtually make it impossible for the chamber to do the job."

Neither Lund nor Alvarado felt, however, that the chamber's schedule for this year would be affected by the turndown. This includes the "Mission to progress '67" program, encompassing a bus caravan to California missions to promote the 150th anniversary of the Mission San Rafael, a year-long series of business promotions and co-sponsorship of the annual service clubs dinner scheduled for October.

Expanded Christmas decorations will come under the mission program also.

MARCH

Some young people from Berkeley — site of the University of California — identifying themselves as "the Berkeley anti-draft union," sold balloons for 50 cents apiece.

There was a rival enterprise for crowd attention on Fisherman's Wharf — a crab cioppino eating contest and live crab race. Crab cioppino is crab with a savory sauce.

A light shower began falling soon after the parade began. The start was almost an hour later than planned because police had difficulty clearing Market Street traffic.

There were numerous signs. One, without words, was of an American flag with a swastika emblazoned across it.

"I was the dupe of the Democratic Party," read another.

Recruiting Listed For Vietnam Work

Jobs in Vietnam are available at salaries up to $19,000 with the Agency for International Development, according to Edwin W. Ayer, manager of the State Employment Service office in San Rafael.

There is an immediate need, says Ayer, for provincial representatives, management analysts and public administration advisors. Recruitment is being handled at 805 E Street, San Rafael.

Three Marinites Are Called Up

Three Marin County men were drafted into the armed forces in April, Selective Service System Local Board announced today.

None is married, according to the board. They are: Thomas R. Eudy and Glenn Holton of San Anselmo and Gregory L. Zaro of Novato.

Lesson Topic

"Ye shall know that I am in my Father, and ye in me, and I in You." These words of Jesus as given in the gospel of St. John, will open the responsive reading in the Bible lesson on "Docrtine of Atonement," to be read tomorrow in all Christian Science churches.

Bolinas Board Asks For Water

Bolinas Public Utility District has asked the State Water Rights Board for permission to use Pine Gulch Creek, a tributary of Bolinas Lagoon, for municipal, domestic and irrigation water. The application asks for .31 of a cubic foot of water per second.

The district now gets water from Arroya Honda, but is using that stream's entire supply and needs a new source, according to Mrs. Helen Warring, district secretary, who could give no estimate of the added cost.

At last night's meeting the district board discussed but reached no conclusions on the Brown and Caldwell report on proposed $3.7 million sewer line improvement program, Mrs. Warring said.

Morals Charge For Fairfax Man

A 46-year-old Fairfax man was booked into Marin County Jail yesterday charged with the statutory rape of a 15-year-old high school girl.

Sheriff's Deputy John Forsdal reported Daniel O. Parsons of 126 Cypress Drive was found with the girl in a car parked on a fire trail above Marin City.

Parsons, also charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor, was released on $550 bail to appear at Marin Municipal Court Monday at 2 p.m.

Car Clouter Takes Only Chicken Dinner

A chicken dinner was the only reward Thursday night for the thief who left the tonneau cover neatly folded after prying it off Constance Bannet's sports car.

He ignored a purse, a wallet and a transistor radio, according to Mrs. Bannet of 136 Crescent Road, Corte Madera, who had parked in San Rafael at a metered lot on Third and Brooks Streets.

The United States has more registered, pure-bred dogs than any country in the world.

of commerce, planning department, assessor's office, supervisors, public and mental health services, courts and legal staff.

Speaking on problems of caring for the elderly were County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, president of the Legal Aid Society of Marin, and Marin Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner.

Maloney said there was a bill before the State Assembly creating the Mental Health Act of 1967, which would reduce the role of the courts in committing to institutions and naming guardians of the elderly.

The bill would require counties to form emergency service units, which would combine public and private agencies to provide psychiatric counseling for the elderly.

Annabelle Wasserman of 16 Mount Tioga Drive said an $80 tape recorder and $120 camera were stolen from a car in the garage of her home.

The recorder's remains were found at the corner of Mount Tioga and Idylberry, where a can of charcoal lighter fuel had been poured over it and set on fire.

The glove compartment of the car of Alice P. Thomas at 1204 Idylberry Road, was ransacked and a can of touch-up paint poured over the front seat.

The paint was reported stolen from the car of Jacquelyn Foster at 1212 Idylberry Road after the vandals had gone through the glove compartment.

Glove compartments of cars belonging to Shirley Collins of 11 Mount Tioga Drive and William Scheveler of 6 Mount Tioga were also reported ransacked.

Rising Warplane Losses Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The toll of U.S. planes and helicopters claimed by the Vietnam war is increasing, a Defense Department report indicates.

A Pentagon fact sheet released yesterday forecast that 802 planes and helicopters would be lost in the fiscal year ending June 30.

That would be a 44 per cent increase over the 556 aircraft lost by U.S. forces in Vietnam during the previous 12 months.

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California State Employees Association will ask that seniority be used in determining which of about 2,600 mental health workers are dismissed in Gov. Ronald Reagan's economy drive.

"Who am I?"

Amnesia Victim In Bolinas

A man, aged about 45, knocked on the door of a home in Bolinas at 5:30 a.m. today and told the startled resident: "Please call the sheriff's office or somebody. I don't know who I am or what I'm doing here."

He talked to deputies but was unable to tell them anything about himself or how he got to Bolinas at that time in the morning.

Deputies reported they were satisfied the mystery man was not under the influence of drugs but he was taken to Marin General Hospital for examination.

He was described as six feet tall, weighing 180 pounds and having black eyes and black hair. There was scar tissue on his right calf and a small scar on the back of his left hand.

College Students' Parents May Get Tax Break

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate has approved a special $325 tax credit for most parents with a son or daughter in college, but the proposal may become a House dropout.

The Senate voted 53 to 26 yesterday to tack the measure onto the administration's embattled investment tax credit bill.

The proposal would allow taxpayers earning less than $25,000 a year to deduct up to $325 in costs for each child in college. Parents earning up to $57,500 would be allowed to deduct lesser amounts.

The college tax credit amendment became the second major rider in two days to be attached to the main bill, and that is where the trouble lies.

Proposition Defeat A Worry To Chamber

The San Rafael Chamber of Commerce, bitter and disappointed ove r voter rebuff for more city money, faced the unwelcome task yesterday of becoming self-sufficient.

The group's predicament stems from last Monday's defeat at the polls of a charter amendment to lift the $1,000 ceiling on city expenditure for promotion activity. Customarily, this sum has gone to the chamber.

But the group had sought more than $1,000 annually, and even skirted the charter restriction the last two years by contracting with the city to furnish an "economic survey" for $5,000. With the amendment's defeat, however, chances seem slim the city council would approve such an agreement again.

Moreover, the chamber can not look to the county Board of Supervisors for relief, since the board has said it will give funds only up to the amount matched by the city.

This leaves the chamber's 345 members, begrudging donors in the past, as the principal source of revenue.

Frustrated over the blockade of more city revenue, chamber secretary Jack Alvarado said yesterday the group could not hope to print booklets and maps and send out mail to attract industry and drum up tourist business.

He blamed defeat of the proposition eliminating the promotion fund limit on public "short-sightedness" of chamber contributions to the city. "It's simply a lack of community spirit," he added bitterly.

Said Clifford S. Lund, chamber president: "The loss of the proposition is going to make difficult the job of the City Council to promote the city and virtually make it impossible for the chamber to do the job."

Neither Lund nor Alvarado felt, however, that the chamber's schedule for this year would be affected by the turndown. This includes the "Mission to progress '67" program, encompassing a bus caravan to California missions to promote the 150th anniversary of the Mission San Rafael, a year-long series of business promotions and co-sponsorship of the annual service clubs dinner scheduled for October.

Expanded Christmas decorations will come under the mission program also.

MARCH

you bombing with me, Jesus?"

Some young people from Berkeley — site of the University of California — identifying themselves as "the Berkeley anti-draft union," sold balloons for 50 cents apiece.

There was a rival enterprise for crowd attention on Fisherman's Wharf — a crab cioppino eating contest and live crab race. Crab cioppino is crab with a savory sauce.

A light shower began falling soon after the parade began. The start was almost an hour later than planned because police had difficulty clearing Market Street traffic.

There were numerous signs. One, without words, was of an American flag with a swastika emblazoned across it.

"I was the dupe of the Democratic Party," read another.

The marchers had slow going. It required almost a half hour to cover the first quarter of a mile.

"Ye shall know that I am in my Father, and ye in me, and I in You." These words of Jesus as given in the gospel of St. John, will open the responsive reading in the Bible lesson on "Docrtine of Atonement," to be read tomorrow in all Christian Science churches.

Bolinas Board Asks For Water

Bolinas Public Utility District has asked the State Water Rights Board for permission to use Pine Gulch Creek, a tributary of Bolinas Lagoon, for municipal, domestic and irrigation water. The application asks for .31 of a cubic foot of water per second.

The district now gets water from Arroya Honda, but is using that stream's entire supply and needs a new source, according to Mrs. Helen Warring, district secretary, who could give no estimate of the added cost.

At last night's meeting the district board discussed but reached no conclusions on the Brown and Caldwell report on proposed $3.7 million sewer line improvement program, Mrs. Warring said.

Morals Charge For Fairfax Man

A 46-year-old Fairfax man was booked into Marin County Jail yesterday charged with the statutory rape of a 15-year-old high school girl.

Sheriff's Deputy John Forsdal reported Daniel O. Parsons of 126 Cypress Drive was found with the girl in a car parked on a fire trail above Marin City.

Parsons, also charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor, was released on $550 bail to appear at Marin Municipal Court Monday at 2 p.m.

Sleeves Take The Most Skill In Making Your Own Clothes

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE FARMER:

What happens to the carefully shaped sleeve in a suit when it has been dry cleaned? Why should you have extra ease in the sleeve? I always thought the purpose of the gathering threads was to make the sleeve fit the armhole exactly.

Mrs. M.M.B.

DEAR MRS. M.M.B.

Sleeves possibly take more skill than any other part of your garment. I have learned so much about sleeves from professional tailors and try to teach my students the same metholds with great success.

The two rows of stitching at the cap of the sleeves (with regular length stitch) help pull up a little of the ease and make it easier to work in (for us non-professionals). You must be sure, however, before pinning the sleeve in, that the sleeve is almost 2 inches larger than the armhole.

As you pin from the inside of the sleeve, holding over your fingers in an outer curve, this extra ease will all work in nicely. If you pull the gathers up too tight, the sleeve won't fit.

As to the dry cleaners, they use a method of steam pressing that retains the original shaping and won't ruin it. I'm sure all of you would benefit greatly by my step by step instructions called "All About Sleeves." Send 10 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

I am 18 years old and knit and sew all of my clothes. To save time, I often pin my pattern to fabric, and my mother cuts it for me.

When I want to cut garment larger than the pattern, I place the pins across the cutting line at each end so she won't forget. She thinks the idea is worth passing along, since she would forget and cut on cutting line on her own patterns after measuring and allowing. (Mothers are like that). This way she never forgets cause she can't cut through pins.

DEAR EUNICE FARMER,

I'm not very thin, but not heavy either, and need some darting at the waistline to give my clothes a more becoming line. A new pattern I am making has the entire dress cut on the bias and not even a bust dart. How can I make this dress fit me?

MRS. C.P.

DEAR MRS. C.P.,

I think all of us should examine a pattern a little closer before choosing it. The reason your pattern has no darts is because when it is cut on the bias, it will mold to your figure closer, eliminating the extra fitting achieved by darts.

If your figure is anything but boyish, you probably won't like this cut on yourself. If you have a full bust, it will never be flattering on you because it will pull out of shape.

The same thing applies to a full hip; the bias skirt will stretch out at the hips and then spring back in below the hips exaggerating this measurement. A final warning: Beware of bias cut garments unless you are pencil slim.

WHO'S AFRAID OF OSCAR?

DRAMA REVIEW

A Pre-War Anti-War Polemic

By KARL BARRON

SAN FRANCISCO — Bertolt Brecht's "Mother Courage And Her Children", the current production at the Playhouse, Beach and Hyde Streets, conveys the German playwright's polemic with moments of intensely touching humanity and touches of brutal realism, despite a somewhat see-saw pace.

It is playing Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30.

The pace is not the fault of director David Lindeman, but of Brechts demanding script, written in 1939 for the revolving stage of the Berliner Ensemble. Lindeman has done a fantastic job of keeping things moving on the small stage, but scene changes tend to drop the tension. They are kept from boredom by the excellent work of Raul Matute's strident piano, clanging out the harsh music of Paul Dessau.

Mother Courage is an itinerant merchant, living off the troops of both sides in the Thirty Years' War, who attempts to keep her family intact and preserve her wagon of goods, the symbol as well as the means of their survival. In the end, alone, she is still unaware of the central truth: that she, because she lives off war, is partly responsible for the death of her family.

Epitomizing her attitude and and that of the war profiteer, is her reaction "Don't tell me peace has broken out when I've bought all these supplies!" And in the recurring song of Mother Courage, Brecht's call to humanity rings out with the words "Let all of you who still survive, get out of bed and look alive!"

In the singing Lindeman has failed to draw true Brechtian quality from his otherwise competent cast. They seldom, except in full chorus, come up with the knife-like incisiveness needed to chop down the defenses of the audience.

The outstanding perforance of the show comes from Evan Walker as Katrin, the mute girl. Never uttering more than a bleating attempt to communicate, Miss Walker is tremendously involved and completely convincing.

Carol Campbell's Mother Courage could become the towering figure she must be if the actress would eliminate her bodily effort to achieve age. Awkward use of her hands and arms is distracting. Ootherwise, she has many fine qualities and her strident songs are effective.

Fine supporting work comes from Allan Sheehan, Dwight Cocke, Richard J. Peterson, Fred Key, Keith Reagan, Samuel Hitchcock and from Catherine genious and his special films at Coulson as Yvette, the camp-followers.

Landeman's set design is inbeginning and end very striking. Samuel Riordan's wagon is a masterpiece of realism. Carol Riordan's costumes lend great authenticity.

Fish Tank Exhibit

A fish tank built to hold schools of fish will be among the items on display when the Alpha-Bet School, 1509 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo, holds a "Schools Week" open house for parents Thursday from 6 to 8 p.m.

Snack Shop Request On Tiburon Agenda

Tiburon Board of Adjustments will consider on Monday granting a use permit to Milton McDonogh to establish and operate a snack bar for his ferry customers on the Angel Island ferry dock off Main Street. The board meets at 8 p.m. at City Hall.

If approval is given, the snack bar will then be considered for architectural approval Tuesday when the board of design review meets.

DRAMA REVIEW

A Pre-War Anti-War Polemic

By KARL BARRON

SAN FRANCISCO — Bertolt Brecht's "Mother Courage And Her Children", the current production at the Playhouse, Beach and Hyde Streets, conveys the German playwright's polemic with moments of intensely touching humanity and touches of brutal realism, despite a somewhat see-saw pace.

It is playing Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30.

The pace is not the fault of director David Lindeman, but of Brechts demanding script, written in 1939 for the revolving stage of the Berliner Ensemble. Lindeman has done a fantastic job of keeping things moving on the small stage, but scene changes tend to drop the tension. They are kept from boredom by the excellent work of Raul Matute's strident piano, clanging out the harsh music of Paul Dessau.

Mother Courage is an itinerant merchant, living off the troops of both sides in the Thirty Years' War, who attempts to keep her family intact and preserve her wagon of goods, the symbol as well as the means of their survival. In the end, alone, she is still unaware of the central truth: that she, because she lives off war, is partly responsible for the death of her family.

Epitomizing her attitude and and that of the war profiteer, is her reaction "Don't tell me peace has broken out when I've bought all these supplies!" And in the recurring song of Mother Courage, Brecht's call to humanity rings out with the words "Let all of you who still survive, get out of bed and look alive!"

In the singing Lindeman has failed to draw true Brechtian quality from his otherwise competent cast. They seldom, except in full chorus, come up with the knife-like incisiveness needed to chop down the defenses of the audience.

The outstanding perforance of the show comes from Evan Walker as Katrin, the mute girl. Never uttering more than a bleating attempt to communicate, Miss Walker is tremendously involved and completely convincing.

Carol Campbell's Mother Courage could become the towering figure she must be if the actress would eliminate her bodily effort to achieve age. Awkward use of her hands and arms is distracting. Ootherwise, she has many fine qualities and her strident songs are effective.

Fine supporting work comes from Allan Sheehan, Dwight Cocke, Richard J. Peterson, Fred Key, Keith Reagan, Samuel Hitchcock and from Catherine genious and his special films at Coulson as Yvette, the camp-followers.

Landeman's set design is inbeginning and end very striking. Samuel Riordan's wagon is a masterpiece of realism. Carol Riordan's costumes lend great authenticity.

WHO'S AFRAID OF OSCAR?

Fish Tank Exhibit

A fish tank built to hold schools of fish will be among the items on display when the Alpha-Bet School, 1509 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo, holds a "Schools Week" open house for parents Thursday from 6 to 8 p.m.

Snack Shop Request On Tiburon Agenda

Tiburon Board of Adjustments will consider on Monday granting a use permit to Milton McDonogh to establish and operate a snack bar for his ferry customers on the Angel Island ferry dock off Main Street. The board meets at 8 p.m. at City Hall.

If approval is given, the snack bar will then be considered for architectural approval Tuesday when the board of design review meets.

Bay's Beauty Is Water Fog, Land And Air

San Francisco opens its Golden Gate to the warm splendor of the setting sun, painting a canvas so breathtakingly beautiful it never ceases to win the hearts of visitors from around the world. A submarine, tug-and-barges and pleasure boat etch patterns on the cool waters of the bay, already ruffled by a gentle wind. The dark shape of the Tiburon-Belvedere Peninsula, right, pushes out into the bay towards Angel Island where a lone light warns mariners of the dangers of the night. As a backdrop, a low-lying mist drifts in from the ocean towards the Golden Gate Bridge as if to hide from view the scurrying, home-going commute traffic. San Rafael Vote Winners To Take Oaths On Monday

San Rafael City Council freshman John A. Miskimen will be sworn in and take his seat for the first time at Monday's meeting of the council at 8 p.m. in the city hall.

Although Miskimen is the only new face around after Tuesday's municipal elections, re-elected 12 - year - veteran Councilman Fred E. Jensen and officials re-elected unopposed will be sworn in for a new term.

As requested earlier by the council, a report on the sanitary and storm sewer situation in the city will be given. The public works department is recommending allocating money for the appointment of consultants for a full-scale report.

The department will also report on slides in the area following recent heavy rains together with an estimate of the cost of road repairs.

A request will be made to the council to do something about the remains of an old mansion converted to apartments at 1364 Grand Avenue, gutted by fire.

Preliminary plans will be presented for improvement of Fourth Street from Marquard Avenue to Greenfield Avenue, and councilmen will discuss a moratorium on signs along Canal Street.

A hearing date is expected to be set for an appeal involving a use permit for Montessori School at 1428 Mission Avenue.

Grandfather Set For Space Trip

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Wehrner von Braun says space travel will be restful and enjoyable and will even be for "grandfathers like myself."

The pioneer space scientist said within three years man will have made a roundtrip to the moon and in the future will travel to Venus and Mars, settling there in capsule atmospheres.

The rocket specialist told the Commonwealth Club yesterday that the space effort would be valuable even if man never reached the moon. He said advances in transistors, computers, communication satellites, lightweight plastics and new metals have been by-products of the space effort.

Aircraft Worker Sentenced To Gas Chamber

LOS ANGELES (AP)— A superior court jury has condemned to death aircraft worker Robert Emmett Thornton, 26, convicted of kidnap and rape.

The sentence yesterday followed a penalty trial by the same jury that previously convicted Thornton of a series of crimes against women.

Attorneys for the prosecution said Thornton preyed on women in shopping centers, kidnaping them in their cars and attacking them.

The death penalty came from the alleged robbery, kidnap and rape of a 45-year-old South San Gabriel housewife, abducted from a shopping center at gunpoint.

Additionally, the jury voted a life sentence, without possibility of parole, on another charge involving the same offenses, in which an 18-year-old girl was abducted from a Downey shopping center.

Thornton, a resident of Bellflower, has also been convicted of two counts of robbery, three counts of sex perversion and one count of kidnaping in another case.

Arguments for a new trial and formal sentencing were set for May 5.

Gate Span Has More Traffic

Traffic on the Golden Gate Bridge in March was 7.7 per cent over the same month in 1966, General Manager James Adam told bridge directors yesterday.

Last month's total was 2,364-032, up 5,451 cars. The daily average was 76,259 vehicles.

Director Dan London asked for a meeting with the San Francisco Board of Supervisors to explain why bridge officials want a second deck. Engineering plans for the deck have been delayed since fall because the supervisors' streets committee wants to hold hearings on the matter.

Some 74 billion glass bottles and jars — more than any other type of rigid container — "go to market" each year.

Base Mothers Selling Books For Library

More than 350 juvenile books will be on display at the fair, said Mrs. John Godsey, book committee chairman.

The prospective buyers will be encouraged to purchase a book for the base library. They will also have the chance to buy books for their own libraries, she said.

Books may be ordered as well as purchased, but all must remain on display until the end of the fair, Mrs. Godsey said.

There are approximately 2,000 children's and juvenile books at the base library, but requests sometimes exceed that, said Mrs. James Coleman, base librarian.

MARC Talk Slated

Dr. Joseph O'Neill, superintendent and medical director of Sonoma State Hospital, will address Marin Aid to Retarded Children at 8:00 p.m. on Monday, April 17, at a public meeting in the planning chambers at Civic Center.

NAMED AIRMAN—A/2C Gerald W. De Rosa of 1713 Lincoln Avenue, Apt. 22, San Rafael, has been named Airman of the Month with the 348th Military Airlift Wing at Hamilton Air Force Base. Airman De Rosa, a graduate of Marin Catholic High School, is a painter and decorator in civilian life.

Anti-Napalm Picket Draws Jail, Fine

Karen Barbena, 33, of Kentfield, was one of five anti-Vietnam war demonstrators sentenced to 15 days in jail and fined $166 yesterday in Concord Municipal Court for blocking napalm trucks at the Naval Weapons Station at Port Chicago last August.

Student Art Show On Monday

The annual art show of all of the Novato schools will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Monday through Friday at the girls' gymnasium at Novato High School.

There will be hundreds of paintings from kindergarten through the 12th grades, with some of the work of the teachers also on exhibit.

All of the classes in the district will be taken to the exhibit. Each class will be given 45 minutes to view the show.

Base Mothers Selling Books For Library

More than 350 juvenile books will be on display at the fair, said Mrs. John Godsey, book committee chairman.

The prospective buyers will be encouraged to purchase a book for the base library. They will also have the chance to buy books for their own libraries, she said.

Books may be ordered as well as purchased, but all must remain on display until the end of the fair, Mrs. Godsey said.

There are approximately 2,000 children's and juvenile books at the base library, but requests sometimes exceed that, said Mrs. James Coleman, base librarian.

MARC Talk Slated

Dr. Joseph O'Neill, superintendent and medical director of Sonoma State Hospital, will address Marin Aid to Retarded Children at 8:00 p.m. on Monday, April 17, at a public meeting in the planning chambers at Civic Center.

NAMED AIRMAN—A/2C Gerald W. De Rosa of 1713 Lincoln Avenue, Apt. 22, San Rafael, has been named Airman of the Month with the 348th Military Airlift Wing at Hamilton Air Force Base. Airman De Rosa, a graduate of Marin Catholic High School, is a painter and decorator in civilian life.

Anti-Napalm Picket Draws Jail, Fine

Karen Barbena, 33, of Kentfield, was one of five anti-Vietnam war demonstrators sentenced to 15 days in jail and fined $166 yesterday in Concord Municipal Court for blocking napalm trucks at the Naval Weapons Station at Port Chicago last August.

Student Art Show On Monday

The annual art show of all of the Novato schools will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Monday through Friday at the girls' gymnasium at Novato High School.

There will be hundreds of paintings from kindergarten through the 12th grades, with some of the work of the teachers also on exhibit.

San Rafael Vote Winners To Take Oaths On Monday

San Rafael City Council freshman John A. Miskimen will be sworn in and take his seat for the first time at Monday's meeting of the council at 8 p.m. in the city hall.

Although Miskimen is the only new face around after Tuesday's municipal elections, re-elected 12 - year - veteran Councilman Fred E. Jensen and officials re-elected unopposed will be sworn in for a new term.

As requested earlier by the council, a report on the sanitary and storm sewer situation in the city will be given. The public works department is recommending allocating money for the appointment of consultants for a full-scale report.

The department will also report on slides in the area following recent heavy rains together with an estimate of the cost of road repairs.

A request will be made to the council to do something about the remains of an old mansion converted to apartments at 1364 Grand Avenue, gutted by fire.

Preliminary plans will be presented for improvement of Fourth Street from Marquard Avenue to Greenfield Avenue, and councilmen will discuss a moratorium on signs along Canal Street.

A hearing date is expected to be set for an appeal involving a use permit for Montessori School at 1428 Mission Avenue.

Gate Span Has More Traffic

Traffic on the Golden Gate Bridge in March was 7.7 per cent over the same month in 1966, General Manager James Adam told bridge directors yesterday.

Last month's total was 2,364-032, up 5,451 cars. The daily average was 76,259 vehicles.

Director Dan London asked for a meeting with the San Francisco Board of Supervisors to explain why bridge officials want a second deck. Engineering plans for the deck have been delayed since fall because the supervisors' streets committee wants to hold hearings on the matter.

Some 74 billion glass bottles and jars — more than any other type of rigid container — "go to market" each year.

Aircraft Worker Sentenced To Gas Chamber

LOS ANGELES (AP)— A superior court jury has condemned to death aircraft worker Robert Emmett Thornton, 26, convicted of kidnap and rape.

The sentence yesterday followed a penalty trial by the same jury that previously convicted Thornton of a series of crimes against women.

Attorneys for the prosecution said Thornton preyed on women in shopping centers, kidnaping them in their cars and attacking them.

The death penalty came from the alleged robbery, kidnap and rape of a 45-year-old South San Gabriel housewife, abducted from a shopping center at gunpoint.

Additionally, the jury voted a life sentence, without possibility of parole, on another charge involving the same offenses, in which an 18-year-old girl was abducted from a Downey shopping center.

Thornton, a resident of Bellflower, has also been convicted of two counts of robbery, three counts of sex perversion and one count of kidnaping in another case.

Arguments for a new trial and formal sentencing were set for May 5.

Grandfather Set For Space Trip

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Wehrner von Braun says space travel will be restful and enjoyable and will even be for "grandfathers like myself."

The pioneer space scientist said within three years man will have made a roundtrip to the moon and in the future will travel to Venus and Mars, settling there in capsule atmospheres.

The rocket specialist told the Commonwealth Club yesterday that the space effort would be valuable even if man never reached the moon. He said advances in transistors, computers, communication satellites, lightweight plastics and new metals have been by-products of the space effort.

LIFE INS. AGENTS & SUPERVISORS
This is not the run of the mill type of employment opportunity. We differ in type of benefits— method of approach — amount of earnings & ease of selling. We have just introduced a financing plan where the agent receives not only compensation for his own business but overrides & renewals on others. Supervisors receive double overrides plus the renewals mentioned above. There is really so much we have to tell you that we know you will be interested. You owe it to yourself to find out just how good an opportunity this is. Phone for appointment.

Marin's Best-seller on current events

You can learn a lot that's not in the books from your daily I-J. Unlike a text, it presents the texture of living events . . . the here and now of history drawn from the most exciting library – the world itself.

Each day, hundreds of news stories and articles bring you the mental stimulation of WHAT HAPPENED, where, how and why. Combined, they bring you perspective; they help you form judgements, enable you to act in an informed manner on public affairs.

And the range and scale is immense: From a new view of Rhodesia to a new bargain on chairs at your favorite store.

With the I-J you're not merely "taking the paper," you're subscribing to a liberal education provided you read and think. All yours at a price which even includes personal delivery to your door.

Everyone's Reading Marin's Best-seller

CONCERT REVIEW

Gifted Artists Bring Joy Through Mozart

By MAYBELLE SPECKMAN

SAN FRANCISCO —No one can surpass Mozart for pure, absolute music, especially when it is some of his best, directed by a specialist in his works and highlighted by two gifted artists as soloists.

This was proved again last night at the Opera House in an all-Mozart concert of the San Francisco Symphony Chamber Orchestra directed by Josef Kripps and featuring concertmaster Jacob Krachmalnick and first violist Rolf Persinger — the latter a resident of Tiburon.

Performed were the two great last symphonies that marked the acme of Mozart's powers as a symphonic composer, the Symphony No. 40 in G Minor, K550, and Symphony No. 41 in C Major, K551, Jupiter and the Sinfonia Concertante in E Flat Major for violin, viola and orchestra, K364.

HALL TOO LARGE

There was ample justification for performance of these works by a chamber orchestra of this size —composed as it was of some 35 members of the full San Francisco Symphony — since this was the approximate size of the orchestras for which Mozart wrote his symphonies. But they were written for a much smaller hall or chamber than the Opera House.

However, what was lost for this reason in electrifying sonority was compensated for in great refinement of tone, precision and sharp focus of strings as well as the smaller number of woodwind and brass instruments, which had an unusually mellow sound.

Most interesting to us was the sinfonia because of the great artistry of Krachmalnick and Persinger and because it was not so familiar as the symphonies.

It is not often one gets to hear the viola in solo. Frequently dark and somber, it was given a brilliance capable of balancing the violin's by the Scoraduta tuning in which the viola strings are tuned a semitone higher than usual.

SOLOISTS MATCHED

Two more perfectly matched soloists would be difficult to find, though they appear to differ in temperament. Krachmalnick's playing gave the impression of cool technical mastery, though it was not lacking in expressive sensitivity. But Persinger, while an equally flawless technicain, seemed more deeply involved with the music. His tone had great warmth throughout the range of his instrument.

It is interesting to note that Persinger is now making a name for himself in the same orchestra for which his father, the noted violin teacher Louis Persinger, was concertmaster for a number of years when the family lived in Marin.

Both of the symphonies were given finely polished readings. It was particularly fascinating to compare the performance of the Jupiter symphony with that given by the Marin Symphony when it was performed as the final in its closing concert of the season last Sunday.

The San Francisco chamber group's interpretation was perhaps lighter and livelier in mood and more finely honed, but the Marin symphony's had more body.

Execution Date Sparks Vigil Plans

Plans for protest vigils at San Quentin next week against the execution of Daniel A. Roberts have been announced by two San Francisco groups.

Roberts, 44, will die in the gas chamber at 10 a.m. Tuesday unless last minute appeals or legal actions are successful. Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday postponed until Monday a decision on clemency for Roberts, who was convicted of strangling his San Francisco landlady during a 1962 robbery attempt.

The protest groups are the Citizens Committee to Abolish Capital Punishment, a group of four secretaries, and an untitled committee of Methodist clergymen and Negro leaders led by psychiatrist Price Cobbs. The vigil is to start Monday evening at San Quentin's main gate. Phone campaigns are organizing support for the vigils.

Reagan's assistant press secretary, Paul Beck, said the governor wanted more information on the case before making a clemency decision.

Reagan Faces TV Appearance, A Busy Week

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Son of a gun!

Gov. Ronald Reagan will appear briefly Monday night on the Los Angeles-based Joey Bishop Show, whose master of ceremonies uses the above expression, according to the governor's newly released weekly schedule.

Tuesday afternoon he'll go out to the ball game, watching the San Francisco Giants at home against the St. Louis Cardinals, and taking along four Republicans and one Democrat as fellow rooters.

The Democrat — a major legislative opponent — is scheduled to be Jesse Unruh, speaker of the Assembly. The Republicans are Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch, Assemblymen Don Mulford and Robert T. Monagan, and Sen. John F. McCarthy.

Business will include a Riverside meeting Thursday and Friday of the University of California regents.

Kentfield Schools Plan Open House

Open house programs will be held in the Kentfield school district next week. Each will last from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

The Adaline E. Kent School will be open Tuesday evening and the Wolfe Grade School and Greenbrae School will be open Wednesday and Thursday evening, respectively.

Soviet Fishing Fleet Offshore

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Another fleet of Russian fishing vessels has been reported off the California coast.

The Coast Guard said about 20 ships were some 50 miles south of here off the Santa Cruz area last night outside the 12-mile American fishing zone.

The State Fish and Game Department said the Russians probably came down from waters off Washington and are catching rock fish and hake.

More Hearing Due On Teacher Mini-Skirt Row

CONCORD (AP)—A pretty 32-year-old English teacher—fighting to retain her job in the face of charges including wearing a miniskirt — will testify in her own defense next month.

A special hearing officer recessed proceedings until May 16 after one day of testimony in the hearing for Mrs. Nancy McGlone, teacher at Pacifica High School in Pittsburg.

Mrs. McGlone wore a brown and gold dress which came to just above her kneecaps when she stood.

She said the charges were whipped up because of her teachers union activity. Her husband, Howard, is president of the American Federation of Teachers group at Vallejo, where they live.

College Grad Draft Urged By Minority

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Former White House Press Secretary George Reedy says college undergraduates should continue to receive draft deferments but graduate exemptions should be granted only to students attending medical schools.

Reedy, a member of President Johnson's draft advisory commission, made his views known yesterday in a minority report to the Senate Armed Services Committee.

The presidential commission, headed by former Assistant Atty. Gen. Burke Marshall, recommended that all student deferments be eliminated.

Reedy told the panel the college deferment is equitable, but the pyramiding of deferments for graduate school, fatherhood and work in essential jobs is not fair.

He said students should be deferred until they receive an undergraduate degree or reach the age of 24 or 25, and then be placed in the same manpower pool as the 19-year-olds who would be drafted first under the commission's proposal.

This would make the college graduate as liable to the draft as the young man who does not attend college, Reedy said.

He told the panel that if college men were no longer subject to the draft, the armed forces would find it difficult to recruit a sufficient number of officers.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Getting Fat Usually Comes By Degrees As Age Advances

VAN DELLEN

The cause of obesity varies from persons to person. Today psychological factors are stressed but after all, most of us are bothered by some emotional problem. Feelings of insecurity, self-pity, and frustration are common and, in my experience, usually lead to a loss of appetite.

If the source is not psychological, what makes people overeat? Many come from or marry into a family where the plates are heaped high and criticism follows unless every morsel is consumed. As more and more weight is gained, the accumulated fat must be fed and any attempt to curtail the intake leaves the person hungry. Others put on weight during the inactivity associated with convalescence from an illness or fail to get back into shape after pregnancy.

AS A RULE, however, most "fatties" get that way by degrees. It becomes a habit to eat a little more of this or that and a gain of one-half pound every month or so is not disturbing. By the end of the year they are 5 or 6 pounds heavier and the next year, 10, and the next, 15. Suddenly their suit or girdle size is in the heavyweight class; the process has been so insidious they hardly noticed it or it is blamed on middle age spread.

Gradual weight gain means that the individual is eating or drinking just a little more than he needs. The "little more" usually is sugar, fat, or alcohol. The remedy does not require a fancy diet, food supplements, 4-mile hikes daily, rowing machines, or appetite reducers. The best bet is to eat the same foods but less of them and to substitute low calorie items.

ANOTHER PLAN is to cut down on the "little" pound increasers such as the extra spoonful of sugar, the fat on meat, gravy, potatoes, and rich-salad dressings. By eliminating these extras, many individuals are able to keep in trim. The same can be said of cocktails which contain many more calories than the bread and potatoes so often passed up by the overweight.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

STANDING WEAKNESS

Mrs. C. writes: What makes a woman feel weak when she stops to talk with someone on the street or in the grocery store?

REPLY

While carrying a large sack of groceries? Standing too long in one position makes some persons feel weak or faint because of the effect of gravity-on the circulating fluids of the body. In nonscientific language, "The blood tends to leave the head and settle in the feet."

DIM VIEW

Mrs. T. B. A. writes: Why is it that the gall baldder does not always show up in X-rays?

REPLY

Before X-rays of the gall bladder are taken, the patient is given a dye, which passes like bile through the liver and enters the gall bladder. If the gall bladder is abnormal or harbor-stones, however, the dye does not reach it and the organ is not visualized under the X-ray.

CONCERT REVIEW

Gifted Artists Bring Joy Through Mozart

By MAYBELLE SPECKMAN

SAN FRANCISCO —No one can surpass Mozart for pure, absolute music, especially when it is some of his best, directed by a specialist in his works and highlighted by two gifted artists as soloists.

This was proved again last night at the Opera House in an all-Mozart concert of the San Francisco Symphony Chamber Orchestra directed by Josef Kripps and featuring concertmaster Jacob Krachmalnick and first violist Rolf Persinger — the latter a resident of Tiburon.

Performed were the two great last symphonies that marked the acme of Mozart's powers as a symphonic composer, the Symphony No. 40 in G Minor, K550, and Symphony No. 41 in C Major, K551, Jupiter and the Sinfonia Concertante in E Flat Major for violin, viola and orchestra, K364.

HALL TOO LARGE

There was ample justification for performance of these works by a chamber orchestra of this size —composed as it was of some 35 members of the full San Francisco Symphony — since this was the approximate size of the orchestras for which Mozart wrote his symphonies. But they were written for a much smaller hall or chamber than the Opera House.

However, what was lost for this reason in electrifying sonority was compensated for in great refinement of tone, precision and sharp focus of strings as well as the smaller number of woodwind and brass instruments, which had an unusually mellow sound.

Most interesting to us was the sinfonia because of the great artistry of Krachmalnick and Persinger and because it was not so familiar as the symphonies.

It is not often one gets to hear the viola in solo. Frequently dark and somber, it was given a brilliance capable of balancing the violin's by the Scoraduta tuning in which the viola strings are tuned a semitone higher than usual.

SOLOISTS MATCHED

Two more perfectly matched soloists would be difficult to find, though they appear to differ in temperament. Krachmalnick's playing gave the impression of cool technical mastery, though it was not lacking in expressive sensitivity. But Persinger, while an equally flawless technicain, seemed more deeply involved with the music. His tone had great warmth throughout the range of his instrument.

It is interesting to note that Persinger is now making a name for himself in the same orchestra for which his father, the noted violin teacher Louis Persinger, was concertmaster for a number of years when the family lived in Marin.

Both of the symphonies were given finely polished readings. It was particularly fascinating to compare the performance of the Jupiter symphony with that given by the Marin Symphony when it was performed as the final in its closing concert of the season last Sunday.

The San Francisco chamber group's interpretation was perhaps lighter and livelier in mood and more finely honed, but the Marin symphony's had more body.

Execution Date Sparks Vigil Plans

Plans for protest vigils at San Quentin next week against the execution of Daniel A. Roberts have been announced by two San Francisco groups.

Roberts, 44, will die in the gas chamber at 10 a.m. Tuesday unless last minute appeals or legal actions are successful. Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday postponed until Monday a decision on clemency for Roberts, who was convicted of strangling his San Francisco landlady during a 1962 robbery attempt.

The protest groups are the Citizens Committee to Abolish Capital Punishment, a group of four secretaries, and an untitled committee of Methodist clergymen and Negro leaders led by psychiatrist Price Cobbs. The vigil is to start Monday evening at San Quentin's main gate. Phone campaigns are organizing support for the vigils.

Reagan's assistant press secretary, Paul Beck, said the governor wanted more information on the case before making a clemency decision.

Reagan Faces TV Appearance, A Busy Week

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Son of a gun!

Gov. Ronald Reagan will appear briefly Monday night on the Los Angeles-based Joey Bishop Show, whose master of ceremonies uses the above expression, according to the governor's newly released weekly schedule.

Tuesday afternoon he'll go out to the ball game, watching the San Francisco Giants at home against the St. Louis Cardinals, and taking along four Republicans and one Democrat as fellow rooters.

The Democrat — a major legislative opponent — is scheduled to be Jesse Unruh, speaker of the Assembly. The Republicans are Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch, Assemblymen Don Mulford and Robert T. Monagan, and Sen. John F. McCarthy.

Business will include a Riverside meeting Thursday and Friday of the University of California regents.

Kentfield Schools Plan Open House

Open house programs will be held in the Kentfield school district next week. Each will last from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

The Adaline E. Kent School will be open Tuesday evening and the Wolfe Grade School and Greenbrae School will be open Wednesday and Thursday evening, respectively.

Soviet Fishing Fleet Offshore

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Another fleet of Russian fishing vessels has been reported off the California coast.

The Coast Guard said about 20 ships were some 50 miles south of here off the Santa Cruz area last night outside the 12-mile American fishing zone.

The State Fish and Game Department said the Russians probably came down from waters off Washington and are catching rock fish and hake.

More Hearing Due On Teacher Mini-Skirt Row

CONCORD (AP)—A pretty 32-year-old English teacher—fighting to retain her job in the face of charges including wearing a miniskirt — will testify in her own defense next month.

A special hearing officer recessed proceedings until May 16 after one day of testimony in the hearing for Mrs. Nancy McGlone, teacher at Pacifica High School in Pittsburg.

Mrs. McGlone wore a brown and gold dress which came to just above her kneecaps when she stood.

She said the charges were whipped up because of her teachers union activity. Her husband, Howard, is president of the American Federation of Teachers group at Vallejo, where they live.

College Grad Draft Urged By Minority

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Former White House Press Secretary George Reedy says college undergraduates should continue to receive draft deferments but graduate exemptions should be granted only to students attending medical schools.

Reedy, a member of President Johnson's draft advisory commission, made his views known yesterday in a minority report to the Senate Armed Services Committee.

The presidential commission, headed by former Assistant Atty. Gen. Burke Marshall, recommended that all student deferments be eliminated.

Reedy told the panel the college deferment is equitable, but the pyramiding of deferments for graduate school, fatherhood and work in essential jobs is not fair.

He said students should be deferred until they receive an undergraduate degree or reach the age of 24 or 25, and then be placed in the same manpower pool as the 19-year-olds who would be drafted first under the commission's proposal.

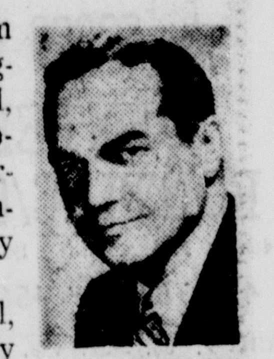
This would make the college graduate as liable to the draft as the young man who does not attend college, Reedy said.

He told the panel that if college men were no longer subject to the draft, the armed forces would find it difficult to recruit a sufficient number of officers.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Getting Fat Usually Comes By Degrees As Age Advances



VAN DELLEN

The cause of obesity varies from persons to person. Today psychological factors are stressed but after all, most of us are bothered by some emotional problem. Feelings of insecurity, self-pity, and frustration are common and, in my experience, usually lead to a loss of appetite.

If the source is not psychological, what makes people overeat? Many come from or marry into a family where the plates are heaped high and criticism follows unless every morsel is consumed. As more and more weight is gained, the accumulated fat must be fed and any attempt to curtail the intake leaves the person hungry. Others put on weight during the inactivity associated with convalescence from an illness or fail to get back into shape after pregnancy.

AS A RULE, however, most "fatties" get that way by degrees. It becomes a habit to eat a little more of this or that and a gain of one-half pound every month or so is not disturbing. By the end of the year they are 5 or 6 pounds heavier and the next year, 10, and the next, 15. Suddenly their suit or girdle size is in the heavyweight class; the process has been so insidious they hardly noticed it or it is blamed on middle age spread.

Gradual weight gain means that the individual is eating or drinking just a little more than he needs. The "little more" usually is sugar, fat, or alcohol. The remedy does not require a fancy diet, food supplements, 4-mile hikes daily, rowing machines, or appetite reducers. The best bet is to eat the same foods but less of them and to substitute low calorie items.

ANOTHER PLAN is to cut down on the "little" pound increasers such as the extra spoonful of sugar, the fat on meat, gravy, potatoes, and rich-salad dressings. By eliminating these extras, many individuals are able to keep in trim. The same can be said of cocktails which contain many more calories than the bread and potatoes so often passed up by the overweight.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

STANDING WEAKNESS

Mrs. C. writes: What makes a woman feel weak when she stops to talk with someone on the street or in the grocery store?

REPLY

While carrying a large sack of groceries? Standing too long in one position makes some persons feel weak or faint because of the effect of gravity-on the circulating fluids of the body. In nonscientific language, "The blood tends to leave the head and settle in the feet."

DIM VIEW

Mrs. T. B. A. writes: Why is it that the gall baldder does not always show up in X-rays?

REPLY

Before X-rays of the gall bladder are taken, the patient is given a dye, which passes like bile through the liver and enters the gall bladder. If the gall bladder is abnormal or harbor-stones, however, the dye does not reach it and the organ is not visualized under the X-ray.

Marin Defends Park Boundaries As Set

Marin County supervisors will try to block any reduction in the proposed boundaries of the Point Reyes National Seashore when the purchase of remaining land is again discussed before the Senate Interior Committee in Washington, D. C., Monday and Tuesday.

Supervisor Ernest Kettenhofen, in a letter to fellow board members, has urged that the boundaries be retained as proposed, with priorities established on remaining purchases in the projected 53,000-acre park.

Kettenhofen, who said fellow supervisors generally endorse his proposal, will send a telegram to be read at the Washington hearing.

Reduction because of high cost of land has been proposed by George B. Hartzog, National Park Service director.

Noting that there have been periferal purchases in the park but that much valuable "core" land is in private ownership, including four miles along the southern shore of Drake's Estero, Kettenhofen urged that funds be appropriated now for such purchases.

Other purchases could be deferred until funds become available, he said.

Promoter Is Missing With Stores' Cash

A man sought in Michigan on bad check charges has disappeared after collecting more than $400 from area merchants toward the sale of telephone book covers, San Rafael police disclosed yesterday.

Both San Rafael authorities and the county sheriff's office reported inquiries from Terra Linda merchants about Herbert G. Moore, 42, who moved out of 1080 Ovejas Avenue, Terra Linda, two weeks ago, jumping a rental agreement.

Four merchants said Moore solicited down payments toward delivery of telephone book covers, on which merchants agreed to place advertising. Delivery of the covers would be "as soon as possible," according to a contract the businessmen signed with Moore's licensed firm, GMG Productions of San Rafael.

The merchants became concerned when as much as two months elapsed without delivery, authorities said.

Stores which reported contracting with Moore were: Kim's Sound Center, 206 Northgate Shopping Center; Gallagher's Hardware and Lumber, 4224 Redwood Highway; Jack's Heating Service, 44 Paul Drive, and the La Red Swan Salon, 630 Manual Freitas Parkway. Authorities sought other merchants who may have made agreements with Moore.

Mays' Injury Only Minor; He'll Play Home Opener

ATLANTA (AP) — Juan Marichal, who looked like he needed all the help he could get the last time on the mound for the San Francisco Giants, had to go against Atlanta today without Willie Mays in center field.

Mays pulled a hamstring muscle last night trying to catch a short fly hit by Henry Aaron in the third inning. The ball fell in for a double and Mays left the game.

Manager Herman Franks said that Mays won't start again until next Tuesday in San Francisco, which means he'll miss three games, including the doubleheader in Cincinnati tomorrow.

Atlanta jumped quickly on right-hander Bob Bolin, scoring three times in the first inning on a solo homer by Felipe Alou and a two-run round-tripper by Joe Torre.

Three more runs in the third gave Atlanta the runs it needed as the Braves won 6-5.

Jim Davenport homered twice with none on for the Giants and Willie McCovey hit his second homer in as many nights, a two-run shot in the sixth when the Giants scored three times.

In the Braves' third, Mack Jones singled in Aaron after the double on which Mays was injured. Then Ken Henderson, who had shifted from right to center, dropped Torre's pop fly for a two-base error as Jones scored. Rico Carty checked in Torre with a single.

The pitching victory went to Braves' starter Pat Jarvis, who gave up all five San Francisco runs. The Giants could do nearly nothing with reliever Phil Niekro's fluttering knuckleballs as he preserved the Braves' first 1967 triumph after three losses.

The Giants also got good relief pitching from Joe Gibbon, Lindy McDaniel and Frank Linzy, who combined to blank the Braves from the fifth inning onward.

San Francisco had cut the Braves' lead to a single run when Phil Niekro came on, and the Giants managed only one infield hit off the relief pitcher.

"I threw three fast balls, but every other pitch was a knuckleball," Niekro said.

"I don't aim the knuckleball, I just try to throw it toward the middle of the plate and see what happens to it," Niekro said.

"Uusally, something does. I know this, I wouldn't want to try to hit it.

"I knew I was going to pitch good," Niekro said, "because I won the bullpen pool on guessing the crowd before I went in to pitch."

THE DOORSLAMMER STRIKES AGAIN

Redwood High righthander Mike Terry, whose record reads like simple arithmetic with a long line of zeros, shuts the door again as he delivers to Barry Berringer of Novato in the seventh inning of yesterday's Marin Athletic League game at Redwood. GOLF TOURNEY OF CHAMPS

Stars Take A Back Seat

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The giants of golf remained in seats slightly to the rear today as lesser-known Frank Beard, with a lead of three strokes, paced the procession of 26 players into the third round of the $100,000 Tournament of Champions.

Beard, from Louisville, Ky., headed toward 54 holes with previous rounds of 65-68-133, nine strokes under par for the distance, and said hopefully:

"Maybe this is going to be my week."

Tied at 136 were Jack Nicklaus and Doug Sanders, neither a stranger to tournament prominence, and Dan Sikes, the nonpracticing attorney from Jacksonville, Fla.

The 139 bracket listed Gay Brewer, Bobby Nichols, R. H. Sikes and Bruce Devlin, while Bob Goalby was alone at 140.

Far back and almost out of sight was U.S. Open champion Billy Casper, who flailed away for his highest one-hole score, an 11, on the par-5 15th hole at the par 36-35-71 Stardust Golf Club.

There was wind and Billy said he was using a new driver. "Wind, yes, but I can't blame the wind or the club or anything but me," said Casper.

He said his chances of winning in the wind-up tomorrow are about "500,000 to 1."

There is $20,000 at stake for the winner, but the pros haven't lost their sense of humor.

"I played like Barbara, but I didn't score like that," said Nicklaus, referring to his pretty wife.

"A real fabulous day," said Palmer, directing his sarcasm to himself. "I putted well the last three holes, but by then it was too late. The greens are the main reason."

Popular Tom Nieporte of Locust Valley, Long Island, N.Y., was missing. He was disqualified under an automatic PGA rule when he failed to show up for his No. 1 starting time. Inadvertently, Nieporte said, his partner, Phil Rodgers, told him the night before they were slated to tee off last.

The sponsors said it was an honest mistake. Nieporte was given the minimum $1,500 purse and flew home. Rodgers shot a 75 and at 150, is the high scorer.

The scores:

Frank Beard	65-68—133

Mere Sight Of Wilt Kills Warrior Drive

76ers Win Overtime Thriller

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Just the sight of 7-foot-1 Wilt Chamberlain may have been the difference last night as the Philadelphia 76ers defeated the San Francisco Warriors 141-135 in the first game of their best-of-seven series in the National Basketball Association's championship playoff.

The score was tied at 128 after a sensational comeback from a 19-point deficit by the Warriors.

There were about 10 seconds left in the regulation game when Rick Barry, the NBA's leading scorer, started up for a jump shot.

"I was going to shoot and then I saw Chamberlain coming and decided to hand off," he said in the Warriors' dressing room.

San Francisco's 6-foot-11 Nate Thurmond took the pass and went for a shot under the basket. Chamberlain spun around and leaped over Thurmond to block it. The 76ers' center grabbed the ball and called time out with four seconds left.

The 76ers' Hal Greer managed a desperate final buzzer shot from about 30 feet that hit the back of the rim and fell off, sending the game into overtime.

The 76ers outscored the western champion Warriors, 13-7, in the extra five minutes with a jump shot by Greer with 4:12 to play, giving them a lead they never relinquished.

Coach Alex Hannun of the 76ers said he couldn't explain his team's letdown after building a 19-point lead in the second period and still leading by 10 with seven and a half minutes remaining.

"I think," said Hannum, "that they just got tired. Chamberlain has a cold and he felt poorly before the game. It's one of

Cards' Jaster Masters L.A. Again; Cubs Upset Pirates

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

It took Los Angeles a year and a half to score a run off Larry Jaster and by then it hardly mattered.

"I'm relieved it's over with," Jaster said after the Dodgers ended his scoreless streak against them with a run at 52⅔ innings in the seventh at St. Louis yesterday. "I'll take the win."

St. Louis led 8-0 by the time Jeff Torborg's fly ball sacrificed Jim Lefebvre home with the drought-ending run. Three more Dodger runs in the ninth inning were scarcely enough to threaten the 23-year-old left-hander's victory.

"I figured if they got it, they got it," Jaster said, "If not all right. I was struggling through most of the game. My control was bad, I was wild high and depending mostly on my fast ball."

Jaster's streak went back to late in the 1965 season when he pitched a scoreless inning in relief and extended all the way through last season and a record-tying five shutouts over the Dodgers.

Jaster lasted through the eighth inning, but, unaccustomed as he is to being relieved when facing the Dodgers, made way for Dick Hughes in the ninth after a triple by Lefebvre and a single by Ron Fairly.

Elsewhere in the National League, Atlanta edged San Francisco 6-5, Philadelphia routed New York 5-1, Houston crushed Cincinnati 8-2 and Chicago beat Pittsburgh 8-5.

The Cards did all their scoring in three innings, three runs coming in the first, two in the third and three more in the sixth. Orlando Cepeda drove in three runs, and Roger Maris had three hits.

Chris Short set the Mets down on seven hits, and the Phillies got maximum use out of five singles in the second inning. When they scored three runs. Tom Reynolds homered for the Mets, whose manager, Wes Westrum, was tossed out of the game for too vigorously protesting a foul-ball call on a ball hit by Johnny Briggs that Briggs contended hit his foot.

Home runs by Aaron Pointer and Eddie Mathews sent the Astros to their triumph. Mathews' blast was the 494th of his career, making him seventh on the all-time homer list, one ahead of Lou Gehrig.

A Freakish Goal Wins For Seals

The Seattle Totems return to home ice tonight to try and put away the California Seals in their semi-final, best-of-seven series in the Western Hockey League Lester Patrick Cup playoffs.

The Seals prolonged the series last night in Oakland by beating Seattle 4-3 before a small arena crowd of 3,951 fans. The Totems now lead 3-2.

The winner of this semifinal gets to meet Vancouver, which long ago polished off first-place Portland.

A freakish 85-foot goal by the Seals' Ron Harris helped California get off to a 3-0 first-period lead that the Totems never could make up.

GOALIE'S ASSIST

Harris slapped the puck three strides over the center red line. It hit the backboard, rebounded off the goal pipe edge and was accidentally kicked into the net by Seattle goalie Jim McLeod, who was trying to push it out in front of him with his foot.

The Totems, who finished second during the regular season to the Seals' fourth, gave the Seals a scare with two, last-period goals, 92 seconds apart, by Howie Hughes and Jim Powers.

Doug Senior scored two goals for California, both on power plays. In the second period, the Seals had 10 minutes less in penalties and had the Totems two men down for three minutes, yet managed to score only once.

Golden Gate Fields Spill

Jockey Bill Mahorney was taken to Albany Hospital for X-rays, which showed no breaks. The track doctor, however, ordered Mahorney off his Saturday mounts. Jockey Angel Valenzuela suffered a bump on his head.

Mahorney was aboard Hill Sail, which tripped over Valenzuela's mount, Terry Go, which went down with a broken right foreleg. Terry Go had to be destroyed.

Mays' Injury Only Minor; He'll Play Home Opener

ATLANTA (AP) — Juan Marichal, who looked like he needed all the help he could get the last time on the mound for the San Francisco Giants, had to go against Atlanta today without Willie Mays in center field.

Mays pulled a hamstring muscle last night trying to catch a short fly hit by Henry Aaron in the third inning. The ball fell in for a double and Mays left the game.

Manager Herman Franks said that Mays won't start again until next Tuesday in San Francisco, which means he'll miss three games, including the doubleheader in Cincinnati tomorrow.

Atlanta jumped quickly on right-hander Bob Bolin, scoring three times in the first inning on a solo homer by Felipe Alou and a two-run round-tripper by Joe Torre.

Three more runs in the third gave Atlanta the runs it needed as the Braves won 6-5.

Jim Davenport homered twice with none on for the Giants and Willie McCovey hit his second homer in as many nights, a two-run shot in the sixth when the Giants scored three times.

In the Braves' third, Mack Jones singled in Aaron after the double on which Mays was injured. Then Ken Henderson, who had shifted from right to center, dropped Torre's pop fly for a two-base error as Jones scored. Rico Carty checked in Torre with a single.

The pitching victory went to Braves' starter Pat Jarvis, who gave up all five San Francisco runs. The Giants could do nearly nothing with reliever Phil Niekro's fluttering knuckleballs as he preserved the Braves' first 1967 triumph after three losses.

The Giants also got good relief pitching from Joe Gibbon, Lindy McDaniel and Frank Linzy, who combined to blank the Braves from the fifth inning onward.

San Francisco had cut the Braves' lead to a single run when Phil Niekro came on, and the Giants managed only one infield hit off the relief pitcher.

"I threw three fast balls, but every other pitch was a knuckleball," Niekro said.

"I don't aim the knuckleball. I just try to throw it toward the middle of the plate and see what happens to it," Niekro said.

"Uusally, something does. I know this, I wouldn't want to try to hit it.

"I knew I was going to pitch good," Niekro said, "because I won the bullpen pool on guessing the crowd before I went in to pitch."

76ers Win Overtime Thriller

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Just the sight of 7-foot-1 Wilt Chamberlain may have been the difference last night as the Philadelphia 76ers defeated the San Francisco Warriors 141-135 in the first game of their best-of-seven series in the National Basketball Association's championship playoff.

There were about 10 seconds left in the regulation game when Rick Barry, the NBA's leading scorer, started up for a jump shot.

"I was going to shoot and then I saw Chamberlain coming and decided to hand off," he said in the Warriors' dressing room.

GOLF TOURNEY OF CHAMPS

Stars Take A Back Seat

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The giants of golf remained in seats slightly to the rear today as lesser-known Frank Beard, with a lead of three strokes, paced the procession of 26 players into the third round of the $100,000 Tournament of Champions.

Beard, from Louisville, Ky., headed toward 54 holes with previous rounds of 65-68-133, nine strokes under par for the distance, and said hopefully:

"Maybe this is going to be my week."

Tied at 136 were Jack Nicklaus and Doug Sanders, neither a stranger to tournament prominence, and Dan Sikes, the nonpracticing attorney from Jacksonville, Fla.

Nicklaus and Sikes reached 136 with successive rounds of 68-68, while Sanders did it in 67-69.

The 139 bracket listed Gay Brewer, Bobby Nichols, R. H. Sikes and Bruce Devlin, while Bob Goalby was alone at 140.

Far back and almost out of sight was U.S. Open champion Billy Casper, who flailed away for his highest one-hole score, an 11, on the par-5 15th hole at the par 36-35-71 Stardust Golf Club.

There was wind and Billy said he was using a new driver. "Wind, yes, but I can't blame the wind or the club or anything but me," said Casper.

He said his chances of winning in the wind-up tomorrow are about "500,000 to 1."

There is $20,000 at stake for the winner, but the pros haven't lost their sense of humor.

"I played like Barbara, but I didn't score like that," said Nicklaus, referring to his pretty wife.

"A real fabulous day," said Palmer, directing his sarcasm to himself. "I putted well the last three holes, but by then it was too late. The greens are the main reason."

Popular Tom Nieporte of Locust Valley, Long Island, N.Y., was missing. He was disqualified under an automatic PGA rule when he failed to show up for his No. 1 starting time. Inadvertently, Nieporte said, his partner, Phil Rodgers, told him the night before they were slated to tee off last.

The sponsors said it was an honest mistake. Nieporte was given the minimum $1,500 purse and flew home. Rodgers shot a 75 and at 150, is the high scorer.

It's Another Zero By Redwood Staff

It may have seemed ages in getting started, but the Marin County Athletic League baseball action is plain fast and furious now.

The Wildcats of Marin Catholic treed themselves and chalked up a costly second loss, undefeated Redwood's third-best pitcher came close to a no-hitter and San Rafael got in the victory column against winless Drake.

Marin Catholic used a third-string pitcher against Tamalpais, but the big problem was a leaky infield with no plumbing as the wildcats goofed on errors six times while the Indians were winning 9-5.

That dropped Marin Catholic, an early co-favorite, into a 1-2 record while the Indians, who got superb relief pitching from sophomore Don Mackin, evened up at 1-1. Leroy Barrow with three stolen bases and Rich Geissinger with a pair of runs-batted-in helped the Indian cause.

Redwood, whose no-run policy was snapped Wednesday, started another one when southpaw Billy Poole hurled no-hit ball for five and two-thirds innings and, with Mike Terry's relief help, finished with a two-hitter and a 2-0 victory over usually strong-hitting Novato.

Novato soph Russ Dillion matched the two-hit pitching but gave up both of them in the first inning, one of them a two-run single by catcher Mike Torry.

Drake, blanked four straight times, twice in league play, scored some runs but not enough as San Rafael won a 7-5 verdict.

NEAR NO-HITTER

Rookie Pitchers Sparkle In A.L.

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Care for a bit of Can You Top This?

Bill Dillman of Baltimore and Bill Rohr of Boston, a pair of pitching prodigies, played that old game in their major league debuts yesterday and if Dillman hadn't run out of innings, he might have won the match.

Rohr came within one strike of no-hitting the New York Yankees but lost his bid on a two-out, 3-2 pitch, single by Elston Howard in the bottom of the ninth inning. He finished up a 3-0 winner.

Dillman came out of the bullpen for the Orioles and hurled five hitless innings, earning credit for Baltimore's 7-1 victory over Kansas City.

Both Dillman and Rohr are 21 and getting their first taste of life in the big leagues. And so far things couldn't be better for them.

"It would have been nice to have a no-hitter," smiled Rohr, "but it's awfully nice to be 1-0 in the big leagues." A left-hander, Rohr was 14-10 at Toronto last year.

Dillman never expected to be with the Orioles after splitting last year between Durham, N.C., Elmira, N.Y. and Rochester, N. Y. with a combined 10-7 record.

"I really surprised myself," he said. "I figured I'd end up at Rochester, but when I came to camp and saw all those sore arms, I decided to play it by ear."

Marin Tars Get Second In Track

Host Shasta ran away with the meet but College of Marin racked up a passle of points anyway to finish second in a five-team Golden Valley Conference meet at Redding yesterday.

Shasta had 130 points to the runnerup Tars' 97½, while very much down the line were Lassen with 36, Redwood 27 and Yuba 23.

The Tars picked up three firsts, two of them by Honor Jackson and the other by Ken Blasingame, and finished second in both relays.

Jackson, in his second crack at the 330 low hurdles, won it with a 42.8 seconds clocking and also took the long jump with a 21-9 leap while Blasingame ran a 16.8 high hurdles for the other Tar win.

Other Marin place winners:

Mile — Mark Byers, second, John Noonan, fourth; 440 — Fred Combs, third; 100 — Jackson, second, Dick Honey, sixth; 120 High Hurdles — Manuel Saenz, fifth; 220 — Honey, fourth, Ron Omo, sixth; 330 Hurdles — Darryl Barry, fifth; Two Mile — Noonan, second, Ragnar Thanning, third, Rich Ronshiemer, fourth; Shot — Ken Beerbower, tie for third; Discus — Greg Griffin, second, Kim Spohn, third; Pole Vault — Tom Loback, fourth, Dave Salaun, fifth; Broad Jump — Ron Banks, third, Blasingame, fourth; Triple Jump — Banks, third.

Tars' Golf Team Triumphs Again

College of Marin defeated Sierra College 4-1 in Golden Valley Conference tennis action Thursday in San Rafael.

Both doubles matches were rained out, but singles winners for Marin were John Zweig, Jim Bedelion, Rich Miller, and Joe Jeremy.

San Rafael Tennis Team Rallies, Wins

They finished a tennis meet yesterday, and Redwood, the leader Wednesday, was the loser yesterday as San Rafael won a Marin County Athletic League decision, 3-2.

San Rafael, trailing 2-1, with three matches to be finished Wednesday, swept all three yesterday, including both doubles, for the triumph.

"You've got to give San Francisco credit for a fine comeback. All our games with them have been tough. I would like to have won by 35, but as long as we got the win, that's what counts."

"They hustled their hearts out," he said. "We still think we can beat them."

Sharman said that when the Warriors were down by 19, he told them to try to get the ball down court quicker to get a shot before Chamberlain could get set under the basket.

Barry, who led both teams with 37 points, said he was bothered by his left ankle which he twisted last week in the Western finals against St. Louis.

Greer topped the 76ers with 32 points, while Wally Jones collected 30 and Billy Cunningham 26. Chamberlain scored only 16, but he out-rebounded Thurmond 33-31, handed out 10 assists and blocked nine shots, including the big one in the final seconds.

Thurmond scored 24 and Tom Meschery, 20, including 10 in the final period San Francisco rally.

Redwood Shades Tam In Marin Track Showdown

Ill and out of school for a week, Stevens came on strong to win the 880 and 440 yard runs.

Other highlights for the Giants were a 1-2-3 sweep in the two-mile run and a first place in the pole vault and a pair of seconds in the 100 and 220-yard dashes by Jeff Hicks.

Tam suffered a costly blow when ace sprinter Alan Lee pulled a muscle in the 440 relay and missed the 100 and 220.

In other MCAL meets yesterday Terra Linda walloped Marin Catholic 95-32 for its second victory in as many days and Drake downed San Rafael 94½-30½.

It's Another Zero By Redwood Staff

It may have seemed ages in getting started, but the Marin County Athletic League baseball action is plain fast and furious now.

The Wildcats of Marin Catholic treed themselves and chalked up a costly second loss, undefeated Redwood's third-best pitcher came close to a no-hitter and San Rafael got in the victory column against winless Drake.

Marin Catholic used a third-string pitcher against Tamalpais, but the big problem was a leaky infield with no plumbing as the wildcats goofed on errors six times while the Indians were winning 9-5.

That dropped Marin Catholic, an early co-favorite, into a 1-2 record while the Indians, who got superb relief pitching from sophomore Don Mackin, evened up at 1-1. Leroy Barrow with three stolen bases and Rich Geissinger with a pair of runs-batted-in helped the Indian cause.

Redwood, whose no-run policy was snapped Wednesday, started another one when southpaw Billy Poole hurled no-hit ball for five and two-thirds innings and, with Mike Terry's relief help, finished with a two-hitter and a 2-0 victory over usually strong-hitting Novato.

Novato soph Russ Dillion matched the two-hit pitching but gave up both of them in the first inning, one of them a two-run single by catcher Mike Torry.

Drake, blanked four straight times, twice in league play, scored some runs but not enough as San Rafael won a 7-5 verdict.

NEAR NO-HITTER

Rookie Pitchers Sparkle In A.L.

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Care for a bit of Can You Top This?

Bill Dillman of Baltimore and Bill Rohr of Boston, a pair of pitching prodigies, played that old game in their major league debuts yesterday and if Dillman hadn't run out of innings, he might have won the match.

Rohr came within one strike of no-hitting the New York Yankees but lost his bid on a two-out, 3-2 pitch, single by Elston Howard in the bottom of the ninth inning. He finished up a 3-0 winner.

Dillman came out of the bullpen for the Orioles and hurled five hitless innings, earning credit for Baltimore's 7-1 victory over Kansas City.

Both Dillman and Rohr are 21 and getting their first taste of life in the big leagues. And so far things couldn't be better for them.

"It would have been nice to have a no-hitter," smiled Rohr, "but it's awfully nice to be 1-0 in the big leagues." A left-hander, Rohr was 14-10 at Toronto last year.

Dillman never expected to be with the Orioles after splitting last year between Durham, N.C., Elmira, N.Y. and Rochester, N. Y. with a combined 10-7 record.

"I really surprised myself," he said. "I figured I'd end up at Rochester, but when I came to camp and saw all those sore arms, I decided to play it by ear."

Marin Tars Get Second In Track

Host Shasta ran away with the meet but College of Marin racked up a passle of points anyway to finish second in a five-team Golden Valley Conference meet at Redding yesterday.

Shasta had 130 points to the runnerup Tars' 97½, while very much down the line were Lassen with 36, Redwood 27 and Yuba 23.

The Tars picked up three firsts, two of them by Honor Jackson and the other by Ken Blasingame, and finished second in both relays.

Jackson, in his second crack at the 330 low hurdles, won it with a 42.8 seconds clocking and also took the long jump with a 21-9 leap while Blasingame ran a 16.8 high hurdles for the other Tar win.

Other Marin place winners:

Mile — Mark Byers, second, John Noonan, fourth; 440 — Fred Combs, third; 100 — Jackson, second, Dick Honey, sixth; 120 High Hurdles — Manuel Saenz, fifth; 220 — Honey, fourth, Ron Omo, sixth; 330 Hurdles — Darryl Barry, fifth; Two Mile — Noonan, second, Ragnar Thanning, third, Rich Ronshiemer, fourth; Shot — Ken Beerbower, tie for third; Discus — Greg Griffin, second, Kim Spohn, third; Pole Vault — Tom Loback, fourth, Dave Salaun, fifth; Broad Jump — Ron Banks, third, Blasingame, fourth; Triple Jump — Banks, third.

"You've got to give San Francisco credit for a fine comeback. All our games with them have been tough. I would like to have won by 35, but as long as we got the win, that's what counts."

"They hustled their hearts out," he said. "We still think we can beat them."

Sharman said that when the Warriors were down by 19, he told them to try to get the ball down court quicker to get a shot before Chamberlain could get set under the basket.

Barry, who led both teams with 37 points, said he was bothered by his left ankle which he twisted last week in the Western finals against St. Louis.

Greer topped the 76ers with 32 points, while Wally Jones collected 30 and Billy Cunningham 26. Chamberlain scored only 16, but he out-rebounded Thurmond 33-31, handed out 10 assists and blocked nine shots, including the big one in the final seconds.

Thurmond scored 24 and Tom Meschery, 20, including 10 in the final period San Francisco rally.

Redwood Shades Tam In Marin Track Showdown

Ill and out of school for a week, Stevens came on strong to win the 880 and 440 yard runs.

Other highlights for the Giants were a 1-2-3 sweep in the two-mile run and a first place in the pole vault and a pair of seconds in the 100 and 220-yard dashes by Jeff Hicks.

Tam suffered a costly blow when ace sprinter Alan Lee pulled a muscle in the 440 relay and missed the 100 and 220.

In other MCAL meets yesterday Terra Linda walloped Marin Catholic 95-32 for its second victory in as many days and Drake downed San Rafael 94½-30½.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Deschapelles Coup Is Legacy From Historic Ace Whist Buff

The Deschapelles Coup was invented about 150 years ago by Guillaume le Breton Deschapelles, described by the leading English whist authority as the finest whist player "beyond any comparison, the world has ever seen."

The play is much easier at bridge, where the defenders can see the dummy, as in the annual Intercollegiate Bridge Championships played a few weeks ago by several thousand college students.

Opening lead — ♠ K

West can easily see that he will not defeat the contract by continuing with the spades.

SOUTH'S CHANCES

The defenders would win four spades and a club, but South would easily take the rest.

West must try to develop a trick for his partner so that East can lead a spade through the queen.

West counts 15 points in his own hand and 5 points in the dummy.

This leaves 20 points to be shared by South and East, since there are exactly 40 high-card points in the deck.

South announces 16 to 18 points by his opening bid of one notrump so that East can have only 2 to 4 points.

LIKELY ENTRY

East's most likely card of entry is the queen of hearts, and West must hope that his partner holds this card.

(The Coup is the lead of an unsupported high card for the purpose of creating an entry to partner's hand.)

South takes the ace of hearts and the ace of clubs and then leads a low club.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one club and the next player doubles.

You hold:
♥ Q 8 7 6 5
♦ J 10 7 4
♣ 9

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one heart with most partners.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, April 15, the 105th day of 1967 with 260 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning star is Mars. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

The Florentine painter Leonardo da Vinci was born on this day in 1452.

On this day in history:

In 1861, President Lincoln sent Congress a message recognizing a state of civil war and calling for 75,000 volunteer soldiers.

In 1945, President Franklin D. Roosevelt was buried at Hyde Park, N.Y.

A thought for the day — Spanish philosopher George Santayana once said: "Beauty as we feel it is something indescribable; what it is or what it means can never be said."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

Today is Saturday, April 15, the 105th day of 1967 with 260 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning star is Mars. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

The Florentine painter Leonardo da Vinci was born on this day in 1452.

On this day in history:

In 1861, President Lincoln sent Congress a message recognizing a state of civil war and calling for 75,000 volunteer soldiers.

In 1945, President Franklin D. Roosevelt was buried at Hyde Park, N.Y.

A thought for the day — Spanish philosopher George Santayana once said: "Beauty as we feel it is something indescribable; what it is or what it means can never be said."

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Deschapelles Coup Is Legacy From Historic Ace Whist Buff

The Deschapelles Coup was invented about 150 years ago by Guillaume le Breton Deschapelles, described by the leading English whist authority as the finest whist player "beyond any comparison, the world has ever seen."

The play is much easier at bridge, where the defenders can see the dummy, as in the annual Intercollegiate Bridge Championships played a few weeks ago by several thousand college students.

Opening lead — ♠ K

West can easily see that he will not defeat the contract by continuing with the spades.

SOUTH'S CHANCES

The defenders would win four spades and a club, but South would easily take the rest.

West must try to develop a trick for his partner so that East can lead a spade through the queen.

West counts 15 points in his own hand and 5 points in the dummy.

This leaves 20 points to be shared by South and East, since there are exactly 40 high-card points in the deck.

South announces 16 to 18 points by his opening bid of one notrump so that East can have only 2 to 4 points.

LIKELY ENTRY

East's most likely card of entry is the queen of hearts, and West must hope that his partner holds this card.

(The Coup is the lead of an unsupported high card for the purpose of creating an entry to partner's hand.)

South takes the ace of hearts and the ace of clubs and then leads a low club.

West steps up with the king of clubs, leads a heart to the queen and gets a spade return to defeat the contract with the rest of the spades.

ANSWER: Bid one heart with most partners.

Liturgical Reforms Reshaping Church

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Episcopal Church, whose stately worship services have undergone little change in the past 400 years, is moving gingerly toward liturgical reforms almost as sweeping as those undertaken by Roman Catholics.

As a first step in revising the long-cherished Anglican Book of Common Prayer, a special liturgical commission has proposed a complete overhaul of the service of Holy Communion.

"We believe the time is ripe for radical searching after the goal of an 'ideal' liturgy," declares the commission in a report that is likely to stir vehement debate when the denomination's triennial general convention meets in Seattle next September.

Ten thousand copies of the proposed new "Liturgy of the Lord's Supper" have been distributed to Episcopal dioceses and parishes across the country for study prior to the convention.

Episcopal conventions in the past have demonstrated a marked reluctance to tamper with the prayer book, which was composed in the 16th century and which rivals the King James Bible for the beauty of its English prose.

Realizing it would be futile to try to rush the proposed reforms, the liturgical commission will not even suggest that the new communion service be approved for general use by the coming convention.

The most it hopes for is that the convention may authorize "trial use" of the new service in parishes willing to experiment.

The new service is shorter and more flexible than the present one. The familiar "prayer for the whole state of Christ's Church" is replaced by a litany of intercessions in which worshippers join the priest in praying for peace, for Christian unity, for the well-being of tte church, and "for all who in this transitory life are in danger, trouble , sorrow, need, sickness or any other adversity." Other prayers have been rewritten, shortened or omitted.

The original language has been preserved wherever possible, but contemporary English has been substituted for Elizabethean words that have become unfamiliar or meaningless. "You" and "your" have replaced "thee" and "thy" except in references to God, where the older forms are retained.

Episcopalians using the new service will find themselves standing more and kneeling less, although there will continue to be the frequent changes of posture that the original authors of the prayer book prescribed with a view to keeping congregations wide awake.

The net effect of the changes according to Rev. Dr. Massey M. Shepherd Jr., vice chairman of the commission, is to make the service less contemplative, and more expressive of "joy and hope and thanksgiving." It emphasizes that the Eucharist is above all else a celebration of the love of God.

One of the most striking features of the new service is a ceremonial act called "the peace"—a handclasp of brotherhood initiated by the priest and passed from person to person throughout the congregation. It symbolizes the spirit of community and mutual interdependence which Christ commended to his disciples.

Although the new communion rite is the most important proposal now pending for change in the official standards of Episcopal worship, informal experiments with liturgical innovations have been underway in some Episcopal churches for several years. In some cases the experimentation has reached a point that startles Episcopal traditionalists.

In Washington's famous Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, worshippers who appeared on Good Friday expecting the customary three hour devotion were treated instead to jazz guitarist Charlie Byrd strumming an accompaniment to the equally-jazzy pray- self-styled "coffee house priest" and author of a volume of highly titled, "Are You Running With Me, Jesus?"

Any shock which the Good Friday service may have engendered among parishioners was mild, compared to that which conservative Episcopalians sustained following announcement of a Whitsunday May 14 service at Washington Cathedral, that will feature rock 'n roll, folk and "soul" music by 20 teen-age bands.

Inmates At San Quentin Hold A Passover Dinner

By ELIZABETH JOHNSTON

The Passover Seder dinner at San Quentin Prison Wednesday night was a happy occasion in direct contrast to the grim fact that an execution had taken place in the prison the same day.

After a private service in the chapel, conducted by Chaplain Norman Twersky, Jewish inmates joined friends and relatives in the prison dining room for the Passover celebration.

The story of deliverance of the Israelites from Egypt was told in questions and answers, both in Hebrew and English, before the Seder meal.

The beautiful voice of guest Cantor Steven S. Schoenfeid filied the hall with hauting Hebrew melodies as he canted the Kiddush (sanctification). Later, the young Cantor led the congregation of 500 people in a rendition of several traditional Hebrew songs.

On each table were the feast's ceremonial objects, grape juice, bitter herb (turnip slices marinated in horseradish), matzoh (unleavened bread), haroses (nuts, fruits and spices), sprig parsley and hard-boiled eggs, plus the dinner prepared by the prison cooks.

After dinner, Cantor Schoenfeld turned the occasion to a lighter mood as he directed the congregation in several Hebrew songs.

His gift for light conversation brought the comment from Master of Ceremonies Rod Scobie: "I'm glad you're outside. You could be real competition for me if you were inside."

Edward L. Bowles Jr., read his composition, "What Passcver Means to Me." Bowles, who explained he was not a Jew by birth but by choice, saw the Passover as a "freedom from fears, to dwell on all the lands of the world with our personal treasures of religious beliefs, philosophies of the universe as free individuals in harmony with God, and men of all races, nationalities and creeds.

Inmates At San Quentin Hold A Passover Dinner

By ELIZABETH JOHNSTON

The Passover Seder dinner at San Quentin Prison Wednesday night was a happy occasion in direct contrast to the grim fact that an execution had taken place in the prison the same day.

After a private service in the chapel, conducted by Chaplain Norman Twersky, Jewish inmates joined friends and relatives in the prison dining room for the Passover celebration.

The story of deliverance of the Israelites from Egypt was told in questions and answers, both in Hebrew and English, before the Seder meal.

The beautiful voice of guest Cantor Steven S. Schoenfeid filled the hall with hauting Hebrew melodies as he canted the Kiddush (sanctification). Later, the young Cantor led the congregation of 500 people in a rendition of several traditional Hebrew songs.

On each table were the feast's ceremonial objects, grape juice, bitter herb (turnip slices marinated in horseradish), matzoh (unleavened bread), haroses (nuts, fruits and spices), sprig parsley and hard-boiled eggs, plus the dinner prepared by the prison cooks.

After dinner, Cantor Schoenfeld turned the occasion to a lighter mood as he directed the congregation in several Hebrew songs.

His gift for light conversation brought the comment from Master of Ceremonies Rod Scobie: "I'm glad you're outside. You could be real competition for me if you were inside."

Edward L. Bowles Jr., read his composition, "What Passover Means to Me." Bowles, who explained he was not a Jew by birth but by choice, saw the Passover as a "freedom from fears, to dwell on all the lands of the world with our personal treasures of religious beliefs, philosophies of the universe as free individuals in harmony with God, and men of all races, nationalities and creeds.

Liturgical Reforms Reshaping Church

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Episcopal Church, whose stately worship services have undergone little change in the past 400 years, is moving gingerly toward liturgical reforms almost as sweeping as those undertaken by Roman Catholics.

As a first step in revising the long-cherished Anglican Book of Common Prayer, a special liturgical commission has proposed a complete overhaul of the service of Holy Communion.

"We believe the time is ripe for radical searching after the goal of an 'ideal' liturgy," declares the commission in a report that is likely to stir vehement debate when the denomination's triennial general convention meets in Seattle next September.

Ten thousand copies of the proposed new "Liturgy of the Lord's Supper" have been distributed to Episcopal dioceses and parishes across the country for study prior to the convention.

Episcopal conventions in the past have demonstrated a marked reluctance to tamper with the prayer book, which was composed in the 16th century and which rivals the King James Bible for the beauty of its English prose.

Realizing it would be futile to try to rush the proposed reforms, the liturgical commission will not even suggest that the new communion service be approved for general use by the coming convention.

The most it hopes for is that the convention may authorize "trial use" of the new service in parishes willing to experiment.

The new service is shorter and more flexible than the present one. The familiar "prayer for the whole state of Christ's Church" is replaced by a litany of intercessions in which worshippers join the priest in praying for peace, for Christian unity, for the wellbeing of tte church, and "for all who in this transitory life are in danger, trouble , sorrow, need, sickness or any other adversity." Other prayers have been rewritten, shortened or omitted.

The original language has been preserved wherever possible, but contemporary English has been substituted for Elizabethean words that have become unfamiliar or meaningless. "You" and "your" have replaced "thee" and "thy" except in references to God, where the older forms are retained.

Episcopalians using the new service will find themselves standing more and kneeling less, although there will continue to be the frequent changes of posture that the original authors of the prayer book prescribed with a view to keeping congregations wide awake.

REV. MALCOLM BOYD
The changing priest

The net effect of the changes according to Rev. Dr. Massey M. Shepherd Jr., vice chairman of the commission, is to make the service less contemplative, and more expressive of "joy and hope and thanksgiving." It emphasizes that the Eucharist is above all else a celebration of the love of God.

One of the most striking features of the new service is a ceremonial act called "the peace"—a handclasp of brotherhood initiated by the priest and passed from person to person throughout the congregation. It symbolizes the spirit of community and mutual interdependence which Christ commended to his disciples.

Although the new communion rite is the most important proposal now pending for change in the official standards of Episcopal worship, informal experiments with liturgical innovations have been underway in some Episcopal churches for several years. In some cases the experimentation has reached a point that startles Episcopal traditionalists.

In Washington's famous Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, worshippers who appeared on Good Friday expecting the customary three hour devotion were treated instead to jazz guitarist Charlie Byrd strumming an accompaniment to the equally-jazzy pray-self-styled "coffee house priest" and author of a volume of highly titled, "Are You Running With Me, Jesus?"

Any shock which the Good Friday service may have engendered among parishioners was mild, compared to that which conservative Episcopalians sustained following announcement of a Whitsunday May 14 service at Washington Cathedral, that will feature rock 'n roll, folk and "soul" music by 20 teen-age bands.

Today's Youth Needs New Free Enterprise Insight

BE YOUR own boss.

Go into business for yourself and answer to no one but yourself. Or, own your own farm and be completely self-sufficient and completely independent.

These were the great American dreams starting with the colonists and continuing as a U.S. tradition until recently.

The great dream has so faded in popularity with the young that it remains only as a memory in older adults.

AS LITTLE AS a generation ago, a huge majority of young college students aspired to business careers.

As little as a decade ago, statistics indicate, a third to half of young college students still aspired to careers in business.

Today all that has changed. Almost none of the young students have any business ambitions (only 13 per cent, according to one recent survey).

The "image" of business has fallen, among the young, to probably its lowest point in all American history.

Opinion polling among our youth reveals that young people today believe a business career holds no challenge, offers no potential satisfaction, fills no need of society. Business profits are an unnecessary evil; everybody would be better off if government tightened controls on business and perhaps took over more and more of the fields occupied and functions performed historically by American business. These are the unfortunate views of the young.

To repeat, the "image" of business has fallen, among the young, to probably its lowest point in all U.S. history.

IS THIS REALLY bad?

It may be good to the extent that it discourages our young from adopting goals and values epitomized in "How To Succeed . . . ," "Room At The Top," and in contemporary novels and other plays dealing with "Madison Avenue" environments.

But to the degree that our youth are reaching adulthood with a lack of appreciation for the American free enterprise system (which has, with all its faults and needs for improvement, produced the highest standard of living in all human history), today's attitudes are backward and deficient.

NOTHING IN HUMAN history has done so much for so many as our traditional incentive system, on which American business is built.

Challenge? Potentional? Filling a need?

A small group of imaginative young fellows down in Orange County (average age between 25 and 30) dreamed of a brand new airline that would operate non-stop direct between San Francisco and Orange County airport (on the outskirts of the county seat, Santa Ana, and only a short drive from Disneyland and Orange coast beach resort communities).

They applied to regulatory authorities for the necessary approval to establish the airline. To their surprise, they won their authorization, without opposition.

THEY NEEDED six million dollars to equip and operate the new venture until it got on its feet. They got permission from regulatory authorities to sell stock. Their enthusiasm was catching; the stock issue was oversubscribed.

About three months ago the two-plane airline ("Air California") began operations with five round trips daily. Business has far exceeded cautious expectations. A third plane is being acquired. There are now seven round trips daily with nine on weekends. More will be added when the additional plane goes into service.

Stock which was sold for $10 per share has risen to $23. Passenger traffic is about 50 per cent greater than anticipated.

The imaginative young Orange Countians seem to have a howling success on their hands.

No challenge? No potential? Not filling a need?

HOW CAN THE CHALLENGES, potentials and public needs for incentive enterprise be explained to our youth?

The Junior Achievement program—relatively new in Marin and thus far implemented only on a limited scale—does the job.

With technical advice from a sponsoring organization (in Marin PG&E, Northwestern Pacific Railroad, Fairchild Semi-Conductor and Holiday Magic are the only sponsors thus far), groups of 20 teen-agers form "companies" to manufacture and market a product.

A Junior Achievement company's life is about 30 weeks. In that time, a "corporation" is formed. Stock is sold to raise money. Officers, directors and corporation executives are selected. Decisions are made as to what product could be produced to fill a need (and therefore could reasonably be expected to sell).

Materials are obtained, the product is fabricated in the quantity projected for the market, the product is sold, and the company is finally liquidated with stockholders receiving a profit if their risk was successful.

ADULT ADVISORS ALL say the same thing:

When a new group of youngsters gather to form a company, many have less than the highest regard for American business. By the time their project is complete, they all emerge with a new understanding of and appreciation for the free enterprise system.

They are boosters for American business; they have seen the challenge, the potential and they take satisfaction in having met a public need through the marketing of a new product.

Junior Achievement deserves support so its program can be expanded in Marin. Unfortunately, a drive for funds, underway here for a couple of months, has thus far reached only half its modest Marin goal.

It deserves to surpass its goal. Today's teen-agers should not be deprived of an understanding of and appreciation for the free enterprise system's contributions to public welfare.

Hollis Congratulates Youth For Concert

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Last Saturday more than 2,400 youth and adults gathered at a rock and roll concert at the Mount Tamalpais Outdoor Theater. The afternoon event was sponsored by the Marin Youth for Action as a benefit to help finance projects designed to promote better communication between youth and adults. The first of these will be a conference, "Psychedelics and Youth — A Dilemma?" on Saturday, April 22, at the College of Marin gymnasium.

I personally visited the concert and thoroughly enjoyed the program. The very well behaved crowd was even more impressive. Obviously, those in attendance were there to enjoy the beauty of the mountain, the fabulous view, and the modern music. Cooperation and a willingness to have a trouble-free event prevailed.

Marin Youth for Action, and the youth who attended, are to be highly complimented by the people of Marin for having conducted the event in a very creditable manner. Credit should also go to Mount Tamalpais State Park officials and law enforcement officers who so understandingly cooperated in helping to make the concert so enjoyable.

Why Didn't I-J Report TV Speech?

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Last week Martin Luther King, Pulitzer winner, made one of the greatest speeches of this or any century, carried in the evening by the ABC network. Next morning I looked for it in the newspapers but it was cavalierly briefed on an inside page.

Well, I thought, the I-J will be smart on this one, with a chance to scoop the great competition holding all those journalistic honors. Nothing in the I-J EITHER!

Freedom of the press is guaranteed in our constitution — specifically made one of the underpinnings of democratic procedures so that the public can be kept informed. By what legerdemain does the iron hand and the credibility gap control our sources of information and acquiescence in international infamy 3,000 miles away from the nabobs of napalm?

Leaders Criticized For Vietnam Trouble

Editor, Independent-Journal:

There have been a number of letters critical of the mission of the Quakers to Hanoi with medical aid for the victims of our savage war against a primitive nation. The latest, wherein names are called reveals how far the misguided leaders of our country have gone in corrupting the values that we used to hold to and those for which our flag once stood.

We have been betrayed, not by these who bring medical supplies to innocents, but by the perverted leadership of our country . . .

. . . We can justify the present wanton slaughter which cannot achieve the objectives that we want. . . .

We find ourselves in the contradictory position, after a number of equally unattractive puppets, on now supporting the mercenary, Marshal Ky, who fought his own people for the French, as did eight of his nine cabinet ministers.

As a nation, we must awake from our stupor and recognize that we are falling into a trap proposed by China's Lin Piao, who has suggested exhausting us by several simultaneous Vietnam type guerrilla wars. . . . (Beside the Vietnam war, we are currently involved in Peru, Guatamala, Venezuela as well as Laos and Cambodia). J. F. Kennedy said "Those who make peaceful revolution impossible, make violent revolution inevitable."

Hope Does Lie In The 'War'

Editor, Independent-Journal:

If the people criticizing Phillip Drath and the other members of his mission feel there is no room in this world for pacifist action, perhaps they can answer a question put to Carl Sandburg. The poet was reading and talking to a group of children when a little girl asked him, "What if they gave a war and nobody came!"

I don't believe it ambivalent to be able to respect the men fighting for our nation and also respect the crew of the Phoenix. I do believe that the hope of the world lies in the "war" to which nobody comes.

Protest's Success Recalled By Reader

Editor, Independent-Journal:

For years demonstrators protested nuclear testing, and finally the government stopped poisoning our air with radioactive fallout.

Again thousands march to protest the insane war in Vietnam, but it will take millions of marchers to convince our politicians that the people refuse to be dragged into a third world war, refuse to sacrifice their boys and their taxes for war profits.

J. F. Kennedy once said: "If men don't abolish war, war will abolish men." If we want to survive and live, we should all march for peace.

THEY SAY that on President Johnson's recent trip to South Vietnam, a GI accosted him and demanded, "Say, aren't you Lyndon B. Johnson?" "I sure am," grinned the President. The GI exclaimed, "Man, that's what I call a draft board!"

THIS STORY comes from Justice Lawrence Wittig, of Whitefish Bay, Wisconsin. An ardent college student was caught doing a bit of fancy one-arm driving with a pretty young co-ed. The judge let him go with a stiff warning when the case came up in court a fortnight later. "Do your spooning on the back porch later," concluded the judge. "One-arm driving is responsible for over half the accidents in this town.' 'The student agreed heartily, then reassured His Honor, "Stop worrying, sir. I don't go with her any more."

LBJ Faces Busy Time Rebuilding His Record For 1968 Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP)—Time is short. For President Johnson this is the last warm-up lap before the 1968 presidential election year. He has to have a record to point to when he runs again, which means he must rebuild his.

His 1965 record was superb. It hasn't reached that peak since. Rebuilding it will keep him busy when he returns from the Latin American summit meeting in Uruguay.

HE WILL HAVE TO concern himself about a lot of things, including the economy, the Republicans, the war in Vietnam and his programs in Congress. Luckily for him the Republicans have put themselves in a bit of a box.

The most likely Republican candidates, though still unsure of what lies ahead and at this point probably very unsure of themselves, are not hesitating to take positions.

The Republicans — and Michigan's Gov. George Romney is the shining example — have backed Johnson on the war, which makes it awkward if they later try to change their position or make the war an issue.

MEANWHILE, the Department of Commerce said Wednesday the economy stood still in the past three months for the first time since its expansion began six years ago.

The value of all goods and services — the Gross National Product — went up $5 billion but was absorbed by price increases. Johnson administration economists said they weren't alarmed.

They said they had figured the economy would get sluggish the first half of this year and then pick up steam. With this in mind Johnson had asked Congress to boost taxes to help pay for big government spending and frustrate inflation.

CONGRESS HAS BEEN CHILLY about it, being intent on cutting spending. But if the economy goes down, spending cuts would help recession trends. A recession in 1968, on top of the war, would be enough to do Johnson in.

Worrying about that alone should keep him busy, but that's only a bit of the problems which cover practically everything for a man who likes the White House.

He won enormously in 1964 but his popularity melted under the heat of the war, so much so that a recent public opinion poll showed Romney ahead of him in a "test election" last month.

RIGHT NOW the end of the war is invisible. If he can wind it up before the election, by victory or negotiation, much that he lost in public esteem will probably be recaptured.

Even a continuing war may not destroy him if the Republicans make a mess of themselves, as they have in the past before election day with their issues and their candidates.

But, besides all that, a politician like Johnson will feel required to run on a record which includes more than the record of 1965.

THIS YEAR he didn't hand Congress anything like the memorable load of proposals he made two years ago, most of which he got approved.

Compared with that, Johnson's requests this year were meek and minor. And this isn't the same responsive kind of Congress which waited with open arms for what he had to offer in 1965, even though his Democrats still run it.

THE GOING is tough. Just trying to make a pretty good showing will take up most of his time when he returns from Latin America, particularly when the legislating reaches a peak in July and August.

Ivory Towers Give Hope To The Poor

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG, JR.

The campus of the College of the City of New York is situated on top of a hill overlooking the central Harlem ghetto. Its geographic position is symbolic of the separation which exists between many urban universities and the communities they serve.

TOO OFTEN the university perches on the hilltop, oblivious to the needs of the city. Fortunately, many schools are leaving the ivory tower and coming into the valley, using their expertise and resources to tackle the immense problems faced by the urban population.

CCNY recently offered to break with tradition by asking the city board of education to let it operate five schools in Harlem. The college intends to work together with the community to develop programs to make these ghetto schools into model educational institutions. In effect, the college would become the board of education for these five schools and would work closely with the community to make them better.

As of this writing, the board has yet to decide whether or not to accept the college's offer, but I hope they do. Such close relations with a nearby college will help motivate pupils, permit greater involvement of parents, utilize the brains and techniques available to top colleges, and free schools from bureaucratic traditions, replacing them with the new ideas and the fresh approach the colleges can bring.

CCNY is not alone in attempting to become more involved with the total community.

OTHER SCHOOLS in metropolitan complexes across the country are showing that they too, understand that their role in urban life should be one of leadership. They know that the modern university cannot exist as an isolated bastion in the midst of poverty and slums.

New York University, for example, is working with a school in the Bedford-Stuyvesant ghetto, attempting to make it a model school. NYU also has a program whereby some students from Harlem whose grades or finances would not ordinarily permit them to go on to college, got full scholarships to the School of Education in return for promising to go back to Harlem to teach after graduation.

THUS THE STUDENTS get the chance for a career in teaching, and the community will get an influx of trained, motivated teachers to help other kids escape from the slums.

Many colleges and universities are also involved in the anti-poverty program. The Ford Foundation helped the University of Wisconsin to establish a Department of Urban Affairs in Milwaukee and launch a program to help the poor there improve living conditions and opportunities; Rutgers to develop an anti-poverty effort in Newark; and Purdue to conduct a family service effort in Chicago. Dozens of other universities are engaged in tackling the urban dilemma.

THESE ACTIVITIES pay off for both the schools and the cities.

The university faculty represents the best brains in the area, people of ability, genius and vision. By setting them to work on urban problems, cities can get ideas and expertise available nowhere else.

The public schools are perhaps in the best position to benefit from this partnership. Fresh ideas and fresh faces are needed more than anything else and the colleges have them. But they are not the only source of new vitality for public schools.

Today's Youth Needs New Free Enterprise Insight

BE YOUR own boss.

Go into business for yourself and answer to no one but yourself. Or, own your own farm and be completely self-sufficient and completely independent.

These were the great American dreams starting with the colonists and continuing as a U. S. tradition until recently.

The great dream has so faded in popularity with the young that it remains only as a memory in older adults.

AS LITTLE AS a generation ago, a huge majority of young college students aspired to business careers.

As little as a decade ago, statistics indicate, a third to half of young college students still aspired to careers in business.

Today all that has changed. Almost none of the young students have any business ambitions (only 13 per cent, according to one recent survey).

The "image" of business has fallen, among the young, to probably its lowest point in all American history.

Opinion polling among our youth reveals that young people today believe a business career holds no challenge, offers no potential satisfaction, fills no need of society. Business profits are an unnecessary evil; everybody would be better off if government tightened controls on business and perhaps took over more and more of the fields occupied and functions performed historically by American business. These are the unfortunate views of the young.

To repeat, the "image" of business has fallen, among the young, to probably its lowest point in all U.S. history.

IS THIS REALLY bad?

It may be good to the extent that it discourages our young from adopting goals and values epitomized in "How To Succeed . . . ," "Room At The Top," and in contemporary novels and other plays dealing with "Madison Avenue" environments.

But to the degree that our youth are reaching adulthood with a lack of appreciation for the American free enterprise system (which has, with all its faults and needs for improvement, produced the highest standard of living in all human history), today's attitudes are backward and deficient.

NOTHING IN HUMAN history has done so much for so many as our traditional incentive system, on which American business is built.

Challenge? Potentional? Filling a need?

A small group of imaginative young fellows down in Orange County (average age between 25 and 30) dreamed of a brand new airline that would operate non-stop direct between San Francisco and Orange County airport (on the outskirts of the county seat, Santa Ana, and only a short drive from Disneyland and Orange coast beach resort communities).

They applied to regulatory authorities for the necessary approval to establish the airline. To their surprise, they won their authorization, without opposition.

THEY NEEDED six million dollars to equip and operate the new venture until it got on its feet. They got permission from regulatory authorities to sell stock. Their enthusiasm was catching; the stock issue was oversubscribed.

About three months ago the two-plane airline ("Air California") began operations with five round trips daily. Business has far exceeded cautious expectations. A third plane is being acquired. There are now seven round trips daily with nine on weekends. More will be added when the additional plane goes into service.

Stock which was sold for $10 per share has risen to $23. Passenger traffic is about 50 per cent greater than anticipated.

The imaginative young Orange Countians seem to have a howling success on their hands.

No challenge? No potential? Not filling a need?

HOW CAN THE CHALLENGES, potentials and public needs for incentive enterprise be explained to our youth?

The Junior Achievement program—relatively new in Marin and thus far implemented only on a limited scale—does the job.

With technical advice from a sponsoring organization (in Marin PG&E, Northwestern Pacific Railroad, Fairchild Semi-Conductor and Holiday Magic are the only sponsors thus far), groups of 20 teen-agers form "companies" to manufacture and market a product.

A Junior Achievement company's life is about 30 weeks. In that time, a "corporation" is formed. Stock is sold to raise money. Officers, directors and corporation executives are selected. Decisions are made as to what product could be produced to fill a need (and therefore could reasonably be expected to sell).

Materials are obtained, the product is fabricated in the quantity projected for the market, the product is sold, and the company is finally liquidated with stockholders receiving a profit if their risk was successful.

ADULT ADVISORS ALL say the same thing:

When a new group of youngsters gather to form a company, many have less than the highest regard for American business. By the time their project is complete, they all emerge with a new understanding of and appreciation for the free enterprise system.

They are boosters for American business; they have seen the challenge, the potential and they take satisfaction in having met a public need through the marketing of a new product.

Junior Achievement deserves support so its program can be expanded in Marin. Unfortunately, a drive for funds, underway here for a couple of months, has thus far reached only half its modest Marin goal.

It deserves to surpass its goal. Today's teen-agers should not be deprived of an understanding of and appreciation for the free enterprise system's contributions to public welfare.

Hollis Congratulates Youth For Concert

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Last Saturday more than 2,400 youth and adults gathered at a rock and roll concert at the Mount Tamalpais Outdoor Theater. The afternoon event was sponsored by the Marin Youth for Action as a benefit to help finance projects designed to promote better communication between youth and adults. The first of these will be a conference, "Psychedelics and Youth — A Dilemma?" on Saturday, April 22, at the College of Marin gymnasium.

I personally visited the concert and thoroughly enjoyed the program. The very well behaved crowd was even more impressive. Obviously, those in attendance were there to enjoy the beauty of the mountain, the fabulous view, and the modern music. Cooperation and a willingness to have a trouble-free event prevailed.

Marin Youth for Action, and the youth who attended, are to be highly complimented by the people of Marin for having conducted the event in a very creditable manner. Credit should also go to Mount Tamalpais State Park officials and law enforcement officers who so understandingly cooperated in helping to make the concert so enjoyable.

Why Didn't I-J Report TV Speech?

Last week Martin Luther King, Pulitzer winner, made one of the greatest speeches of this or any century, carried in the evening by the ABC network. Next morning I looked for it in the newspapers but it was cavalierly briefed on an inside page.

Well, I thought, the I-J will be smart on this one, with a chance to scoop the great competition holding all those journalistic honors. Nothing in the I-J EITHER!

Freedom of the press is guaranteed in our constitution — specifically made one of the underpinnings of democratic procedures so that the public can be kept informed. By what legerdemain does the iron hand and the credibility gap control our sources of information and acquiescence in international infamy 3,000 miles away from the nabobs of napalm?

AFRICAN HOT SPOT-- France Keeps the Peace

French Somaliland, a tiny patch of desert, hardly seems worth the trouble, but France is determined to stay. The colony's port of Djibouti is vital to Ethiopia, but the Somali Republic would like to seize it. If that happened, war might break out in East Africa, dragging in the great powers.

France Uses An Iron Fist In Somaliland To Avert War

By DENNIS NEELD

DJIBOUTI, FRENCH SOMALILAND (AP) — A suspect referendum, mass deportations and a sledge hammer military action have strengthened the French grip on their last little colony in Africa.

But by keeping French Somiland, French President Charles de Gaulle may have averted a conflict embroiling Africa's eastern horn in a war threatening to involve the United States and Russia. "French presence in this troubled region is the keystone to an arch" said Gov. Louis Saget on the referendum eve. "If it were withdrawn, equilibrium and peace might be threatened."

Saget's remark was a clue to French determination to remain in this arid patch of sand and scrub no bigger than New Hampshire. The French have ruled it for 80 years.

Following three days of riot and violence which greeted his visit here last August, De Gaulle promised the colony a referendum to decide its future. It was given the choice of independence or continued association with France.

With the electors list heavily weighted against those in favor of independence, the referendum result was never seriously in doubt. Of the colony's 125,000 people, 58,000 are Somalis and 48,000 Afars. The rest are French and Arabs.

Almost to a man the Somalis wanted independence, with a possible view to eventual union with the neighboring Somali Republic. The Afars, their traditional foes, were happy to stay with France. On the voters list there are 14,000 Somalis as against 22,000 Afars.

The French took no chances between DeGaulle's visit and the March 19 referendum. At least 6,000 Somalis were expelled to the Somali Republic. A United Nations request to observe the ballot was ignored.

The referendum ran true to form and so, too, did the violence which greeted its predictable result — 22,555 votes for France, 14,666 for independence.

Swollen by reinforcements to more than 7,000. French troops and police were braced for trouble. The Somalis, concentrated in the capital of Djibouti, ran riot through the streets and alleys of their shantytown district. Governor Saget claims many were armed with guns, knives or Molotov cocktails, and were incited by political leaflets to rebellion and civil war. Newsmen who watched the action saw only stones in Somali hands.

Backed by armored cars with machine guns blazing, French troops moved ruthlessly against the demonstrators. Within 20 minutes they had stormed hastily erected barricades and ground resistance into the dust. At leat 12 and perhaps as many as 20 Somalis died in the one-sided battle. Three Frenchmen were slightly injured.

A dusk-to-dawn curfew was clamped on Djibouti's African quarter and curfew-breakers shot on sight. Paratroops and Foreign Legionnaires went from shack to shack rounding up thousands of Somali men and women. They were trucked off to a desert detention camp to await deportation.

But the Somali Republic refused to admit them and back they went to the detention camp. Saget charged the Mogadishu government with "deception" and with turning its back on brother Somalis.

French officials reported plans for establishing a permanent penal settlement for 500 hardcore nationalists, and for handing over another 1,500 to the Ethiopians, who like Afars, are longtime Somali enemies.

About 3,000 eventually will be released after screening, and permitted to remain in the colony provided they behave themselves, said French officials.

With the commercial center of Djibouti slowly returning to normal, the city's African quarter looks like an occupied enemy capital. Sandbagged strongpoints bristle with machine guns and Africans are continually stopped for identity checks. The area is stiff with troops.

Afars from outlying regions have been brought in to work, and Governor Saget announced new development plans for the colony, concentrating almost exclusively on the north. There seemed little future for a Somali in French Somaliland and many planned to leave. The French could not be more pleased.

Saget reports Ethiopian and Somali Republic troops are in position around the colony's border, but the referendum result probably has averted a clash which seemed likely had the vote gone the other way. Its port and 486-mile railroad linking it with Addis Ababa are the colony's sole claims to importance.

Djibouti still is Ethopia's main outlet to the sea and a vote for independence would have endangered that outlet. Emperior Haile Selassie threatened to move in if Ethiopia's interests were jeopardized. In Mogadishu the government of the Somali Republic vowed to use force to prevent any such takeover.

Kenya, whose north-eastern region is claimed by the Somalis, is linked with Ethopia by a mutual defense treaty. The Ethopian army, 40,000 strong, is trained and equipped by the United States, and American advisors serve with its four divisions. The Somali army of 9,000 is trained and equipped by the Soviet Union.

Thus a clash between the two states over French Somaliland could have set off a conflict threatening the stability of much of eastern Africa, and involving two great powers. However it was obtained, the colony's vote for the French to stay has likely been greeted with relief in several foreign capitals.

Four Main Tax Plans Compete As Saviours Of State Budget

SACRAMENTO (AP) — To the average taxpayer gnawing on his pencil and muttering under his breath while trying to figure out his 1966 taxes, the huge tax plans now before the legislature may seem beyond understanding.

They're not. You don't have to have a college degree or a background in economics — your training is sufficient if you are a taxpayer.

Debate centers around four major tax programs.

All would accomplish at least two things — increase state aid to local public schools and cut the local property tax bill. All would provide a big boost in state taxes.

They all count on one particular source of income as the keystone — the sales tax on retail goods.

VENEMAN — Introduced by Assemblyman John G. Veneman, R-Modesto, chairman of the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee. It would raise $1.2 billion in new revenues, is the largest tax bill in any state's history and the most complex plan now before lawmakers; it includes withholding income tax.

REAGAN — Introduced by Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach for Republican Gov. Reagan. It would bring in $946 million in new money, still about four times larger than the previous highest state tax boost, and includes higher income taxes.

UNRUH — Introduced by Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, D-Inglewood. Unlike the first two, it is fairly simple and not nearly as large in new funds raised—$380 million, mostly via a one-cent sales tax hike.

MONAGAN — Introduced by Assembly Minority Leader Robert T. Monagan, R-Tracy, and co-sponsored by Democratic Assembly Speaker pro tem Carlos Bee of Hayward. It, too, is not as complex as the two larger bills and its total is $375 million, including a one-cent sales tax hike.

Seal population is showing increases on Pribiloff Islands, off Alaska, thanks to an agreement between the U. S., Great Britain and Russia, which made the island a refuge.

Unions Eying Civil Service Plum

By SAMUEL SHARKEY JR.
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — The nation's biggest bloc of workers—civilian public employees — has passed 11.5 million persons and is increasing by some 70,000 a month.

The payroll for these federal, state, county and local workers is over $5.5 billion a month, and soaring by about $50 million a month.

It is not surprising, then, that trade unions are stepping up their organizing of government employees, who now number one out of every 6.5 workers in the country.

The ultimate result can have a profound effect on the nation because unionizing leads to militancy, which in turn breeds strikes and demands for wage boosts, which require higher taxes.

In the last 15 years, state and local government employees have increased by 94 per cent and their payrolls by 278 per cent, according to a new survey by the Census Bureau. In the same period, federal workers increased 13 per cent.

Of the present 2.9 million civilian federal employees, almost 1.1 million are coverd by union representation.

Representation does not necessarily mean union membership, but well over 900,000 actually are in unions, according to the U.S. civil service commission.

The unions' most fertile field lies at the state, county and local level. Of more than 8.6 million in those ranks. Only a little over 700,000 are organized.

The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees is the leader, with more than 350,000 members. The American Federation of Government Employees has close to 235,000 and the teachers union between 100,000 and 135,000.

Workers below the federal level are expected to increase by 48 per cent by 1975, according to a recent U.S. Labor Department projection, a slowing down from the recent rate.

The lower rate is forecast because of an anticipated substantial reduction in public school enrollments.

The big booms are expected in state and local health activities due to Medicare and the growing number of older persons. Jobs in this field are projected to soar 70 per cent, from 741,000 to 1.4 million, in 10 years.

This plus the rising militancy among nurses and other hospital workers points to a big jump in medical costs in future years.

Pollution becomes a job factor as local governments seek to clean up streams, rivers and the air in conjunction with federal programs. The Labor Department predicts a 90 per cent rise in workers in sanitation fields.

The soaring employment in these and other governmental jobs is producing headaches for government managers, who must try to pull more money out of the taxpayers' pocketbooks.

The major complaint of public workers, particularly at the state and local levels, is wage inequities.

This is a key point in demands put forward by Jerry Wurf, dynamic president of the fastest-growing union in this field, the state, county and municipal employees.

He points out that many workers in municipal or state jobs are paid 10 to 30 per cent less than those doing the same or comparable work for private employers.

State and municipal officials protest they cannot raise wages to a point of parity with private employers because of limitations on their budgets — which means taxpayers' dollars.

But Wurf and other union leaders insist governments are putting the cart before the horse. Wurf declares:

"The officials should negotiate their wage package first, and then go to the budget-makers and say 'here is how much you're going to have to carve out for payrolls.'

"It's dead wrong the way they do it now, when they finalize the budget first and then say to their employees, 'that's all there is in the budget, we can't give you anything.' "

Government officials say their hands are tied in bargaining because in most cases they cannot lock out strikers, as the trucking operators did to the teamsters this past week, or go out of business if union demands are too high.

NEW GOP FACES

Bob Taft Jr. Bears Weighty Tradition On His Shoulders

By MARGARET A. KILGORE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It's not easy when your name is Taft and you're expected to carry on the family tradition of success in American politics.

Granted, there are certain assets — including friends, money, influence and the respect automatically accorded to your name.

But there is also the terrible challenge of living up to the reputation of a great-grandfather who was a noted diplomat; a grandfather who was both President of the United States and Chief Justice of the Supreme Court; and a father who became one of the immortals of the U.S. Senate and who is still remembered by millions as "Mr. Republican."

That is the burden of expectation which weighs upon the shoulders of 50-year-old Rep. Robert Tamt Jr., R-Ohio, fourth member of a dynasty that has few peers in American history.

When "Young Bob" Taft first came to the House of Representatives i n1963, as Congressman-at-large from Ohio, he was lionized by Washington hostesses as the Republican answer to the Kennedy family.

In 1964, after one term as Congressman-at-large, he decided to run for the Senate against aging Democratic Sen. Stephen M. Young. Taft was the odds-on favorite. Everyone assumed that a Taft couldn't lose in Ohio.

But he did lose — by 17,000 votes — as Lyndon B. Johnson swept into the White House in a landslide victory over Barry Goldwater that left a string of GOP candidates wondering what hit them.

For months, no one seemed to know what Taft was going to do. He traveled a bit, tended to his law practice in Cincinnati, and enjoyed his four children.

Then he began accepting out-of-state speaking engagements to garner national attention, and the word went out that he would run for the House from Hamilton County. The seat was held by freshman Democratic Rep. John J. Gilligan, who liked Washington and wanted to remain.

The two men, both big and handsome, conducted a vigorous campaign. President Johnson went to Ohio to campaign for Gilligan and everyone said it would be a close race.

On election night, the results weren't known until long after midnight. Taft had defeated Gilligan by a margin of more than 5,000 votes. He is delighted to be back in Washington.

He has a modicum of seniority based on his previous term in Congress, but essentially he is just another of the many new Republicans elected last November. He was assigned to the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which he finds stimulating.

"It is quite different being here under Johnson compared to Kennedy," Taft said. "Kennedy was much more candid. I think Johnson's biggest failing is that he doesn't trust the people."

Reminded that when he was here in 1963 he criticized the late President Kennedy for essentially the same shortcomings he now attributes to Johnson, Taft grinned and said:

"Well, I guess that's what makes me a Republican and them Democrats."

Taft said he feels the 1968 presidential nominations are wide open for both parties. He has joined other Ohio Republicans in boosting Gov. James A. Rhodes as a favorite son for the GOP nomination, although Rhodes professes disinterest.

Asked if he would try for the Senate in 1968 when Sen. Frank J. Lausche's seat becomes available, he shrugged "Who knows? It's too early to tell. I'm thoroughly enjoying just being back in the House."

EXTREME VIEWS FOR CONVENTION

Can States Working Together Change The U.S. Constitution?

By DON BACON
(Advance News Service)

WASHINGTON — One senator has characterized the latest attempt by the states to amend the Constitution as "closely resembling an assault by the Marx Brothers on Fort Knox."

Others view it grimly as potentially the most dangerous threat to the union since the Civil War.

Neither of these extremes accurately describes the current drive for a "Constitutional Convntion" of the states, which is rapidly approaching a critical juncture.

While the likelihood that Congress would allow such a convention is remote, the drive itself is serious. It represents only the first battle in a growing campaign to put the states in control of the Constitution, thus giving them veto power over actions of the federal government.

In the present drive ,32 states have asked Congress to call a convention to overturn the Supreme Court's "one man, one vote" decisions, which since 1962 have forced nearly every state legislature to reapportion its membership along population lines.

If Congress calls the convention, the delegates would not be bound, however, to limit themselves to the reapportionment issue.

They could — and many constitutional specialists fear they would — take up also amendments to limit federal authority in other areas where there has been recent conflict with the states — civil rights, taxation, public school prayers and Supreme Court jurisdiction generally, to name a few.

Convention requests from only two more states must come in before Congress has to face the issue. It is required, under the Constitution itself, to make the necessary arrangements for a convention whenever two-thirds of the states request it.

No such convention has ever been held, however. The alternative method of constitutional amendment — submitting the proposed amendment to the states for ratification after it has been approved by two-thirds of the House and Senate — has proved more workable.

Under either the convention or congressional procedure, the proposed amendment becomes effective only when ratified by three-fourths of the state legislatures.

Congress might get around the current dilemma be declaring some of the current convention requests invalid. Many of them are several years old, contain obscure wording or were sent by malapportioned legislatures that have since been replaced.

Congress could, of course, accept the convention "mandate" — the constitution says Congress "shall" set the wheels in motion whenever the proper number of states apply.

Whatever the decision, the event would be historically significant.

If the convention movement succeeds, it would, at the least, be the beginning of a greatly altered relationship between the federal and state governments. At worst, it could make a shambles of the entire federal system.

If this effort fails, there are other movements on the horizon. Proponents of state rights have, in recent years, rediscovered the constitutional amendment process as a possible source of power. Even before the latest drive for a convention surfaced, there were active campaigns among conservatives in many states to try to resolve their differences with the federal government through constitutional change.

Proposals designed to limit federal jurisdiction have flooded the legislative hoppers on Capitol Hill, although none so far survived.

Also under way is another movement for a convention of the states to establish a "court of the union," which would be made up of chief justices from the states and would have power to overrule the United States Supreme Court.

AFRICAN HOT SPOT-- France Keeps the Peace

French Somaliland, a tiny patch of desert, hardly seems worth the trouble, but France is determined to stay. The colony's port of Djibouti is vital to Ethiopia, but the Somali Republic would like to seize it. If that happened, war might break out in East Africa, dragging in the great powers.

France Uses An Iron Fist In Somaliland To Avert War

By DENNIS NEELD

DJIBOUTI, FRENCH SOMALILAND (AP) — A suspect referendum, mass deportations and a sledge hammer military action have strengthened the French grip on their last little colony in Africa.

But by keeping French Somiland, French President Charles de Gaulle may have averted a conflict embroiling Africa's eastern horn in a war threatening to involve the United States and Russia. "French presence in this troubled region is the keystone to an arch" said Gov. Louis Saget on the referendum eve. "If it were withdrawn, equilibrium and peace might be threatened."

Saget's remark was a clue to French determination to remain in this arid patch of sand and scrub no bigger than New Hampshire. The French have ruled it for 80 years.

Following three days of riot and violence which greeted his visit here last August, De Gaulle promised the colony a referendum to decide its future. It was given the choice of independence or continued association with France.

With the electors list heavily weighted against those in favor of independence, the referendum result was never seriously in doubt. Of the colony's 125,000 people, 58,000 are Somalis and 48,000 Afars. The rest are French and Arabs.

Almost to a man the Somalis wanted independence, with a possible view to eventual union with the neighboring Somali Republic. The Afars, their traditional foes, were happy to stay with France. On the voters list there are 14,000 Somalis as against 22,000 Afars.

The French took no chances between DeGaulle's visit and the March 19 referendum. At least 6,000 Somalis were expelled to the Somali Republic. A United Nations request to observe the ballot was ignored.

The referendum ran true to form and so, too, did the violence which greeted its predictable result — 22,555 votes for France, 14,666 for independence.

Swollen by reinforcements to more than 7,000. French troops and police were braced for trouble. The Somalis, concentrated in the capital of Djibouti, ran riot through the streets and alleys of their shantytown district. Governor Saget claims many were armed with guns, knives or Molotov cocktails, and were incited by political leaflets to rebellion and civil war. Newsmen who watched the action saw only stones in Somali hands.

Backed by armored cars with machine guns blazing, French troops moved ruthlessly against the demonstrators. Within 20 minutes they had stormed hastily erected barricades and ground resistance into the dust. At leat 12 and perhaps as many as 20 Somalis died in the one-sided battle. Three Frenchmen were slightly injured.

A dusk-to-dawn curfew was clamped on Djibouti's African quarter and curfew-breakers shot on sight. Paratroops and Foreign Legionnaires went from shack to shack rounding up thousands of Somali men and women. They were trucked off to a desert detention camp to await deportation.

But the Somali Republic refused to admit them and back they went to the detention camp. Saget charged the Mogadishu government with "deception" and with turning its back on brother Somalis.

French officials reported plans for establishing a permanent penal settlement for 500 hardcore nationalists, and for handing over another 1,500 to the Ethiopians, who like Afars, are longtime Somali enemies.

About 3,000 eventually will be released after screening, and permitted to remain in the colony provided they behave themselves, said French officials.

With the commercial center of Djibouti slowly returning to normal, the city's African quarter looks like an occupied enemy capital. Sandbagged strongpoints bristle with machine guns and Africans are continually stopped for identity checks. The area is stiff with troops.

Afars from outlying regions have been brought in to work, and Governor Saget announced new development plans for the colony, concentrating almost exclusively on the north. There seemed little future for a Somali in French Somaliland and many planned to leave. The French could not be more pleased.

Saget reports Ethiopian and Somali Republic troops are in position around the colony's border, but the referendum result probably has averted a clash which seemed likely had the vote gone the other way. Its port and 486-mile railroad linking it with Addis Ababa are the colony's sole claims to importance.

The Ethopian army, 40,000 strong, is trained and equipped by the United States, and American advisors serve with its four divisions. The Somali army of 9,000 is trained and equipped by the Soviet Union.

Thus a clash between the two states over French Somaliland could have set off a conflict threatening the stability of much of eastern Africa, and involving two great powers. However it was obtained, the colony's vote for the French to stay has likely been greeted with relief in several foreign capitals.

No such convention has ever been held, however. The alternative method of constitutional amendment — submitting the proposed amendment to the states for ratification after it has been approved by two-thirds of the House and Senate — has proved more workable.

Under either the convention or congressional procedure, the proposed amendment becomes effective only when ratified by three-fourths of the state legislatures.

Congress might get around the current dilemma be declaring some of the current convention requests invalid. Many of them are several years old, contain obscure wording or were sent by malapportioned legislatures that have since been replaced.

Congress could, of course, accept the convention "mandate" — the constitution says Congress "shall" set the wheels in motion whenever the proper number of states apply.

Whatever the decision, the event would be historically significant.

If the convention movement succeeds, it would, at the least, be the beginning of a greatly altered relationship between the federal and state governments. At worst, it could make a shambles of the entire federal system.

If this effort fails, there are other movements on the horizon. Proponents of state rights have, in recent years, rediscovered the constitutional amendment process as a possible source of power. Even before the latest drive for a convention surfaced, there were active campaigns among conservatives in many states to try to resolve their differences with the federal government through constitutional change.

Proposals designed to limit federal jurisdiction have flooded the legislative hoppers on Capitol Hill, although none so far survived.

Also under way is another movement for a convention of the states to establish a "court of the union," which would be made up of chief justices from the states and would have power to overrule the United States Supreme Court.

Catholic Views Being Reshaped

NEW YORK (UPI) — The possibility of an encouraging new chapter in relations between the Roman Catholic Church and Eastern Europe is seen bv the Insiders Newsletter in quiet negotiations that have been going on between the Vatican and the Hungarian government.

Quoting Vatican sources, the Newsletter says the discussions center around the fact that five Hungarian bishops have reached the normal retirement age of 75 set by the Ecumenical Council. At issue is whether the Vatican can name five new bishops who would not be subservient to the Hungarian Communist regime.

The Field Is Crowded In Novato

Eight File For Board Jobs; Only Three Seats At Stake

J. WALLIS MADOCKS
Petroleum engineer

One of the more crowded fields of candidates is in the Novato Unified School District, where eight persons, including three incumbents, are running for four vacant seats on the board.

The candidate boom started when a fourth incumbent, William Vandergriff, withdrew from the race because he is leaving Northern California.

JEAN A. ANSLEY of 1294 Cambridge Street, an incumbent' has served since the unified district was formed in 1964, and before unification was on the San Jose Elementary School District board. She is an instructor and coordinator for the nursery school teacher aide program at College of Marin, and previously directed the North Marin Nursery School for eight years.

She is a graduate of the University of Minnesota, and is a member of the advisory board of Marin Hills Nursery School, the National School Boards Association and the American Association of University Women. She is the mother of two children.

DAN H. BARBER of 1294 Parkwood Drive, incumbent, also served on the San Jose board before unification, and was elected president of the Novato unified board when it formed. He is safety engineer for Standard Oil Company of California's refinery at Richmond. He holds a bachelor's degree in engineering from the University of Southern California. He is the father of four children.

At a recent candidates' meeting Barber rated the Novato district as one of the more efficient in the state. He advocated continued curriculum studies, and continued construction planning to meet district growth.

LEONORA M. Dougherty of 2211 Center Road, incumbent, has served since 1959 on the Novato board before and since unification. A native California, she is a graduate of San Rafael High School. She has served as president of West Novato P-TA, was secretary for Hill Intermediate School P-TA and North Marin Council of P-TA, and has served as secretary for the school board.

Mrs. Dougherty favored unification and gave this summary of local school problems: "I feel taxes are high and look to favorable tax structure measures on the state level. However, the cost of maintaining our level of education is constantly increasing. We have managed to operate our schools with our present tax rate for several years.

"In the event I was convinced the education of our children was suffering from lack of funds, I would have to favor an increase in local revenue."

CAROLYN M. Crabtree of 663 Cherry Street, mother of two girls, has held office in Olive School P-TA and been a member of North Marin Council of P-TA since moving to Marin in 1962. Born in West Virginia, she attended Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore, and Strayer Business College and the American University in Washington, D.C.

Before moving to Novato she worked for District of Columbia public schools, was on the managerial staff of the Baltimore Symphony and was assistant program manager for several eastern television stations.

AVAJEAN B. Anderson of 270 Fairway Drive, another West Virginia native, is a member of the P-TA, the Novato Chamber of Commerce and the American Association of University Women. She was owner and manager of Nova Marin Employment Services until closing the firm last November for family responsibilities. She holds a degree in personnel management from Columbia University, and has 10 years of business experience.

She is chairman of the Novato Chamber of Commerce education committee, and was on the board of the Volunteer Bureau of Marin County in 1965.

ELLIS BENGE of 7 Haverhill Court, an accounting examiner for Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, is father of four children, three attending West Novato School. Benge has recommended closer cooperation between the schools and municipal government, and has advocated allowing non-denominational prayers in schoolrooms.

IRVING D. Chapman Jr. of 1462 Pastel Lane, owner of Chapman's Shoes of Novato, is a native of San Rafael. Father of four children, he is a past president of the Novato Chamber of Commerce, the Novato Kiwanis Club, the Novato Golf Association and the San Rafael 20-30 Club. He is chairman of the Retail Merchants Committee.

Chapman said he is satisfied the board is doing a good job, but believes his business experience should be helpful to the board.

J. WALLIS MADOCKS of 14 St. John's Court is an engineer with Phillips Petroleum Company in San Francisco. He is a graduate of University of California at Berkeley with bachelor's degrees in engineering and business. He is the father of two children.

In a campaign statement, Madocks opposed a bond issue for Novato schools and said, "Property taxes for schools are too high. Relief . . . as currently being considered in Sacramento should help. I feel the property owner should be given some relief by a state sales tax or income tax increase for school districts." He favored better coordination of the board, administration and teachers, and teachers' advice to the board on the type of classrooms needed. He opposed team teaching in large rooms as a return to the one-room school idea.

Three New Faces Seeking West Marin School Posts

VLADIMIR NEVL
Restaurant man

Neither of the two incumbents whose terms expire on the West Marin School District Board sought re-election, but there are three candidates to fill their places.

Contending from the vacancies created by retirement from the board of Dr. Gordon W. Plattes and Donald J. McIsaac are Vladimir Nevl, Robert Borello, and Robert W. Giacomini.

Vladimir Nevl of Inverness Way, Inverness, is a restaurant proprietor in Point Reyes Station. He was born in Czechoslovakia and attended schools there. Leaving his native country, he was on the Australian equestrian training squad for the 1956 Olympic Games. Then he came to the United States—and West Marin. He is a Coast Guard Reserve member.

Robert W. Giacomini is a Point Reyes Station rancher, and was born in Petaluma. He attended the old Black School in what is now West Marin School District, Tomales High School and University of California at Davis. He was in athletics in both high school and college. He is a member of the Native Sons and the Marin County Farm Bureau.

THERE IS NO contest this year for the Kentfield School District Board, the two incumbents running unopposed for re-election. They are attorney Lawrence Goldberg of Larkspur, left, and insurance broker Kenneth L. Treganowen of Kentfield. Both are completing their first four-year terms on the Kentfield board.

Election Day Is Tuesday

Tuesday is school board election day throughout Marin County.

There is some kind of contest everywhere.

San Rafael voters, who chose their city school board last Monday, will vote again Tuesday to elect four members of the Marin Junior College District Board and to re-elect Mrs. Adele J. Alpers, who is without opposition to the county school board.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. in most districts. However, in the Reed School District they will be open from 7 a.m. to 7:30 p.m.; in Fairfax, Kentfield and Sausalito districts, from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., and in Nicasio School District, from 1 to 7 p.m.

In only one district — Dixie — is there a bond issue proposal combined with election of trustees. Dixie District seeks approval of a one-and-a-half million dollar bond issue to finance school construction through 1971. The bonds require a two-thirds affirmative vote for passage.

The Independent-Journal sought to present in this special section something of the platforms and biographies of all candidates for the various boards, together with their pictures. Some did not respond to the invitation for material, however, and some responded only partly. Most of the candidates are included. All are mentioned.

No Contest For County Board Jobs

There is no contest this year for the Marin County Board of Education, and Tuesday's election will result in no change in its makeup.

In each of the four trustee areas where the incumbent's term expires, the incumbent is seeking re-election. And in none of them is there opposition.

The four are Mrs. Edith Kanoff of Novato, Mrs. Adele J. Alpers of San Rafael, James A. Carroll of Ross, and Lee C. Richardson Jr. of Inverness. Richardson was appointed in 1965 to replace Ben Roark. Mrs. Kanoff was appointed in September, 1963, to replace Walter L. Johnson. Mrs. Alpers has served on the county board ever since it became elective. Carroll will be elected Tuesday to his second four-year term.

There's Field Of Three On Lagunitas Ballot

Two challengers and one incumbent are battling for two seats on the Lagunitas School District Board.

One of the challengers is Mrs. Judith L. Fullick, a housewife, of Arroyo Road, Forest Knolls, who has served as president of the Lagunitas School Parent-Teacher Association.

MRS. FULLICK, a graduate of the University of California, with a degree in art, formerly served as president of the Pixie Parents organization.

Glen E. Twitchell, 36, of Lagunitas, the second challenger, is seeking to return to the board. He was elected to a four-year term in 1961, but didn't seek re-election in 1965.

TWITCHELL, A project engineer for Chevron Chemical Co., in Richmond, last year was appointed chairman of a committee to advise the board on facilities to be constructed under a proposed building program.

A native of Watsonville, he received a bachelor of science degree from the University of California at Berkeley.

"I favor total unification of the Tamalpais High School District attendance area," Twitchell said. "I would favor a smaller unified district only if the tax base becomes equivalent to a larger district."

He believes that "all taxes in general are too high but that the best buy for taxes is education."

SEEKING RE-ELECTION is William G. McBride, 51, of 111 Meadow Way, San Geronimo, who was elected in May, 1964, to replace Mrs. Georgette Vilas, who was recalled.

McBride is building inspector and zoning administrator for the town of Corte Madera. A native of Seattle, Wash., he is a graduate of the University of Washington.

Trustees In Dixie District Will Have No Opposition

There will be no contest for two seats on the Dixie School District Board as the two incumbents seeking re-election, Earl H. Koehler and Melvin R. Stidham, are unchallenged.

Koehler, 46, of 2125 Danberry Lane, Marinwood, was elected to his first term in 1963 after serving on the district finance committee and district library committee.

Koehler is western department claims manager for Automobile Mutual Insurance Co. of America in San Francisco. He is a graduate of the University of Missouri with a degree in psychology and served as a staff sergeant in the Air Corps during World War II.

Stidham, 41, of 8 Cabrillo Court, San Rafael, was elected to his first term in 1963. He is a San Francisco patent attorney.

He was graduated from the Illinois Institute of Technology with a degree in mechanical engineering and received his law degree at Southern Methodist University.

Incumbent And Four Others In Bolinas-Stinson Contest

There are five candidates in the race for two seats on the Bolinas-Stinson School District Board, only one an incumbent.

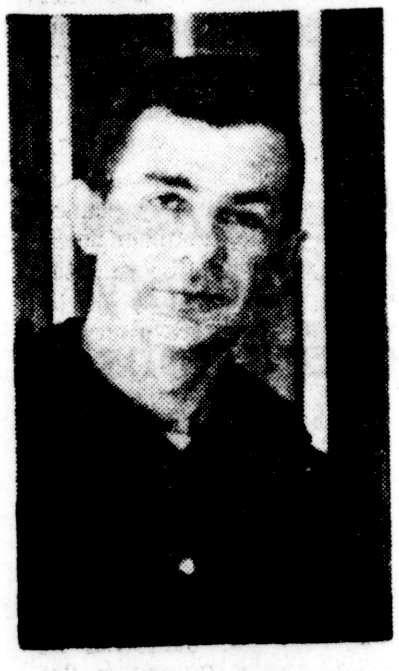
Seeking re-election is Arthur E. Carpenter of Star Route, Bolinas, a furniture and cabinet designer and maker. He was appointed to the board in August, 1958, elected in 1959 and re-elected in 1963.

A native of New York City, Carpenter was graduated from Dartmouth College. He served as a lieutenant in Navy intelligence in World War II with duty in the Pacific.

One of the challengers is Mrs. Edith N. Sarraille, a housewife, of 30 Crescent Avenue, Bolinas.

Mrs. Sarraille said, "I am definitely opposed to Bolinas-Stinson remaining in the ever expanding Tamalpais High School District, if it is at all possible and practical to withdraw and form a new unified West Marin School District (West Marin, willing, of course.)"

She said she hopes to send her three children, now attending grammar school, to a high school "on this side of the hill."



ARTHUR E. CARPENTER

Three Have Filed For Two Positions In Reed District

Two Incumbents, Former Board Member Are On Tuesday's Ballot

THOMAS S. PRICE
Board member

LEO SOUZA
Former trustee

MARILYN STEINAU
An incumbent

Three candidates, two of them incumbents, are campaigning for two seats on the Reed School District board of trustees.

Thomas S. Price of 7 West Shore Road, Belvedere, incumbent, was appointed to the board in February to replace David D. Ring, who is running for the Tamalpais High School District board. He is a graduate of Principia College, St. Louis, and is president of Price Building Specialties, Inc., of San Francisco. He is a Belvedere city councilman and the father of two children.

IN RESPONSE to an Independent-Journal questionnaire, Price wrote: "The basic ideas for unification are sound. The results are varied. In the Reed Unified School District the level of our curriculum would probably suffer, as we are now offering an above-average program. The idea of unification could be sold if the size of the district were smaller than proposed. Perhaps if the Tiburon Peninsula has a high school, a workable two-way split might be feasible that would include Sausalito, Mill Valley and ourselves.

"The burden of taxation on real property is out of line . . . I've worked for three years on the Belvedere Council as finance chairman and have been able to reduce Belvedere's tax rate each year. I'm not convinced that this approach is not also available for the school district. My efforts will be directed to this end.

"We have a bond issue pending that I will wholeheartedly support, as I feel its purpose is necessary and well researched."

LEO SOUZA of 20 Seafirth Road, Tiburon, is not an incumbent but served on the Reed school board from November, 1960, to December, 1964. He resigned then because of many other demands on his time, including duties as city councilman, committee member on the Tiburon Peninsula Coordinating Council, and secretary of the Seafirth Property Ownwers Association, and because he wanted more time to work toward unification of a school district smaller than the entire Tamalpais High School District.

Souza holds a bachelor's degree from Fresno State College and a master's from Stanford University. He is operations manager of the California Inspection Rating Bureau in San Francisco.

Souza led a 1965 campaign as general chairman of a committee against unification of the entire Tamalpais High School district, aiming at smaller-scale unification.

Souza's questionnaire statement said: "A sensible unified school district should have boundaries coterminus with each city and its environs. If any such area is not large enough to support a comprehensive high school program, then two or more cities should be combined to form a unified district. Local control, area support and community interest should be controlling factors for establishing boundaries of a unified district. The 'right' size is therefore directly dependent on the size of the community. I would support unification of all or a majority of the area east of Highway 101.

"Yes, school property taxes are too high! For years the state legislature has been cognizant of this growing problem. Not only have they failed to provide a remedy, they have aggravated the situation by adding mandatory requirements while actually providing less financial support. As a solution, sales taxes should be increased to five cents. Two cents should be earmarked for education . . . The local school board should be held responsible for receiving full value for each dollar spent.

"Our district is in need of an additional school. A bond issue will be proposed in the fall, and I shall support it."

MRS. MARILYN Steinau of 32 Windward Road, Belvedere, has served on the board four years The mother of two children, she is a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley and also received a teaching credential there.

Her statement said: "The citizens of the Reed School District have twice expressed themselves in opposition to a large unified district. I feel that I fairly represented the proportion who voted 'Yes.' I think the law that requires repeated elections (in case of unification defeat—ed.) is wrong, and I have supported the resolutions of our board designed to change the law.

"The peculiarities regarding financial benefits and penalties arising out of these unification elections are being tested in the courts. It has cost the Reed School District thousands of dollars and I am very much opposed to that.

"School taxes will remain high and be higher as long as the local property tax remains the foundation of school finance. Until some other method of statewide taxation for schools is found, the local property owner will have no relief. Sixty to 65 per cent of our budget is salaries for certificated personnel. We have a fine staff and we must pay competitive salaries. The state's percentage of local school support has dwindled steadily, but at the same time the state has demanded increased scope of curriculum."

MILLVALLEY DISTRICT

Three Will Contend For Two Positions

An incumbent and two challengers are vying for two seats on the Mill Valley School District Board.

Joseph E. Bodovitz, 36, of 10 Hollyhock Court, appointed to the board last year, is making his first run for a seat on the board.

BODOVITZ, executive director of the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission, formerly was the education writer for the San Francisco Examiner.

He holds a bachelor's degree from Northwestern University, and a master's degree in journalism from Columbia University.

Bodovitz supports unification of the Tamalpais High School District and the elementary schools within its boundaries "as the best and fairest plan for school unification in southern and central Marin County."

He also supports "efforts to find varied means of governmental financing for schools, so that our programs of education will not have to depend so heavily on property taxes. But I also believe in high quality education, and I believe that we have a responsibility as American citizens to provide a sound education for all the children in our schools."

Bodovitz also supports the three million-dollar bond proposal to be placed before Mill Valley voters June 13 for construction of a middle school and improvements of existing schools.

John K. Robinson, 39, of 550 Ralston Avenue, is director of the Coro Foundation in San Francisco, which offers college graduates training in public service through an internship program.

ROBINSON has been a member of the Mill Valley Planning Commission since 1963 and is currently vice chairman.

He served as a consultant to Mills College and to the University of Hawaii on training programs and is a consultant to the Asia Foundation on on training of officials from developing countries in local administration and community dynamics. He is a graduate of the University of Chicago.

Robinson said: "While unification is not an immediate issue at this time, I would favor an eventual district including at least two high schools." He cited efficiency, economy and coordination as his reasons. He said he would oppose any unification plan "which would leave at serious disadvantage any of the current districts of our county."

On taxes he said: "While taxes are high for all of us, I do not believe our present Mill Valley School District system can be charged with presenting more than a good minimal, basic, sound education.

He said tax relief should be sought "in new ways of operating economically, such as in joint purchasing with other governmental bodies, as well as in re-examination of the better distribution of property tax loads."

He supports the June 13 bond issue "to finance, over a five-year period, development of a 6-7-8 grade school at the Project 17 site."

This seems to be the next best step because of the possibility of cooperation with the city to develop jointly used recreation facilities for use of both schools and city, he said. "The bond issue would allow needed improvements for all Mill Valley schools."

MRS. ANN ELIZABETH Hepp of 155 Elm Avenue, a housewife, is chairman of the Parents Association for Neighborhood Schools.

She was a member of the Parent - Teacher Association Council study group on school organization and has been a volunteer librarian at Park School since 1961.

She is a graduate of Stanford University and assists her husband, Carl in his direct mail advertising business.

Mrs. Hepp said, "I concur with the Marin voters who have twice rejected as too large the total Tamalpais unification. Local control of our public schools is essential."

On taxes, she said, "I would oppose any local tax raise at this time. The new administration in Sacramento has pledged to return state support of schools to the 50 per cent level as soon as possible. Intolerable tax pressures on homeowners must be relieved. Careful, responsible expenditure of public funds is essential."

The school bond measure proposed in Mill Valley June 13 will provide much-needed classrooms and other facilities, she said.

The scope and location of the building program is still nebulous and the questions of phasing out existing schools yet unresolved, she contended. "I feel the board of trustees must be very specific in any proposal it sets before the Mill Valley voters at this time."

Mrs. Hepp said she would strongly oppose closing down any of the present schools unless the people in that area had indicated "that this was their wish."

MILL VALLEY DISTRICT

Three Will Contend For Two Positions

An incumbent and two challengers are vying for two seats on the Mill Valley School District Board.

Joseph E. Bodovitz, 36, of 10 Hollyhock Court, appointed to the board last year, is making his first run for a seat on the board.

BODOVITZ, executive director of the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission, formerly was the education writer for the San Francisco Examiner.

He holds a bachelor's degree from Northwestern University, and a master's degree in journalism from Columbia University.

Bodovitz supports unification of the Tamalpais High School District and the elementary schools within its boundaries "as the best and fairest plan for school unification in southern and central Marin County."

He also supports "efforts to find varied means of governmental financing for schools, so that our programs of education will not have to depend so heavily on property taxes. But I also believe in high quality education, and I believe that we have a responsibility as American citizens to provide a sound education for all the children in our schools."

Bodovitz also supports the three million-dollar bond proposal to be placed before Mill Valley voters June 13 for construction of a middle school and improvements of existing schools.

John K. Robinson, 39, of 550 Ralston Avenue, is director of the Coro Foundation in San Francisco, which offers college graduates training in public service through an internship program.

ROBINSON has been a member of the Mill Valley Planning Commission since 1963 and is currently vice chairman.

He served as a consultant to Mills College and to the University of Hawaii on training programs and is a consultant to the Asia Foundation on on training of officials from developing countries in local administration and community dynamics. He is a graduate of the University of Chicago.

Robinson said: "While unification is not an immediate issue at this time, I would favor an eventual district including at least two high schools." He cited efficiency, economy and coordination as his reasons. He said he would oppose any unification plan "which would leave at serious disadvantage any of the current districts of our county."

On taxes he said: "While taxes are high for all of us, I do not believe our present Mill Valley School District system can be charged with presenting more than a good minimal, basic, sound education.

Four Seek Office In Sausalito District

One Board Member, Three Newcomers Are Contending For Three Positions

MARTHA FREEBAIRN-SMITH
Housewife, incumbent

RAYMOND G. GERGUS
Naval architect

JAMES E. MULDOON
Boys center official

DOUGLAS J. QUIETT
Probation counselor

One incumbent and three challengers are in the race for three seats on the Sausalito School District Board.

The incumbent is Mrs. Martha Freebairn-Smith of 608 Sausalito Boulevard, who was appointed to the board last July to succeed Mrs. Jessie Zimmer who moved to Texas.

MRS. FREEBAIRN-Smith, a housewife, is a graduate of Stanford University and is working toward a master's degree in education at the University of California at Berkeley.

Mrs. Freebairn-Smith has endorsed a single educational plant on the Bayside School site.

A NATIVE OF San Francisco, he holds a bachelor's degree in engineering from the University of California at Berkeley.

He is a member of Save Our Shores Association, Sausalito Citizens Council and Friends of the Sausalito Library.

Gergus said the district budget this year is approximately $1,050,000 and students attendance 887. "This results in a cost per student which is significantly higher than in our adjacent district. Part of this higher cost is due to the low pupil-teacher ratio which I consider to be necessary in our district. However, our administrative staff level is high and should be reviewed."

There is no bond or tax measure pending, he noted. "However, a school bond issue may be proposed at a later date to finance new school construction which is now under study. There are several features of the current proposal with which I do not agree, and I would not favor a bond issue based on that proposal."

James E. Muldoon, 47, of 100 Central Avenue, is executive secretary of Hanna Boys Center, near Sonoma.

HE WAS A member of the Sausalito Recreation Commission since June, 1960, until last month when he resigned because of his candidacy for the school board.

"Although sympathetic with aims of unification for very small districts, I oppose it for this district," he said. "Legislative pressures for unification seem to have eased, and I object to the implicit loss of local control by district citizens and their forced acceptance of bonded indebtedness."

Muldoon also said that district taxes are too high "and would be much higher under presently proposed building plans. We spend nearly $1,200 per child from district taxes, considerably more than our adjoining districts."

He said he hopes for economies "in a financially more realistic combining of scattered school facilities than that contemplated by the present proposal. I would seek establishment of a strong basic curriculum which would make unnecessary a large staff of specialists to cope with disciplinary problems arising from a lack of such a curriculum."

Muldoon also noted that a bond issue is contemplated. "I would have to oppose the proposal of which it is a part in its present form, calling for a single lavish school plant, and the sale of most of the district's very valuable land."

DOUGLAS J. Quiett, 26, of 8 Buckelew Street, Marin City, is a county probation department group counselor and a college student.

Quiett formerly was acting director of the Marin County Community Relations Services, but he left that post last fall to work nights at Juvenile Hall and attend classes days.

Quiett is the founder of the Marin Chapter, Congress of Racial Equality, and served as chairman until he resigned in July, 1965.

Fields Sparse In Some Areas

He is the incumbent.

In the Lincoln district, where two trustees are to be chosen, only David H. Leveroni III filed.

And in the Union and the Point Reyes districts, no official candidacies were filed. Each has one seat to fill.

Fairfax Board Certain To Gain Two New Members On Tuesday

No Incumbents Among Candidates In That District's Vote Contest

Fairfax School District voters will be electing two new school board members from a field of four candidates, no matter who wins.

All candidates for the two seats are non-incumbents.

MRS. JANE S. Durr, a housewife, of 470 Cascade Drive, has been a Parent-Teacher Association president and is a member of the Citizens Planning Committee of Fairfax, Schools and Recreation Division.

A native of Cincinnati, she was graduated from the University of Cincinnati with a degree in chemistry. She has been active in Fairfax School District elections for the past three years.

Mrs. Durr said: "I am in favor of the unification of all elementary schools within the presently existing Tamalpais Union High School District."

She said two drawbacks to elimination of the local districts are: (1) "Not every unified district is well administered and ends up in worse condition than before. (2) The close identification of the citizens with a local board is not as great."

However, she said, "It is to our advantage that Fairfax continue its efforts to effect single unification of elementary school districts so that it will coincide with the present Tamalpais Union High School District and make more efficient use of the school tax dollar. I will make every effort to see that if unification arrives, it will be efficiently administered."

Mrs. Durr also said "the state should be on the lookout for other sources of incomes for schools than the property tax and a measure to provide tax relief for the fixed income group should be promoted."

MRS. PRISCILLA C. Gray of 16 Ridge Road, is a teacher in the San Francisco Unified School District. She is a member of the Fairfax Festival Committee and secretary-treasurer of the Manor Hill Homeowners Association.

A native of Oakland, she received a bachelor's degree in English at Stanford University and a master's degree in education at San Francisco State College.

Mrs. Gray said, "I agree with the basic intent of unification and the obvious educational and economic benefit it could afford a four-school district such as Fairfax. My only question would be unify with whom?"

If the district would unite with larger wealthier districts, it would be most advantageous, she said. "But if we were obliged to unite with districts poorer than our own, it could be disastrous."

Mrs. Gray said that school taxes are too high, and after last year's reassessment "of this area, local property taxes increased drastically. She said she hoped that the legislature "will at least accept the principle that the property owner should be relieved of part of the burden of school support."

JANE S. DURR
Housewife

PRISCILLA S. GRAY
School teacher

LEONARD A. WEISS
College instructor

If there is no basic change in taxation policies, "I would sincerely suggest that we reconsider the idea of a state lottery to support the schools," Mrs. Gray said. Other states have developed workable lottery systems, and "I believe California could too, if it becomes necessary," she said.

LEONARD A. Weiss, 37, of 403 Scenic Road, is an English instructor at the College of Marin.

A native of San Francisco, he received his bachelor's degree at San Jose State College and his master's degree at the University of California at Berkeley.

Weiss served as a special agent with military counterintelligence in Washington, D. C., from 1953-55, and works as a U. S. civilian employee in Germany, 1955-57.

"I differ from those who propose unification on political or philosophical grounds, but must support it economically until such times as gross inequities now prevalent amongst school districts are remedied," Weiss said.

"A child must not be asked to pay the price for living in a community where, for example, a large number of retired persons on fixed income makes it virtually impossible to raise new sources of revenue for the operation of the schools.

"Education for the young in today's world is a necessity for the very preservation of the society itself and must, like the water supply, be uniformly and universally excellent," he said.

Weiss said he felt that property taxes are much too high, yet "schools often have too little money with which to operate effectively," and that some other means of school finance must be found with a broader and more equitable tax base.

"Technically, very little can be done about this on the local level, but we must make our voices heard much more clearly in Sacramento."

Frank H. Fradelizio, an auditor, and a father of six, is the fourth candidate. At candidates' night affairs, he has expressed the wish that the district might gain the financial benefits of unification without experiencing the loss of local control, and has said he doubts the wisdom of a proposal to eliminate automatic promotion of pupils.

The name of Mary A. Sherman will also appear on the Fairfax list, making a total of five. However, she has withdrawn from the contest for personal reasons.

Two Women In Contest At Laguna

Two women, one an incumbent, will be battling for one open seat on the Laguna School District Board.

Mrs. Agnes Terribilini of 2582 Chileno Valley Road, Petaluma, is seeking re-election. She has been on the board since 1958, first by appointment, then twice by election.

She is being challenged by Eda Tomasetti of 2170 Chileno Valley Road, Petaluma.

However, she said, "It is to our advantage that Fairfax continue its efforts to effect single unification of elementary school districts so that it will coincide with the present Tamalpais Union High School District and make more efficient use of the school tax dollar. I will make every effort to see that if unification arrives, it will be efficiently administered."

Mrs. Durr also said "the state should be on the lookout for other sources of incomes for schools than the property tax and a measure to provide tax relief for the fixed income group should be promoted."

MRS. PRISCILLA C. Gray of 16 Ridge Road, is a teacher in the San Francisco Unified School District. She is a member of the Fairfax Festival Committee and secretary-treasurer of the Manor Hill Homeowners Association.

A native of Oakland, she received a bachelor's degree in English at Stanford University and a master's degree in education at San Francisco State College.

Mrs. Gray said, "I agree with the basic intent of unification and the obvious educational and economic benefit it could afford a four-school district such as Fairfax. My only question would be unify with whom?"

If the district would unite with larger wealthier districts, it would be most advantageous, she said. "But if we were obliged to unite with districts poorer than our own, it could be disastrous."

Mrs. Gray said that school taxes are too high, and after last year's reassessment "of this area, local property taxes increased drastically. She said she hoped that the legislature "will at least accept the principle that the property owner should be relieved of part of the burden of school support."

JANE S. DURR
Housewife

PRISCILLA S. GRAY
School teacher

LEONARD A. WEISS
College instructor

If there is no basic change in taxation policies, "I would sincerely suggest that we reconsider the idea of a state lottery to support the schools," Mrs. Gray said. Other states have developed workable lottery systems, and "I believe California could too, if it becomes necessary," she said.

LEONARD A. Weiss, 37, of 403 Scenic Road, is an English instructor at the College of Marin.

A native of San Francisco, he received his bachelor's degree at San Jose State College and his master's degree at the University of California at Berkeley.

Weiss served as a special agent with military counterintelligence in Washington, D. C., from 1953-55, and works as a U. S. civilian employee in Germany, 1955-57.

"I differ from those who propose unification on political or philosophical grounds, but must support it economically until such times as gross inequities now prevalent amongst school districts are remedied," Weiss said.

"A child must not be asked to pay the price for living in a community where, for example, a large number of retired persons on fixed income makes it virtually impossible to raise new sources of revenue for the operation of the schools.

"Education for the young in today's world is a necessity for the very preservation of the society itself and must, like the water supply, be uniformly and universally excellent," he said.

Weiss said he felt that property taxes are much too high, yet "schools often have too little money with which to operate effectively," and that some other means of school finance must be found with a broader and more equitable tax base.

"Technically, very little can be done about this on the local level, but we must make our voices heard much more clearly in Sacramento."

Frank H. Fradelizio, an auditor, and a father of six, is the fourth candidate. At candidates' night affairs, he has expressed the wish that the district might gain the financial benefits of unification without experiencing the loss of local control, and has said he doubts the wisdom of a proposal to eliminate automatic promotion of pupils.

The name of Mary A. Sherman will also appear on the Fairfax list, making a total of five. However, she has withdrawn from the contest for personal reasons.

Two Women In Contest At Laguna

Two women, one an incumbent, will be battling for one open seat on the Laguna School District Board.

Mrs. Agnes Terribilini of 2582 Chileno Valley Road, Petaluma, is seeking re-election. She has been on the board since 1958, first by appointment, then twice by election.

Tamalpais Campaign A Spirited One

Two positions on the Tamalpais High School District Board are to be filled in Tuesday's election; and, although only three candidates are in the race, the contest has been one of the most spirited in the county.

DAVID D. RING
Law firm member

DR. JOHN C. SIEMENS
Hospital administrator

BETTE WALLACE
Incumbent trustee

Probably adding to this has been the large number of public appearances of the candidates, since they have been invited to forums along with candidates of each elementary school district within Tam district — and have responded regularly.

Two of the candidates are incumbents: Dr. John C. Siemens, who has served on the Tam district board since 1961 and previously was a member of its citizen advisory committee, and Bette (Mrs. Joseph B.) Wallace, who was appointed to the board last September. Third candidate is David D. Ring, who resigned from the Reed District board to run for the high school board.

Siemens declared he is "strongly opposed to any unification proposal that would divide the existing Tamalpais Union High School District." Mrs. Wallace and Ring both said unification should not be an issue in this election, but expressed hope a workable unification plan may be found.

While none of the three called directly for reduction of the district's tax rate, Ring suggested that "rather casual budget practices" have resulted in accumulating a too-large reserve and incline to cause wasteful spending — and an unnecessary tax rate.

Here are brief biographies of the three:

DR. JOHN C. SIEMENS, 10 Turnagain Road, Kentfield, a prominent physician, is administrator of Ross General Hospital, executive director of the Tamalpais retirement residence, and active in operation of Novato General Hospital and the Ross Valley Clinic. He has played many civic roles, with YMCA, United Crusade, etc., as well as being active in Marin Medical Society and a board member of the California Hospital Association. He and his wife, Marguerite, have two daughters and a son, all married.

BETTE WALLACE, wife of Joseph B. Wallace of 134 Buena Vista, Corte Madera, served 10 years on the Marin County Committee for School District Organization before being appointed to the Tam board. She also has been active in the Reed Parents Club, and in committees concerned with schools, as well as in Girl Schout, Boy Scout and conservation activities. She majored in enonomics at University of California and has had 15 years of business experience. She and her husband have four children, the youngest now attending Redwood High School.

DAVID R. RING, 1060 Mountain View Drive, Tiburon, is a member of the law firm of Hazlip, Ring, O'Donnell and Moore in San Francisco. He served eight years on the Reed School District Board and has been a member of the County Committee on School District Organization since 1965. He and his wife, Joan, have three children.

All are longtime residents of the district. Both Siemens and Ring served in the Navy in World War II.

Large Field Seeks Four Seats In Tuesday Vote

FRANCIS J. CARR

ELIZABETH DEEDY
Asks another term

HARRY J. MOORE
High school dean

FRANCIS JAMES PICCHI

ROBERT E. ROGERS
Board president

THOMAS J. SKORNIA
Tax specialist lawyer

EDWARD K. WACHSMAN

One of the largest fields in Marin County's school board election next Tuesday has entered the race for four seats on the Marin Junior College District Board.

There are eight candidates, three of them incumbents seeking re-election.

FRANCIS J. CARR, 57, of 110 Hivista Road, Sausalito, an attorney and tax consultant, is research attorney for the Third District Court of Appeals.

He resigned as manager of Pacific Gas and Electric Co.'s tax department Jan. 1 after serving in the post for 20 years.

Carr is chairman of the pilotage rate committee for San Francisco, San Pablo and Suisun bays and is a member of the finance advisory committee of the College of Marin.

MRS. ELIZABETH M. Deedy of 1 Garden Road, Ross, who was first elected to the board in 1958, is seeking re-election.

A native of Georgia, Mrs. Deedy received a bachelor's degree at the University of Pennsylvania and a master's degree in psychology at the same university.

Before she was elected to the college district board, Mrs. Deedy had served on the Mill Valley School District Board for two terms.

He has taught and coached at both Novato and Marin Catholic high schools, and is a member of the Novato Parks and Recreation Commission.

A native of San Francisco, Moore holds bachelor and master's degrees from San Jose State College.

Commenting on unification, Moore said that it can be beneficial or detrimental.

"Districts that unify for only a monetary advantage can awaken later to disillusionment," he said. "Districts that unite for educational improvements and/or enhancement of services will probably be more than happy with the results. The Novato district has definitely benefitted from the experience."

He said that he has some reservations about the present unification law, and "the use of a monetary inducement that borders on coercion to effect the legislature's intent is poor at best."

On costs, Moore said the increase in the cost of living and the increase in the number of students has driven educational costs upward in Marin.

"There are so many more children today in relation to the number of people who are paying the taxes that costs will be high," Moore contended.

Steps can be taken to alleviate the present burden of high property tax, he said, and he made the following recommendations: (1) Revision of the allocation of state funds to school districts. (2) Increasing the sales tax and earmarking the money specifically for educational purposes. (3) "Passage of a tax-lowering Marin Junior College bond issue for needed facilities."

The expense of building a new North Campus under the present 35-cent over-ride, pay-as-you-go system would be too costly, Moore said. "Therefore a bond issue is necessary to provide a lower tax rate and the desired facilities."

SARAH S. NOME, a house wife of 39 Bayview Avenue, Mill Valley who is seeking office for the first time, has stressed the property tax burden in her candidates' night talks.

He is a member of the Citizen's Finance Advisory Committee of the college district, and a retired Air Force major.

Picchi retired from Hamilton Air Force Base in 1958 after 22 years of active duty.

He has served on the Marin County Real Estate Board and was chairman of the board's education committee.

Picchi holds a bachelor's degree from San Francisco State College, and has a credential to teach adult real estate classes. He is an instructor in real estate theory and investment at Hamilton Air Force Base.

He believes in area representation on the college board, based on population, rather than selection on a county-wide basis.

Picchi believes that a Novato resident should be on the board to represent the interests of the people of that area.

ROBERT E. ROGERS, 52, of 4720 Paradise Drive, Tiburon, who was appointed to the board in 1961 and elected in 1963, is seeking re-election.

Rogers, owner of Paint N' Putter store, 1621 Bridgeway, Sausalito, is currently president of the board.

He formerly served on the School District Organization Committee and the Sausalito School District Board. He is president of the Sausalito Chamber of Commerce.

"School monies should be available to offer the finest educational opportunities to all." Rogers said. "Perhaps a shift of tax burden to other than property tax should be examined without a loss of local control."

THOMAS A. SKORNIA, 32, of 105 Camino Bueno, Ross, who was appointed to the board in December, is making his first race for a seat on the board.

Skornia, an attorney, is a tax specialist with the San Francisco law firm of Miller, Groezinger, Petit, Evers and Martin.

He received his bachelor of arts degree from Grinnell College, Iowa, and his law degree from Harvard Law School.

Skornia said that he favors extension of the Marin Junior College District to all remaining areas in Marin County not now included in the district.

He would oppose unification of all elementary and high school districts in Marin with the junior college district, as is the case in Los Angeles County.

On taxes, he said: "I do not believe as a general matter that taxes supporting schools are too high because I believe that any significantly lesser tax at this time would impair the quality of education. However, I do believe that property taxes supporting schools are too high and that there needs to be a reexamination of the sources of school taxes followed by a fairly imaginative restructuring of school financial support."

He said there must be a move away from the present situation where 70 per cent of the College of Marin budget is provided by property taxes "to a structure in which the state, either through remission of funds from other tax sources such as sales or income tax, or through increased equalization aid, is responsible for the major part of the college's budget."

Of a bond issue, he said the board "may shortly act affirmatively on the recommendations of its financial advisory committee" and propose a bond issue. He said he is in favor of proposing such a bond issue to the voters. The bond issue would have the effect of reducing the present capital improvements over-ride tax, he said.

EDWARD K. Wachsman, 31, of 50 Palm Avenue, San Rafael, is an insurance broker and a partner in the Wachsman-Nixon Co., San Rafael.

Wachsman, a former member of the Marin County Planning Commission, is a graduate of the College of Marin and the University of California at Berkeley.

He also is a member of the Citizens Advisory Finance Committee for San Rafael City Schools.

Wachsman said he opposed county-wide unification. "I feel that unification is generally a good idea, but only in the instances where it is within an existing school district, not where separate school districts are being unified together."

On taxes, Wachsman said: "School taxes are definitely too high." Methods that might be applied to reduce or stabilize taxes, he listed as:

"(a) A good part of the cost of education is the result of capital improvements, buildings etc. To my view, a good deal or the building that has taken place comes close to being ostentatious; there are many facilities that are provided that are really unessential for education; i.e., air-conditioning, for one. When dollars are so dear and generally taxes are so high, it means, then, that everybody, students, teachers and the public should accept a little less than the ultimate in all areas except that of direct academic pursuits.

"(b) I believe there is some room for increased efficiency in the administration of school systems which can and do produce operating savings.

Four Vie For Two Posts In San Anselmo

Incumbents Busse And Weden Are Joined By Two Challengers

Four candidates, two incumbents and two challengers, are vying for two seats on the San Anselmo School District Board.

One of the incumbents is Mrs. Cornelia B. Busse of 20 Berkeley Avenue, who was appointed to the board last September to complete the term of Mrs. Doris Harnsberger, who resigned.

MRS. BUSSE was president of Brookside Parent-Teacher Association 1965-66, and has been a board member of the Marin County Red Cross Chapter for the past 10 years.

"I have actively worked for the passage of unification for the total Tamalpais district and shall continue to do so," she said. "It is the only unification proposal that will not leave San Anselmo in a poor financial situation."

On taxes, Mrs. Busse said, "Taxes in general are high but school revenues are insufficient to accomplish education as it must be done today. The present system for financing schools could be revised, with the state assuming the major burden rather than the local districts."

JAMES L. Husband, 30, of 109 Van Tassel Court, Sleepy Hollow, is an electrician, who studied labor management at the University of San Francisco.

Husband has served two years on the Sleepy Hollow Parents Club board, and was an unsuccessful candidate for the district board two years ago.

Husband contended that taxes are a major concern of San Anselmo residents. "The red light is on," he said. "We are in a danger zone. Until financial aid and property tax relief from the state becomes a reality, I could not in good conscience vote for any new expenditures other than necessities and emergencies."

He claimed, "Areas in which a saving of taxes or efficiency could be strengthened are:

(a) Leadership and co-ordination between the school board and the Parks and Recreation department is needed for a better program and a meeting of minds to avoid expensive duplication of activities.

(b) A member of the school board should have experience in the field of construction to avoid any costly errors of judgment in the maintenance, remodeling and new construction of schools in our district."

Husband said that unification, at this time "becomes purely an academic question until proposed legislation is voted upon, and a new district study begins." He said he would not "sit idly waiting" for new developments on unification, but begin "our much needed improvements now."

The second incumbent in the race is Dr. Elmer A. Weden Jr., 42, of 49 Oak Knoll Drive, San Anselmo, who was elected to the board in 1963.

DR. WEDEN is a surgeon with offices at the Northgate Medical Center, Terra Linda, and has served as president of both the Northern California Extension and the Marin Branch of the Henry George School of Social Science.

Weden supports "the idea of unification of all eleven elementary districts around the Tamalpais Union High School district. For the San Anselmo School District to unify with two or three other elementary districts around only Drake High School would be financially disastrous."

As an alternative to accepting a poor unification proposal, "I would favor maintaining the present elementary school districts and the Tamalpais Union High School District as independent entities, as they now are," he said.

The question of whether the school taxes are too high, breaks down into two separate questions, Weden said.

"1. Is the cost of educating a child high or low in comparison to other districts? The answer to this question involves not only district efficiency, but also the philosophy of the community with regard to the quality of education it offers. These two factors determine the total dollar cost to the community of maintaining its schools.

"2. The total dollar cost of education may be raised through several forms of taxation, either singly or combined. If the total cost of education is excessive, then taxes, no matter which kind, are going to be too high. Since the taxpayer pays the education costs, whether the money is raised locally or through the state and federal governments the question is not of how much but rather 'which tax'?"

Weden said he favors emphasis on the property tax for two reasons:

"1. Taxpayers can readily identify and complain about the allocation of their property tax dollar.

"2. Expensive undeveloped land in a community derives most of its value from access to schools, fire and police protection, roads and other community created services, even though it does not use them. The property tax allows the community, which provides these services, to tax the increase in land value, which it, the community, has created. To the extent that we untax land by increasing the sales and income taxes, we subsidize the vacant land holder by providing access to community services, this enhancing his land values, without making him pay his proportionate share of the cost."

MRS. MARY TAYLOR Olive of 7 Agatha Court, San Anselmo, is a housewife and former high school and elementary school teacher.

A native of Mishawaka, Ind., she was graduated from the University of Chicago and McGill University, Montreal, Canada.

"I favor school district unification and as a board member would support this policy," she said.

On taxes, she said, "I feel that too great a proportion of the financing of our schools comes from the property tax and I favor the proposals put forward by Governor Reagan and Speaker Unruh to reduce the burden of the local taxpayer."

Mrs. Olive said she would use her experience as a teacher "to assure the district of continued interest in new developments in teaching procedure."

She also commented, "I would favor fiscal projects that benefit the most children. A kindergarten class limit of 25 would benefit children throughout the district more than a new bus used primarily as a supplement to field trips.

Tomales High Has 3-Man Race With 2 Incumbents, Challenger

The incumbents are Joseph Tremari of Bloomfield, Sonoma County, and Richard Velloza Jr. of Point Reyes Station. The challenger is Michael McLean of Point Reyes Station.

Tomales High School District recently saw the narrow defeat of a bond issue for building a new high school. This is to be resubmitted to the voters. Tremari said, "I strongly supported the measure in February and will support it again."

McLean indicated he will also support the issue. He said he felt many people voted "No" because of a site controversy, but "the present building is unsafe and if the children are forced to go to another high school district we might lose our West Marin high school."

Tremari said he supports the proposal to unify the school districts in the Tomales High School District area, which is being resubmitted to the State Board of Education. McLean said he feels "it would be to our advantage to have all of West Marin, including Bolinas and Stinson Beach, in one school district."

Joseph James Tremari is a Petaluma native and a Tomales High School graduate. He is a dairyman. He is now serving on the Tomales High School District Board by appointment, and is active also in Druids, Native Sons, and Foresters of America. He and his wife, Dorothy, have three children attending schools.

Michael McLean is a building contractor, and is most widely known for his bloodhounds, with which he has made many searches for lost persons for law enforcement agencies. He is a special sergeant in the Marin County sheriff's department. He was born in Denmark, served in Danish and British Armies in World War II, then in the U. S. Marine Corps, and is a naturalized citizen. He moved from San Rafael to Point Reyes Station a few years ago.

Vancouver Greets Its Visitors With Floral Spectacular

Spring Blooms Are Everywhere In British Columbia Metropolis

EVEN NOW the grass is greening and trees are in full leaf.

It all begins with the dainty white snowdrop, the yellow aconite and the white, yellow and purple crocus in January. In February, rhododendrons, azaleas, primroses, japonicas, forsythias and hyacinths join the procession of bloom. And by the middle of March, everything seems to be flowering.

IN VANCOUVER, you don't have to go looking for spring flowers. You can't miss them. They're every place — downtown, uptown, everywhere.

One hundred thousand daffodils are massed along the road to Lion's Gate Bridge. There are 30,000 flowering trees along the city's main streets.

A popular place with visitors is the Queen Elizabeth Arburetum on Little Mountain. What started out as an unused quarry has been turned into one of the most photographed spots in North America. Its sunken garden shows off 20,000 tulips, and that is just part of the dazzling display.

THE JAPANESE gardens on the campus of the University of British Columbia is yet another special joy. Tiny streams, arched bridges, dwarf trees, and an air of serenity plus flowering trees all add to the pleasure of visitors.

Then there is Burnaby Mountain Park with an attractive display of daffodils, tulips and rhododendrons, as well as a magnificent view of the North Shore Mountains and Indian Arm.

NEARBY IS Simon Frazer University, more renowned for its architecture than its landscaping. This new concept in building is all concrete with flowing lines and graceful pillars, said to resemble the great Acropolis.

After you have admired Vancouver's floral display, there remains Victoria, one of the world's most beautiful cities. But then, that is another story.

Winnipeg Prepares To Play Host To Summer Sports Spectacular

This gateway city to Canada's golden west, long famous for its hospitality, will play host to over 3,500 athletes and untold visitors during the Pan-American Games, July 22 to August 7. Symbol for the occasion: a Canadian track star, has arms outstretched in welcome, a red maple leaf emblazoned on his chest.

This is the fifth time the Pan-American Games have been held, and the first time in Canada.

OPEN TO ALL countries in the Western Hemisphere, the Pan-Am Games will be the largest sporting spectacular ever held in North America. Filled to overflowing with colorful athletes and visitors, Winnipeg will also take on the air of a gay international carnival.

Spanish, Portuguese, English and French, the four major languages of the Western Hemisphere will be heard everywhere.

But from whatever country they hail,all those participating will spead one universal language . . . . sport.

And what a collection of sports:

THERE WILL BE everything from fencing, track and field, judo and cycling to swimming, rowing, volleyball and yachting. And although baseball and tennis are not Olympic events, they will be included in the attractions.

So far, 3,500 athletes have registered from 33 countries — and there probably will be more. This is the largest number of contestants in the 20-year history of the games. (They are held every four years, the year prior to the Summer Olympics.)

In and around Winnipeg there is a tremendous flurry of activity, preparing olympic-caliber sports facilities for the games, and for training Canadian athletes in the years to come. These new facilities include: track and field stadium near the University of Manitoba with a "tartan" composition non-slip track which is impervious to weather; a cycling velodrome with a 400-meter banked track; an indoor 50-meter swimming pool.

THE POOL IS wide enough for the eight lanes of international competition and will have moveable end bulkheads to permit competitive lengths to be adjusted.

Rowers and paddlers will hold their competitions on a three-mile stretch of the 67-million-dollar floodway located eight miles outside the city. Constructed to control the waters of the Red River, this completely straight stretch, containing 700 million gallons of water to a uniform depth of ten feet, provides one of the perfect rowing courses in the world . . . and its grassy sloping banks are ideal for onlookers.

Bird's Hill Park will be the scene for the equestrian events with the majority of the jumping, cross-country racing and dressage competitions taking place at this new provincial Centennial park, 12 miles north of the city.

For the first time in international competition the games' organizers will be supplying the craft used in the four classes of yachting races. These will be held on Lake Winnipeg, 65 miles north of Winnipeg.

PHOTOSPRINT, accurate to 1,000th of a second, is only part of the $250,000 worth of equipment aimed at providing split-second timing of events.

In the meantime, while Pan-Am Games officials are superintending the mechanics of the sporting events, the citizens of Winnipeg are preparing to open their arms — and their homes — to visitors. They are even learning Spanish for the occasion.

South American music will be piped into the streets and a Festival of the Americas, involving the arts — dancing, music, painting and sculpture — will add to the excitement.

THE PAN-AM Games will feature all the elements of a top-notch sporting event and a bang-up party as well.

An accommodation network will be operating in time for the games which will provide motorists with lodging information at any of the roadside tourist bureaus, and make reservations for them.

Anyone who wants to join the fun and needs more information, can write to Pan-American Games (1967) Society, P.O. Box 1435, Winnipeg 4, Manitoba, Canada.

Rowers and paddlers will hold their competitions on a three-mile stretch of the 67-million-dollar floodway located eight miles outside the city. Constructed to control the waters of the Red River, this completely straight stretch, containing 700 million gallons of water to a uniform depth of ten feet, provides one of the perfect rowing courses in the world . . . and its grassy sloping banks are ideal for onlookers.

Bird's Hill Park will be the scene for the equestrian events with the majority of the jumping, cross-country racing and dressage competitions taking place at this new provincial Centennial park, 12 miles north of the city.

For the first time in international competition the games' organizers will be supplying the craft used in the four classes of yachting races. These will be held on Lake Winnipeg, 65 miles north of Winnipeg.

PHOTOSPRINT, accurate to 1,000th of a second, is only part of the $250,000 worth of equipment aimed at providing split-second timing of events.

In the meantime, while Pan-Am Games officials are superintending the mechanics of the sporting events, the citizens of Winnipeg are preparing to open their arms — and their homes — to visitors. They are even learning Spanish for the occasion.

South American music will be piped into the streets and a Festival of the Americas, involving the arts — dancing, music, painting and sculpture — will add to the excitement.

THE PAN-AM Games will feature all the elements of a top-notch sporting event and a bang-up party as well.

An accommodation network will be operating in time for the games which will provide motorists with lodging information at any of the roadside tourist bureaus, and make reservations for them.

Anyone who wants to join the fun and needs more information, can write to Pan-American Games (1967) Society, P.O. Box 1435, Winnipeg 4, Manitoba, Canada.

Segment From The Tapestry Of History

THE EIGHTH DAY by Thornton Wilder, Harper & Row, 435 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Barbara L. Cullen.

The Creation took seven days, however strictly or loosely one interprets the measurement of time.

"Man is not an end but a beginning. We are at the beginning of the second week. We are children of the eighth day." We, all mankind, become epic wanderers and adventurers weaving an historical "tapestry." By focusing on a small segment of this tapestry, Thornton Wilder offers us a glimpse of the intricacies which underline the greater design of "The Eighth Day."

The plot is simple and effective.

A man, John Ashley, is unjustly accused of murder and sentenced to death. En route to his execution he escapes and becomes a fugitive. The ramifications of this act upon himself, his family and friends become the threads of history which Wilder weaves back and forth in time .

As each separate thread appears in the foreground, it alters the color and texture of his historical fabric, thereby giving to and acquiring from the latter new dimension and scope.

Ashley seems to be the very antithesis of the epic hero — a man "who lacked . . . humor, ambition, vanity, reflection" — a man "invisible." Yet it is precisely this anonymity which, shielding him from a preying, parasitic society, enabled Ashley to look toward the future as a "man of faith." As such he was able to be unobtrusively creative, bettering man's general condition while, at the same time, remaining unaware of his own worth.

The central locale from which the action initiates and to which we return to pick up each thread of the tapestry is Coaltown, Ill. Reminiscent of Sinclair Lewis's Gopher Prairie, Coaltown is provincial, narrow-minded, strangulating — typical of Anytown, U.S.A.

However, rather than focusing inward, Wilder projects the personal beyond the town's confines. He utilizes its negative force not to destroy or diminish man's fibre and spirit but to activate them into positive escape and growth.

In order to transcend the finite boundaries of time and space, Wilder presents a religious world embraced not by one God but by "the gods" — from Athena to Buddha. When Athena stepped down to aid John Ashley, she actually held out her hand to another Odysseus.

As the Ashley children pursue their own destinies, we are aware of their parents' endowments through Wilder's use of the leitmotif. The single characteristic, embellished in a poetical phase, becomes a pattern which reappears in other times and places.

The destiny of the "children of the eighth day" — is not clear. From the testimony of a child of its ranks, George Lansing, one would deduce it to be froth with suffering and torment.

THORNTON WILDER
A feast of ideas

Responsible for precipitating the tragedy that befell John Ashley, George was victim of man's growing inability to communicate with man. Yet was it really a tragedy? Had Ashley continued to live in contentment in Coaltown, he might never have ceased "dozing," never have awakened to realize his full potential and his children to their's. Need darkness always precede light?

And so Thornton Wilder brings his first novel since 1948 to a momentary pause. History is never a closed chapter and, as presented here, is a most forceful and gripping installment. Only in those few passages where Wilder breaks into authorial omniscience does the tone decline into that of the lecturing history professor.

Whereas the Stage Manager in "Our Town" was most effective as road guide and astute commentator, his counterpart in the novel (the "I" and "We" insertions) merely intrudes upon the reader's involvement. This is a small price to pay, however, for the searching and far-reaching ideas on which Wilder has us feast — plus providing a story so intriguing that its suspense is sustained throughout.

A History Of Man's Flirtation With Rockets And Space

HISTORY OF ROCKETRY AND SPACE TRAVEL by Werner von Braun and Frederick I. Ordway III, Thomas Y. Crowell Co., 224 pages, $14.95. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

This is the widest-ranging, most elegantly illustrated volume of what has become a flood of recent books in the field.

Author Von Braun was one of the pioneers of German rocketry including the V-2 and is now a very important cog in the U.S. space race wheel; Ordway was an information systems scientist in the space program and now heads a private aerospace industry.

Between them, they provide an encyclopedic, lavishly illustrated roundup that traces the ideas of space travel and rockets from the pre-Christian era to the Apollo program. Their obvious enthusiasm for their subject (after all, they are talking about their lives' work) shows through in their writing.

The book shies away from any hint of technical shop talk; the tables and history cannot be too complex for anyone capable of comparing horsepower ratings of late model cars.

Many other rocket and space travel books we have read cover some of the same ground, but Von Braun and Ordway do a better job of integrating the whole picture.

Particularly fascinating are the chapters on the lone, almost secret pioneering works of American rocket scientist Robert H. Goddard between World Wars, and the insight to German, Italian, French and English rocket attempts in the 30s. The theoretical breakthrough of Konstantin Tsiolkovsky, who decided that rockets were the only way to travel in space as far back as 1895, is reverently covered — but we would like to have seen a little bit more of the mathematics in which he thought.

If the book has any shortcomings, it is this entire avoidance of any explanations of the physical and mathematical problems of rocketry and astronautics. For instance, only the real rocket buff is likely to know why several stages of booster work better to put astronauts into orbit than one king-sized hunk of fireworks.

Aside from this niggling point, we were most satisfied with the book, particularly for its thorough review of missile history; the moon race, and everything leading up to Apollo. There, the book shows how quickly the space race changes.

All About Time From The Editors Of Life Magazine

TIME by Samuel Goudsmit, Robert Claiborne and the Editors of Life, Life Science Library Series, Time Inc. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

Like so many of Life magazine's articles, this volume is a kaleioscopic whirl around the boundaries of the subject, occasionally swooping briefly to its core.

This actually is a series of eight chapters-essays, ranging from an abstract discussion of what time is, through dazzling pictorial discussions of life's biological clock, the history of time measurement, Einstein's theory of relativity (in comic-book style, yet), the timing of the universe and ending with a surprising philosophical look at Man's emotional response to time and its passage.

The authors and consulting editors bear the highest of credentials; furthermore, they are kind enough to supply a bibliography for readers who want to know more about that which we never have enough of.

A Novel That Deals With Real People

THE BETTER PART by Kit Reed, Farrar, Straus & Giroux, 208 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

Mart's father runs the state correctional home for girls; and, seemingly, does not distinguish between her and the other inmates. It is the girl's dream that somehow she can make her father see the hopelessness of changing these hardened delinquents, and that the two of them can escape into "real life."

Angrily she pours her story into a tape recorder (that's the book) with such immediacy and honesty that the reader sits right up and pays attention. This is for real. And it's funny besides — Miss Reed has a pitiless ear for the dialect of young wisecrackers.

With her sidekick Duane, the chief pyschiatrist's son (who owes a definite debt to Holden Caulfield's little sister), Mart roams the school, missing little. The whole institution, girls and staff, is seen unwincingly, down to the codfish cakes for Friday night dinner.

Set off by a wild new prisoner, Mart does break out and begins to understand that she has not got the world, and Daddy, all doped out after all.

There is little to say against this small gem. The father does seem a little too obtuse, even for a social worker, and the resolution is frankly theatrical. But these are minor faults in a new book that actually brings us smack-up against real people. Highly recommended!

Two Marinites Spotlight The Natural Gifts Of San Francisco

By DON KEOWN

DON'T NEVER FORGET by Brigid Brophy, Holt Rinehart and Winston, 319 pages, $5.95.

His articles and his books on nature, and on man's relationship to his natural environment, are perceptive and persuasive arguments against waste and greed.

Some measure of his special ability for seeing through artificiality and superficiality and getting down to the real basics of life on this earth can be determined from the howls of anguish and anger that he so frequently provokes from the exploiters with his verbal thrusts.

Yet, Gilliam's writings are more than preachments. They also offer pleasurable, thoughtful, relaxing reading for those who need no convincing that man must learn to better conserve his resources if life on this planet is to remain a blessing rather than an ordeal. A descriptive piece by Gilliam is the next best thing to a hike along a nature trail or a trek into the wilderness.

"The Natural World of San Francisco" is Gilliam's most recent display of his remarkable talents and knowledge. It is a series of essays, some from his weekly column in the San Francisco Chronicle, in which he dwells upon the delightful diversity with which Mother Nature has endowed the city of San Francisco.

No other metropolis boasts more in the way of natural gifts, and man has had the wit to preserve at least some of these.

Gilliam catalogs the geological, botanical, biological, oceanographic and meteorological riches of San Francisco and its bay with such feeling and exactness that the reader, too, feels an excitement and enjoyment from those surroundings in his own senses.

We have read some criticism of the manner in which publisher Doubleday & Co. has reproduced the photographs. The work, it is true, is far short of Sierra Club standards. But it seems to us, nonetheless, effective. There is no color, and the flowers and animal life in particular might call for it. But, on the other hand, the fog, the clouds, the stark cliffs, the bare rock formations, etc., all seem to derive a moody, more dramatic quality from the black and white presentation.

It is a book that will be treasured especially by students of nature and by admirers of San Francisco. For those hapless few who do not fall into either category, we still suggest a trip through the pages of "The Natural World of San Francisco." Surely they will be won over.

BRIGID BROPHY, a young woman of mixed Irish and English ancestry, has established herself quite suddenly as something of a female Malcolm Muggeridge with her sharp commentary of biting satire, penetrating criticism, hearty humor and fresh, logical thinking.

"Don't Never Forget: Collected Views and Reviews" offers Americans who have not already met up with her in their magazines an opportunity to enjoy the pleasure of the company of this darling of British intellectuals.

Her writing is spiced by wit, but it is not intendad as levity. Indeed, she forewarns us: "People (even those who do not mean to be rude) often ask me whether my journalism interferes with my serious writing. As a matter of fact, my journalism is serious writing."

What follows is a series of articles from a number of publications, offering a delightfully irreverent and provocative look at a diversity of topics. She takes the hides off those who must prove their virility by stalking and killing lesser animals. She dares to question the morality of that most unassailable of human institutions, marriage. She likens today's woman, penned in by social pressures, to the animal confined in the modern cageless zoo. She has a sparkling descriptive piece on Lisbon. She traces the detective novel to its roots in the heroic myth. She discusses the complications of her own mixed Anglo-Irish background. She analyses brilliantly, and sometimes ruthlessly, a number of writers, old and new.

For instance, of Henry Miller: "Mr. Henry Miller has declared himself in favor of obscenity, which he calls 'forthright,' and against pornography. That is just as well, because Henry Miller lacks the skill of the commercial pornographer."

Of A. L. Howse's biography of Shakespeare: "Dr. Rowse conducts the trip in a prose half-timbered when it is not half-baked, thatched with disintegrating archaisms and inspired by the principal belief of the men who write the travel posters, namely that to string three epithets together without an 'and' between them will make anything on earth evocative, poetical, dignified. Unfortunately, Dr. Rowse is often undignified through verbal ineptitude . . ."

On the other hand, she can be astonishingly enthusiastic about Bette Davis and the actress' book "The Lonely Life": "Like all good works in literature, Miss Davis' autobiography brings out the existentialism in the reader. . . . Her ultimate star quality is to compel one to concur in her judgments."

Everything Miss Brophy says does not bring concurrence. But unfailingly it arouses interest and stimulates the thought processes. One suspects Miss Brophy will be with us a good long time, but that the year is not too distant when Malcolm Muggeridge may hear himself described as "the male Brigid Brophy."

Selling for 75 cents, this is a guide for the real woodsman. It is intended not for those who go camping in the comfort of their trailer with icebox and cookstove along, but rather for those who strike out into the wilds by backpack or burro, relying upon their wits and skills for their existence.

In fact, parts of the book appeared earlier under the explanatory title "Going Light With Backpack or Burro." These have been expanded and updated into an unusual and highly authoritative source of information for those who must answer the call of the wild.

Sleuths & Suspense

Let's go to the English seashore again, to the big dark Gothic house that is full of rooms and mystery, to its dark woods and whispery pines, and rusty gates. And while we're there let's discover the murder that's sure to happen, hear the footfalls in the dark, listen to the stark screams.

This house, of course, is peopled with strange old men and beautiful young women, and a couple of handsome young men (and there you have the makings of the subplot of love and losers), and troubled servants who shy at the very thought of a knife being plunged into an old woman's paralyzed body. Oh, and don't forget—the stakes are high: Great-grandfather's last will and testament, you know (he doesn't want the illegitimates to inherit).

Why it's favorite sleuth Detective Inspector Septimus Finch (all the way from Scotland Yard, you know). He's resting from old wounds, but shakes off his misery long enough to unravel that mess entangling The Towers next door.

All right, it's been done before. It will be done again — this story. And for a Crime Club Selection, the pace is just a hit too leaden. However, cozy up with a cuppa — the story's not all that bad for a rainy day.

"Are The New Iron-On Seam Bindings Practical?"

There is a new iron-on seam binding sold in variety and yard goods stores which, as far as they have been tested, appear practical. When these bindings first came out, the adhesive in the tapes didn't always hold up in drycleaning. However, the manufacturer made improvements in the product and it is safe for drycleaning on all excepting the very slickest hard finish fabrics. When failure to adhere does occur in some areas, the binding usually can be made to adhere again by standard pressing.

These bindings are a boon to the seamstress. She can put a hem in a skirt without sewing. She simply folds back the bottom of the skirt and irons on a strip of the self-adhering tape. Now that the manufacturer has made his tape safe for drycleaning, the binding is most practical.

It is a book that will be treasured especially by students of nature and by admirers of San Francisco. For those hapless few who do not fall into either category, we still suggest a trip through the pages of "The Natural World of San Francisco." Surely they will be won over.

BRIGID BROPHY, a young woman of mixed Irish and English ancestry, has established herself quite suddenly as something of a female Malcolm Muggeridge with her sharp commentary of biting satire, penetrating criticism, hearty humor and fresh, logical thinking.

"Don't Never Forget: Collected Views and Reviews" offers Americans who have not already met up with her in their magazines an opportunity to enjoy the pleasure of the company of this darling of British intellectuals.

No matter what her subject, and she ranges widely, Miss Brophy tackles it with complete candor and always from an original point of view.

Her writing is spiced by wit, but it is not intendad as levity. Indeed, she forewarns us: "People (even those who do not mean to be rude) often ask me whether my journalism interferes with my serious writing. As a matter of fact, my journalism is serious writing."

What follows is a series of articles from a number of publications, offering a delightfully irreverent and provocative look at a diversity of topics. She takes the hides off those who must prove their virility by stalking and killing lesser animals. She dares to question the morality of that most unassailable of human institutions, marriage. She likens today's woman, penned in by social pressures, to the animal confined in the modern cageless zoo. She has a sparkling descriptive piece on Lisbon. She traces the detective novel to its roots in the heroic myth. She discusses the complications of her own mixed Anglo-Irish background. She analyses brilliantly, and sometimes ruthlessly, a number of writers, old and new.

For instance, of Henry Miller: "Mr. Henry Miller has declared himself in favor of obscenity, which he calls 'forthright,' and against pornography. That is just as well, because Henry Miller lacks the skill of the commercial pornographer."

Of A. L. Howse's biography of Shakespeare: "Dr. Rowse conducts the trip in a prose half-timbered when it is not half-baked, thatched with disintegrating archaisms and inspired by the principal belief of the men who write the travel posters, namely that to string three epithets together without an 'and' between them will make anything on earth evocative, poetical, dignified. Unfortunately, Dr. Rowse is often undignified through verbal ineptitude . . ."

On the other hand, she can be astonishingly enthusiastic about Bette Davis and the actress' book "The Lonely Life": "Like all good works in literature, Miss Davis' autobiography brings out the existentialism in the reader. . . . Her ultimate star quality is to compel one to concur in her judgments."

Everything Miss Brophy says does not bring concurrence. But unfailingly it arouses interest and stimulates the thought processes. One suspects Miss Brophy will be with us a good long time, but that the year is not too distant when Malcolm Muggeridge may hear himself described as "the male Brigid Brophy."

Selling for 75 cents, this is a guide for the real woodsman. It is intended not for those who go camping in the comfort of their trailer with icebox and cookstove along, but rather for those who strike out into the wilds by backpack or burro, relying upon their wits and skills for their existence.

In fact, parts of the book appeared earlier under the explanatory title "Going Light With Backpack or Burro." These have been expanded and updated into an unusual and highly authoritative source of information for those who must answer the call of the wild.

Sleuths & Suspense

Let's go to the English seashore again, to the big dark Gothic house that is full of rooms and mystery, to its dark woods and whispery pines, and rusty gates. And while we're there let's discover the murder that's sure to happen, hear the footfalls in the dark, listen to the stark screams.

This house, of course, is peopled with strange old men and beautiful young women, and a couple of handsome young men (and there you have the makings of the subplot of love and losers), and troubled servants who shy at the very thought of a knife being plunged into an old woman's paralyzed body. Oh, and don't forget—the stakes are high: Great-grandfather's last will and testament, you know (he doesn't want the illegitimates to inherit).

Why it's favorite sleuth Detective Inspector Septimus Finch (all the way from Scotland Yard, you know). He's resting from old wounds, but shakes off his misery long enough to unravel that mess entangling The Towers next door.

All right, it's been done before. It will be done again — this story. And for a Crime Club Selection, the pace is just a hit too leaden. However, cozy up with a cuppa — the story's not all that bad for a rainy day.

"Are The New Iron-On Seam Bindings Practical?"

There is a new iron-on seam binding sold in variety and yard goods stores which, as far as they have been tested, appear practical. When these bindings first came out, the adhesive in the tapes didn't always hold up in drycleaning. However, the manufacturer made improvements in the product and it is safe for drycleaning on all excepting the very slickest hard finish fabrics. When failure to adhere does occur in some areas, the binding usually can be made to adhere again by standard pressing.

These bindings are a boon to the seamstress. She can put a hem in a skirt without sewing. She simply folds back the bottom of the skirt and irons on a strip of the self-adhering tape. Now that the manufacturer has made his tape safe for drycleaning, the binding is most practical.

EIGHT TRACK STEREO TAPES FOR THE AUTO. In the past year, car stereo has become increasingly popular. Some of the major car manufacturer's offer eight track stereo as optional equipment. At present there are two types of car stereos, the 4 track and the 8 track types.

The 4 track systems were introduced first. Many have been sold and are in use. The 8 track system, introduced many months later, seems to be gaining wider acceptance.

The taped programs for 8 track car stereo come in cartridge form. The cartridge is 5½" long, 4" wide, and ⅞ of an inch thick. Merely sliding the cartridge into the tape player turns the unit on and starts the tape playing. The tape plays continuously, repeating itself, until the cartridge is pulled out of the player.

The tape in these cartridges is the standard ¼" tape width; hower, 8 individual bands (tracks) of sound are recorded onto the ¼" width. Tracks 1, 2, 3, and 4 are used for the left stereo program channels and tracks 5, 6, 7, and 8 are used for the right program channels. The playback heads, the units that pick off the magnetic impulses from the tape, are spaced so that during the playing cycle, the combinations 1 and 5, 2 and 6, 3 and 7, and 4 and 8 are used for stereo playback. The head automatically shifts vertically from one combination to the other then back to the starting point. In other words, since for stereo reproduction two sound tracks are being used simultaneously, the tape makes four passes before all of the program material is reproduced.

For the technically minded, each band of sound is 22/1000 of an inch wide. The tape speed is 3¾" per second. Quality units are capable of response from below 100 Hz (cycles per second) to approximately 10,000 Hz. The noise level is slightly higher than a standard tape recorder because of the narrower sound tracks; however, the random noise level in a car is so high that this condition is well within listening tolerances.

Speakers systems usually consists of two sets of stereo pairs in each car. In some the door cowls are used for speaker baffles. Car stereo takes the monotony out of long trips.

STORMY-NIGHT DOG

Our dog just hit the kitchen door!
He banged it open! Ran to his bowl!
Our dog is home! God bless his soul!

What if he's wet? What if he shakes
Mud over us and over the floors?
What do we care of the mess he makes—
While he wags to those his heart adores?

Surprise!

Famed violinist Oistrakh has been working as a conductor on the side for three or four years now, and he seems to be as impeccable an artist in this pursuit as he is with fiddle and bow. The Prokofieff Fifth is for my taste one of the greatest symphonic works of this century.

Oistrakh was closely associated with the composer, again insuring a feeling for the score which is sure to score with all listeners. This symphony makes a fascinating comparison to the Shostakovich reviewed in this column—both are "war" symphonies, both epic in form and sound, and both number five.

Again, the stereo sound is without fault, rich and silky as is the Angel tradition.

This non-Russian fare turns out just about the best of the bunch. "Harold" is not an easy work to handle, and only Beecham in the past really seemed to capture the right feeling of these Byronic musical pictures. Oistrakh does a magnificent job here, and Barshai is smooth and creamy in tone.

The composer's most popular symphony is a total musical experience, produced with all the stops out and no holds varred. Only in Mahler symphonies is such an impact found.

This is an excellent performance and fine stereo spread and depth, and the Moscow Philharmonic proves the good impression which filtered through from previous low-fi recordings as being correct.

However, Lenny Bernstein's smashing version of this still has top place on my record shelf.

While this is not one of the world's greatest violin concerti, it is an enjoyable and colorful piece, similar to the Armenian composer's piano concerto. The performance, with the composer in charge, is naturally authoritative.

There's A Rub To This Finish

Researchers for the manufacturers of wood finishing materials have spent countless thousands of hours devising new products that will do away with the necessity of that once essential operation: rubbing.

There are no-rub varnishes, floor coatings, waxes, synthetics and many other such products, each designed to save the householder, the professional and the hobbyist the labor of polishing to produce a smooth effect.

IF YOU'RE interested in a finish of that kind, read no more. The finish we're about to discuss not only calls for rubbing, but vigorous and repeated rubbing.

It produces a finish with a fine patina -- the kind usually associated with wood that has grown beautiful with age. And it is almost foolproof, even for the novice, since a poor result can be obtained only if you violate one simple fundamental.

The ingredients are both familiar to all of us — turpentine and linseed oil. Use a good quality turpentine and buy linseed in what is called the boiled form, as distinguished from raw linseed oil.

REMEMBER, now, the linseed oil comes already boiled; it requires no heating.

Mix two parts of boiled linseed oil with the turpentine and you are ready to begin. Using either a clean paint brush or a clean cloth, spread the mixture on the wood. As soon as you have completed the job — and this is the important fundamental we mentioned — take a clean rag and wipe off all the excess coating. Just glide the cloth over the surface; wipe, don't rub.

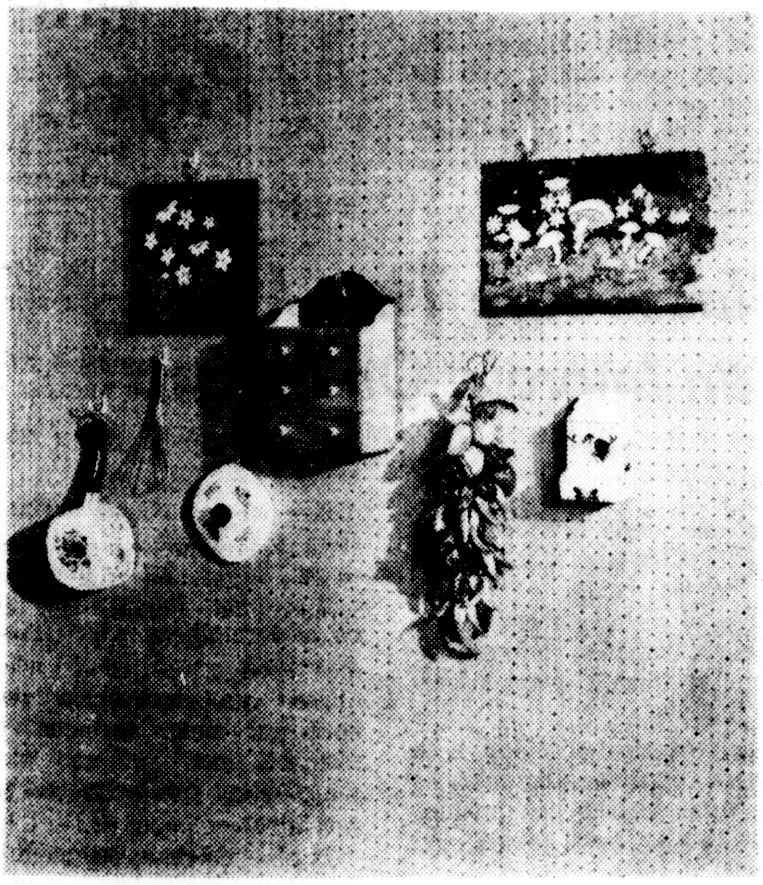
Wait about half an hour, enough time to give the mixture an opportunity to fill the pores of the wood. Take still another clean cloth (make sure it is lintless) and begin rubbing. Rub and rub and rub . . . 10 minutes, 30 minutes, an hour, as long as you want to or can.

GO BACK TO the rubbing later in the day, two or three times if you wish.

This time wait about a week, then repeat the rubbing routine. You will find the finish assuming a rich appearance.

From then on, you can rub any time you wish with a dry cloth. Each time you do it, you are, in effect, adding years of tender care to the finish. You also will be making it resistant to ordinary stains and moderate heat.

This type of finish requires maintenance about once a year, although it generally will last considerably longer than that if it has not been abused. When you feel that a re-do is necessary, go through the same steps as with the original finish — always bearing in mind that the most important part of the procedure is wiping off the excess oil after the mixture has been applied.



HERE'S HOW TO turn a bare kitchen wall into a bright, cheery interest center and a step saver to boot: Cover the wall with an old standby, perforated hardboard, and decorate to suit. Here, the homemaker started with perforated panels prefinished in a handsome tawny walnut woodgrain. With positive locking, easy-to-change plastic fixtures, she added primitive-type oil paintings done on distressed wood and barn siding. An antique spice rack holds "little things"—thumbtacks, rubber bands, paper clips, toothpicks. A bright matchbox and a string of peppers help brighten the kitchen with color. Here's a grand opportunity, too, to show your pretty or unusual kitchen utensils while keeping them within easy reach.

BRIGHT IDEAS

A Closet To Hide Bunk Beds

By JOE JONES

The double-decker bunk was long been a great space saver and is particularly dear to the hearts of little boys.

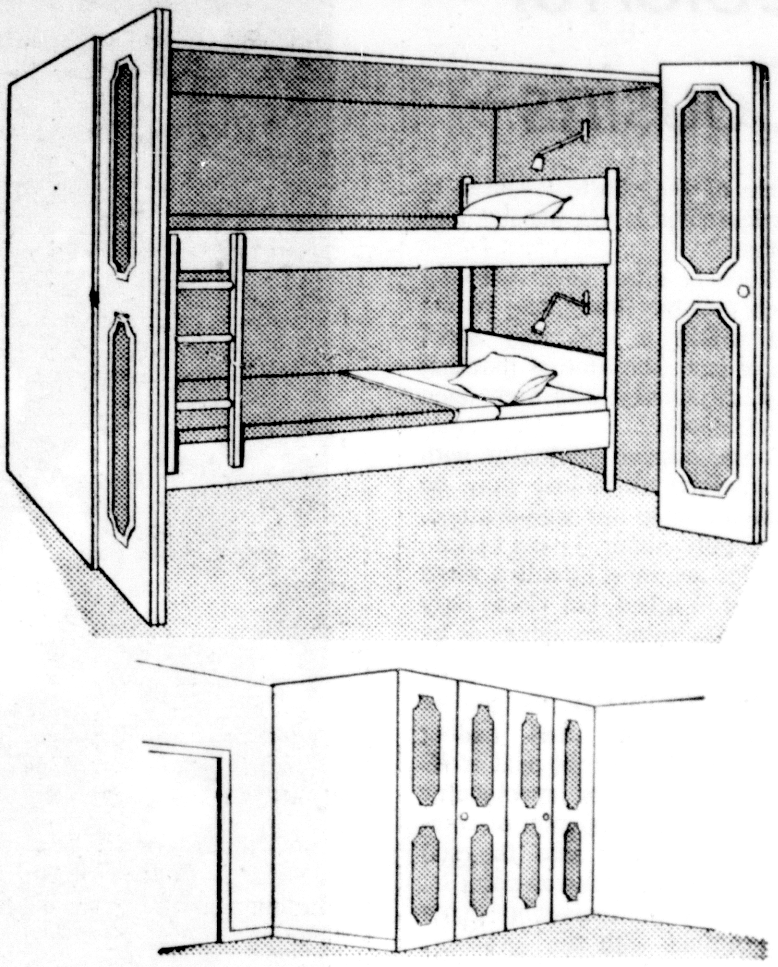
Now it can also be dear to the hearts of two big girls who share that efficiency apartment.

Never very attractive as furniture goes, the double-decker can be hidden during waking hours. Build a closet around it. Ideal for the children's room, it creates play space, makes for a tidier room, keeps the beds from becoming catchalls, keeps the kids out of the sack during the day and it is good decorating.

It is a natural for the small apartment where space is at a premium. Or build one in any room in your home as a spare for that couple spending the night.

Any double-decker bunk will do. The closet is a solid wood, pre-fab with floor-to-ceiling bifold doors. These closets come in kit form, can be tailored to your bunk beds, and if your man is handy, he can install them himself.

For information on where to buy, send a self-addressed, sta ped envelope to Joe Jones, Post Office Box 8720, Phi d lphia, Pa., 19101.



BUNK BEDS are utilitarian, but not always decorative. However, you can hide them when they are not in use simply by placing an attractive closet around them.

There's A Rub To This Finish

Researchers for the manufacturers of wood finishing materials have spent countless thousands of hours devising new products that will do away with the necessity of that once essential operation: rubbing.

There are no-rub varnishes, floor coatings, waxes, synthetics and many other such products, each designed to save the householder, the professional and the hobbyist the labor of polishing to produce a smooth effect.

IF YOU'RE interested in a finish of that kind, read no more. The finish we're about to discuss not only calls for rubbing, but vigorous and repeated rubbing.

It produces a finish with a fine patina — the kind usually associated with wood that has grown beautiful with age. And it is almost foolproof, even for the novice, since a poor result can be obtained only if you violate one simple fundamental.

The ingredients are both familiar to all of us — turpentine and linseed oil. Use a good quality turpentine and buy linseed in what is called the boiled form, as distinguished from raw linseed oil.

REMEMBER, now, the linseed oil comes already boiled; it requires no heating.

Mix two parts of boiled linseed oil with the turpentine and you are ready to begin. Using either a clean paint brush or a clean cloth, spread the mixture on the wood. As soon as you have completed the job — and this is the important fundamental we mentioned — take a clean rag and wipe off all the excess coating. Just glide the cloth over the surface; wipe, don't rub.

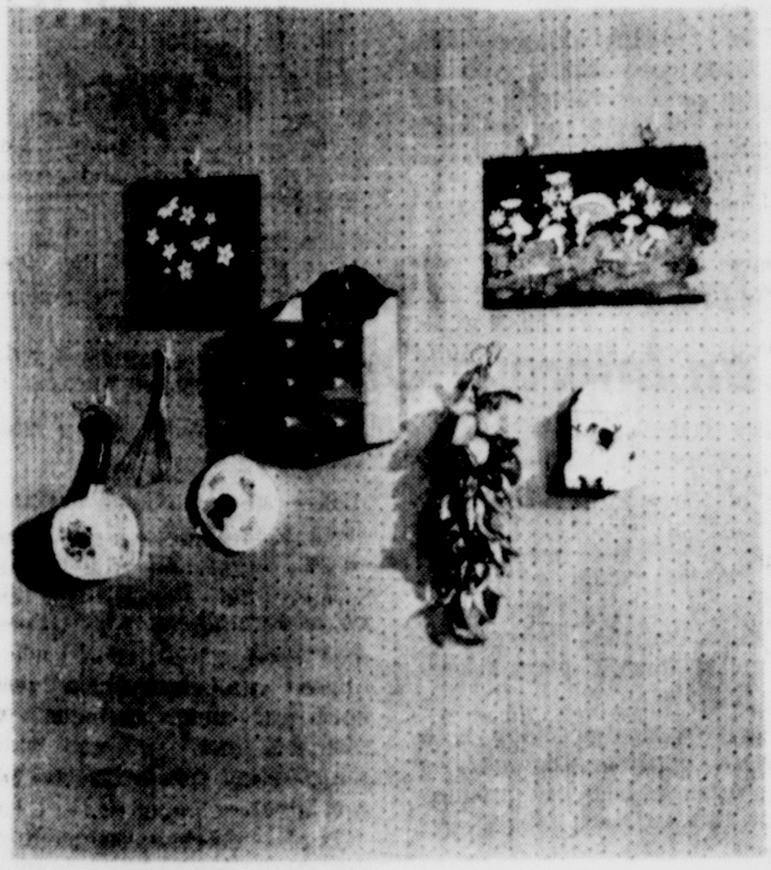
Wait about half an hour, enough time to give the mixture an opportunity to fill the pores of the wood. Take still another clean cloth (make sure it is lintless) and begin rubbing. Rub and rub and rub . . . 10 minutes, 30 minutes, an hour, as long as you want to or can.

GO BACK TO the rubbing later in the day, two or three times if you wish.

This time wait about a week, then repeat the rubbing routine. You will find the finish assuming a rich appearance.

From then on, you can rub any time you wish with a dry cloth. Each time you do it, you are, in effect, adding years of tender care to the finish. You also will be making it resistant to ordinary stains and moderate heat.

This type of finish requires maintenance about once a year, although it generally will last considerably longer than that if it has not been abused. When you feel that a re-do is necessary, go through the same steps as with the original finish — always bearing in mind that the most important part of the procedure is wiping off the excess oil after the mixture has been applied.



HERE'S HOW TO turn a bare kitchen wall into a bright, cheery interest center and a step saver to boot: Cover the wall with an old standby, perforated hardboard, and decorate to suit. Here, the homemaker started with perforated panels prefinished in a handsome tawny walnut woodgrain. With positive locking, easy-to-change plastic fixtures, she added primitive-type oil paintings done on distressed wood and barn siding. An antique spice rack holds "little things"—thumbtacks, rubber bands, paper clips, toothpicks. A bright matchbox and a string of peppers help brighten the kitchen with color. Here's a grand opportunity, too, to show your pretty or unusual kitchen utensils while keeping them within easy reach.

BRIGHT IDEAS

By JOE JONES

The double-decker bunk was long been a great space saver and is particularly dear to the hearts of little boys.

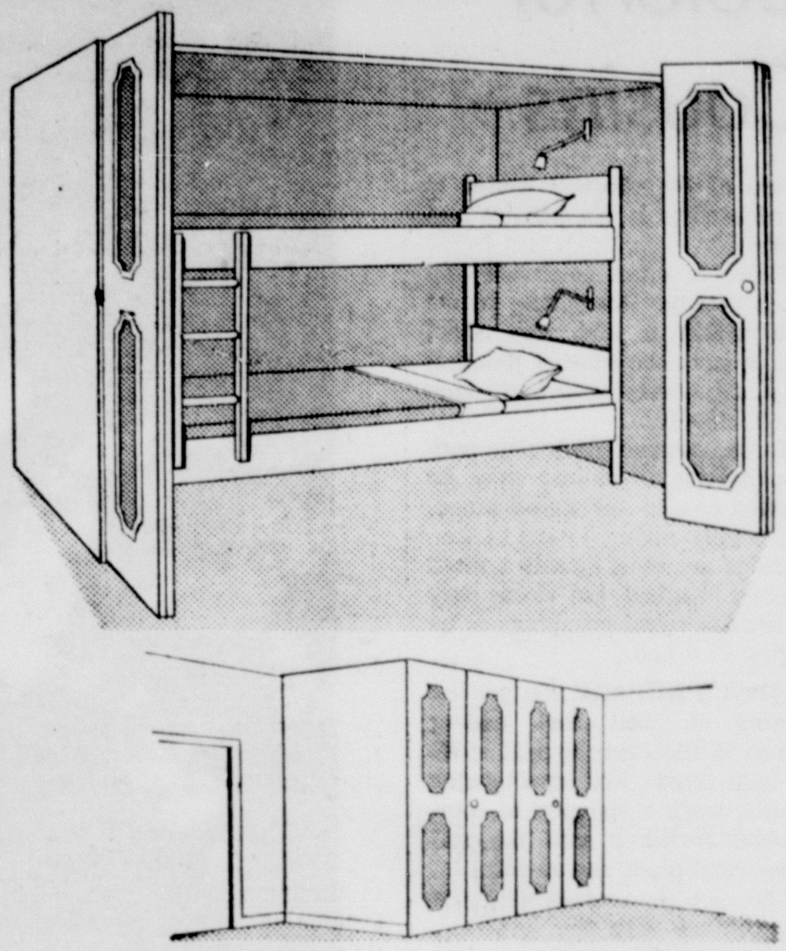
Now it can also be dear to the hearts of two big girls who share that efficiency apartment.

Never very attractive as furniture goes, the double-decker can be hidden during waking hours. Build a closet around it. Ideal for the children's room, it creates play space, makes for a tidier room, keeps the beds from becoming catchalls, keeps the kids out of the sack during the day and it is good decorating.

It is a natural for the small apartment where space is at a premium. Or build one in any room in your home as a spare for that couple spending the night.

Any double-decker bunk will do. The closet is a solid wood, pre-fab with floor-to-ceiling bifold doors. These closets come in kit form, can be tailored to your bunk beds, and if your man is handy, he can install them himself.

For information on where to buy, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Joe Jones, Post Office Box 8720, Philadelphia, Pa., 19101.



BUNK BEDS are utilitarian, but not always decorative. However, you can hide them when they are not in use simply by placing an attractive closet around them.

Couple Of Colorful Cousins—

One of the shortest routes to garden color is via pansies and violas.

There is often color showing when you buy the young plants and within a few very short weeks from the time of planting they are massed with their open faced blooms.

These cousins (actually both are classed as violas) may be planted now in any well-drained, reasonably sunny location. Pansies are most effective when massed in a bed, but violas may be used in small groupings or as edging to a bed.

FIRST PREPARE the soil by digging it well and adding humus in the form of peat moss or leaf mold. For spectacular results, work a spoonful of commercial fertilizer into the soil under each plant as you set it in, but be sure the roots don't come into contact with the fertilizer. Work the food in, then add some soil before setting the plant on top.

Until the roots are well established, the ground should be moist at all times.

After three or four weeks you may slack off on the water. Established plants seem to bloom better when they're not overwatered. This does not mean they like drought, however; just normal to light watering.

THERE IS A strain of pansies available that nurserymen say is the most popular thing this family has ever produced. This would be the Majestic Giant strain, which won All America honors for 1966.

Available in mixed selection, it offers huge flowers, some of them measuring four inches across. It blooms early and remains in bloom over a longer period than most previous pansies.

Violas are sold in separate colors of white, apricot, yellow, blue and ruby. Their bloom period is longer than that of pansies and will extend from spring to fall — a good six months — if the plants are fed every six weeks and if faded blossoms and runners are pinched off regularly.

California Is Dahlia Country

Probably nowhere in the entire United States do Dahlias thrive as they do in California.

They are at their very finest in our coastal gardens, but anywhere in the state, they can give the gardener a potful of color for his summer garden.

The Dwarf Unwin varieties are sold as bedding plants and used as bedders for a mass of low, bright color. Intermediary Dahlias are planted from tubers and used for spot color throughout the border. The large moplike beauties, tall as basketball players, are the favorites of specialists, who plant them in beds by themselves and enter the platter-size blooms in summer flower shows.

Like the Chrysanthemum, the Dahlia has been bred into a dozen different bloom types. They range from the small pompons to the giant, ragged cactus-flowered showpieces, and all have a place in your garden.

Dahlias tubers should be planted any time now for bloom from July until late fall.

If you have never grown them before, have no qualms about planting them for the first time. They are easy to grow, having the bloom built into them just as all bulbous plants do. Follow these recommendations, however, and you will have better than average results.

Our memo on this subject says that Dahlias do well in all types of soil so long as you dig it to a depth of some 18 inches at planting time. Manure may be worked in well at this time, if the soil is poor, but it is best to wait until the tops have made some growth before you fertilize with anything else.

Water, combined with good drainage, is the most important commodity and should never be lacking during growth processes, You may top water if you must, but irrigation is always preferable. Pinching the plants as they grow encourages bushy plants, and disbudding promotes bigger individual blooms from the buds that are left.

For ordinary garden use, however, we suggest you go lightly on the disbudding. For general gardening, we are more concerned with the mass rather than the individual bloom.

Glads Prove That Man Can Improve On Nature

All one needs is to compare these bulb beauties of today with the original South African species of yesteryear and he has to admit that man can improve on nature when it comes to garden flowers.

The gladiolus of today is a blooming machine. One marvels that a single bulb can produce such luxuriant growth and bloom.

And the beauty of it is that so little effort is required on the gardener's part. He simply plants the bulb, waters it well and waits for results, which are forthcoming in a short enough time.

Lest we remove all challenge from the growing of this wonderful flower, let us hasten to add that you, the gardener, can do certain things which insure perfection.

You can incorporate some bonemeal under the corm at planting time. You can water the planting regularly; and you can spray.

At planting time, the one thing you should remember is to make sure your bulbs are set on the level. The bloom spears will grow in whichever direction you slant them, so unless you want blooms on a 45-degree angle, make sure you set them with the growing tip pointed straight up.

And make sure, too, that you make more than one planting. You can make a planting every two weeks from now up to early summer and thereby extend your gladiolus bloom season from late spring to late fall.

YOU'D NEVER suspect a shrub this showy could be grown more easily than a geranium. It is the glittering Aucuba Picturata. You can give it the darkest, most difficult spot, even poor soil and drainage, and it will go right on producing glossy, deep green leaves splashed with golden centers on a compact, tailored shrub. (Photo courtesy of California Association of Nurserymen.)

Not All The Beauty Comes From Blooms

If you think that bloom is everything in the garden, you are apt to overlook those big, bold and showy foliage plants which landscape designers use with such good effect.

These are true exotics—shrubs you can use for accent and year-round beauty in every corner of the garden.

WHO WOULD deny that a Tree Fern, for instance, is every bit as lovely in its own right as any flowering shrub? Its beauty is a permanent pleasure, while that of a flowering shrub is apt to afford seasonal enjoyment only.

California Association of Nurserymen members offer two tree ferns for home use—the New Zealand Tree Fern being most popular because of its smaller size. Try one in a large tub if you would create something special in your entrance way.

The familiar Fatsia (or Aralia to some of you) is easily recognized for its tropical appearance in gardens throughout the state. Its white blooms in winter are only of minor importance. The glossy, deep green, over-sized leaves are what make it so useful in shaded or partly shaded situations.

THE RELATED Rice Paper Plant resembles Fatsia except that its leaves are bigger and lack the glossy finish.

New Zealand Flax is one of the more striking foliage plants we have in general garden use, and one that has really come into its own in recent years. Landscapers make liberal use of this once underrated shrub—its bronzy, sword blade leaves being conspicuously present in many a featured garden. You'll find it most effective when used as a specimen plant in or out of a container.

We'd have to include many others on our list of favorite foliage plants. Fatshedra, the lush vine that was born of a match between Fatsia and Ivy (Hedera) deserves a place, as does the Gold Dust Plant and any one of several palms that nurserymen offer.

All are marked by the striking effects of their foliage alone. Grow them and you'll know that bloom isn't everything.

CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

✓ Compacted soils should be worked over thoroughly and a commercial conditioner added. This will keep the soil in good condition for a long time.

An Old Lawn Question

To Replant And Start All Over?

Owners of new homes are lucky when it comes to landscaping.

They can start from scratch and avoid the decisions which always confront the owners of established gardens. Like whether to start a new lawn this year or merely to renew the old one.

This is a perennial question with many Californians and with gardeners throughout the country. A fine lawn is the garden greatest asset, but a fine lawn requires attention. And often when we move into a home, the lawn has already suffered from neglect.

SPRING IS the season when we ask oursleves, "Do we plant a new lawn or simply renew the old one?"

A neglected lawn can be reestablished if it suffers only from a weed invasion or from bald spots where traffic has been heavy. If there are real drainage problems, or if Bermuda grass has taken over completely (and you really can't live with Bermuda grass) then a new lawn is called for.

Bermuda grass has long been a bother in California, but today it is not unusual to see a knowing gardener kill off his old Bermuda and replant his lawn — to Bermuda. There are new hybrid Bermudas available which have proven themselves not only tough underfoot but lovely to look at as well.

THESE ARE especially useful in southern California but may be used wherever Bermuda seems to crop up (and where doesn't it?).

To grow well, a lawn needs a loose root run. This keeps the soil warmer and permits water penetration.

Old lawns should be renovated with a coring tool or spike. New lawns should be deeply worked over before sowing, with plenty of humus such as peat moss worked in. The time to start building that beautiful turf is now.

JOEY BISHOP is the host of the new Monday through Friday late evening show which will begin Monday night at 11:30 p.m. on Channel 7.

Noel Harrison Has Diffidence If Not Elegance Of Famed Father

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Noel Harrison is the son of Rex Harrison, and, while he lacks his father's elegance, Harrison the younger does star in his own television series, "The Girl from UNCLE."

A cerebral rather than a physical type, Noel has learned to dispose of heavies in the series with a considerable show of muscle.

HE AND HIS WIFE Sara, a Canadian who became a top English model, rent a house in the Hollywood hills but have purchased a home of their own near famed Mulholland Drive.

As Noel puts it: "It is a wooden place that doesn't pretend to be anything but a house, unlike a lot of places in this town."

The new home has four bedrooms to house the Harrisons' three daughters and a son, ranging in age from 11 to 1. And Noel is having a swimming pool installed in the belief that anyone living in Southern California without one isn't in full possession of his senses.

FOR SEVERAL years when Noel worked in nightclubs the family enjoyed its principal meal in the middle of the day. Now the schedule is reversed.

Noel is off to MGM studios before 8 a.m. and rarely returns until 8 in the evening. But his work is all that Harrison allows to dictate a regimen. He's purposefully disorganized and avoids set patterns.

"I like to see new things and keep changing if I possibly can," Harrison says. "Most especially my mind. I'm something of a non-conformist, I imagine. Anyway, it suits me."

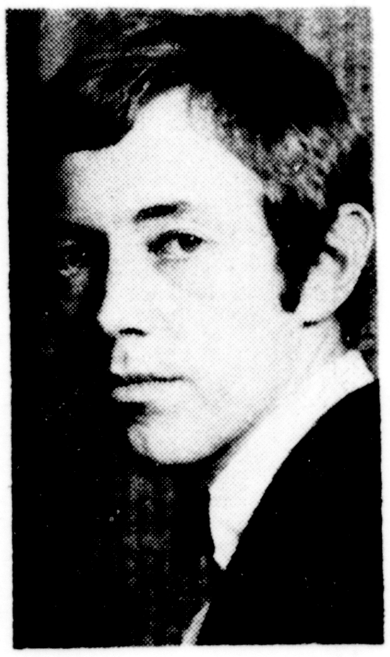
THE HARRISON clan includes Zoe, 11; Cathryn, 7; Simon, 5; and Harriet, 1; two mutts from the pound, Rose and Ethel, and three cats. The garage contains one English car and a 14-year-old American convertible for family outings.

Noel dabbles in a variety of hobbies but he prefers photography. He participated as a skier for England in the Olympic Games but hasn't time for the slopes in California. The NBC-TV series keeps him too busy.

On weekends he enjoys sightseeing in Southern California, touring the deserts, mountains and beaches, usually with the family in tow. But he rarely plans such excursions in advance.

HIS DISLIKE for organization affects the Harrison social life. He turns down invitations to parties more than 24 hours in advance. On the other hand, the house is liable to be filled with a dozen friends on a weekend—on a drop-in basis.

When that happens Noel either sends out for food or busies himself in the kitchen where he is an accomplished cook; better at the culinary arts than Sara, according to young Harrison.



NOEL HARRISON
Deliberately disorganized

He takes time out to practice singing and playing the guitar, and not long ago appeared on the Andy Williams show. He's signed a new recording contract and hopes to keep two careers going at once.

HARRISON resembles Steve McQueen and possesses a similar diffidence. He rarely mentions his famous father unless someone else broaches the subject.

FOR SEVERAL years when Noel worked in nightclubs the family enjoyed its principal meal in the middle of the day. Now the schedule is reversed.

Noel is off to MGM studios before 8 a.m. and rarely returns until 8 in the evening. But his work is all that Harrison allows to dictate a regimen. He's purposefully disorganized and avoids set patterns.

"I like to see new things and keep changing if I possibly can," Harrison says. "Most especially my mind. I'm something of a non-conformist, I imagine. Anyway, it suits me."

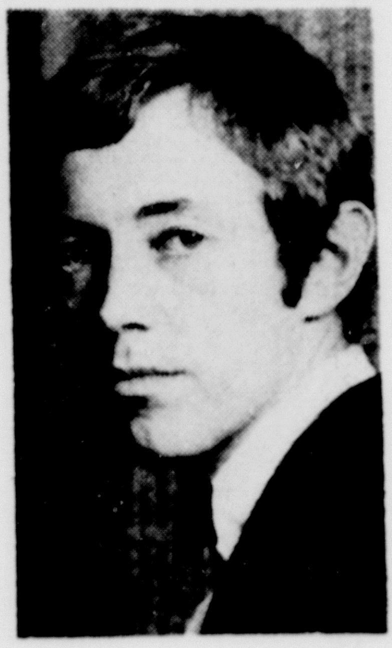
THE HARRISON clan includes Zoe, 11; Cathryn, 7; Simon, 5; and Harriet, 1; two mutts from the pound, Rose and Ethel, and three cats. The garage contains one English car and a 14-year-old American convertible for family outings.

Noel dabbles in a variety of hobbies but he prefers photography. He participated as a skier for England in the Olympic Games but hasn't time for the slopes in California. The NBC-TV series keeps him too busy.

On weekends he enjoys sightseeing in Southern California, touring the deserts, mountains and beaches, usually with the family in tow. But he rarely plans such excursions in advance.

HIS DISLIKE for organization affects the Harrison social life. He turns down invitations to parties more than 24 hours in advance. On the other hand, the house is liable to be filled with a dozen friends on a weekend—on a drop-in basis.

When that happens Noel either sends out for food or busies himself in the kitchen where he is an accomplished cook; better at the culinary arts than Sara, according to young Harrison.



NOEL HARRISON
Deliberately disorganized

He takes time out to practice singing and playing the guitar, and not long ago appeared on the Andy Williams show. He's signed a new recording contract and hopes to keep two careers going at once.

HARRISON resembles Steve McQueen and possesses a similar diffidence. He rarely mentions his famous father unless someone else broaches the subject.

In The Public Interest

The late Mike Todd, swinger extraordinary, once said: "Life is like the movies. We produce our own show." I'd never thought of it exactly in that light before, but it makes for rather interesting speculation.

Life is like the movies – we produce our own show. It's true, and just as there are any number of kinds and types of motion pictures written and produced, you can probably think of people you know or have heard about who have lived every possible story line.

There are the gloomy, grey and foreboding tragedies whose tentacles reach into the lives of those they know and stain everything they touch with a sable or sanguine hue. It's difficult to say that they have produced their own show, but that seems to be the way it is.

Conversely, and happily, there are the cheerful, warm and friendly homes, filled with busy, lighthearted people, and they form bright oases in their neighborhoods. And there are the comedies . . . the strong, purposeful, sober stories . . . the B pictures and the C pictures, too. These are simply dull and make you sorry you came every time you're in their company. I overheard a woman at a party once make the comment that when her daughter left home to go to college – she and her husband had to learn how to talk to each other. All those years wasted in grinding dullness and lack of love.

And, unfortunately, there are even the psychopathic stories, the horror stories and the murder mysteries. There are westerns and detective stories. There is Hamlet played all over again in a thousand families every year; and Romeo and Juliet, the ubiquitous theme we find on every hand in probably every civilized community on earth.

So – Mike Todd was right: Life is like the movies, for the movies are taken from life. And how is yours? What kind of motion picture does your family project to the world? Is it the kind you'd pay to see – or would you pass it up to see one with more interest, excitement and adventure? Is it warm and friendly and filled with love? Or is it dull and flat and uninteresting. Remember, you're the producer. And as a producer once said to me: "There are no small parts; just small actors." Any part can be made better, good, or even great, depending only upon the talent and effort of the actor. If you find the motion picture you're living to be uninteresting, don't blame your wife or husband, or the neighbors, or your work. Instead, take a good long look at the way you're directing it. You'll get out of it exactly what you put into it. Forget the past – there's nothing you can do about that; forget about the real or imagined injuries to your pride; never permit yourself to suffer by hating others – it's a useless, painful and expensive vice. Wipe the slate clean, if you haven't been satisfied with your past picture, and start all over again from scratch. And build the kind of story you'll enjoy being an actor in.

All you have, or will ever have is yourself and time. Put both to the best possible use now, and tomorrow and the day after tomorrow. Who knows – you might win an academy award!
